GOLD PARLEY IN WHITE HOUSE

INVESTORS RAP LAX BOND LAWS; TELL BIG LOSS

John G. Oglesby Is Star Witness.

Throughout yesterday and into the night a procession of witnesses filed before the investigating committee of the state house of representatives to present testimony on the abuses of receiverships and foreclosures in Cook county. Evidence included various phases of real estate mortgages, from the floating of bond issues in inflated property valuations through the reorganization of properties.

The morning and afternoon sessions of the committee were held in room 1121 of the county building, which was thronged with spectators. These enlivened the hearings with applause for the witnesses and boos and hisses for investment houses, receivers, and attorneys named in the disclosures.

The night session was held in the council chamber of the city hall. The spectators followed the committee, but were too weary to repeat the demonstrations which marked the earlier meetings. Some dozed in their chairs.

Oglesby and Swanson Heard.

The day's principal witnesses were John G. Oglesby of Elkhart, Ill., twice lieutenant governor of the state, and John A. Swanson, former state's attorney of Cook county. Both told of losses on bond investments, a large part of which were made during their terms in office.

The star witness of the evening session was B. J. Meyer, one of the owners of the Belden-Stratford, Parkway, and Webster hotels, who told of his troubles with the receiver of the property, Joseph F. Connery, former fire commissioner. He said Connery had replaced competent help with political followers. He also told of the employment of relatives of Circuit Judge Philip L. Sullivan at what he termed "excessive fees."

But the outstanding figure of the day's session by vote of the committee and spectators was Mr. Oglesby, now retiring to his farm at Elkhart, who mingled rural idioms and French phrases in his denunciation of the evils of foreclosure. He referred constantly to bondholders' committees as "soi-disant protective committees" and to himself as "a goat, sucker, and sheep."

Urges Postal Law Inquiry.

At the high point of his testimony he urged that the committee make an inquiry to determine whether postal laws had been violated by investment houses in the selling of mortgage bonds now in default. This suggestion was seconded by Mr. Swanson, who declared that only the statute of limitations prevents prosecution of various real estate bond houses on charges of obtaining money under false pretenses or operating a confidence game.

Mr. Oglesby was preceded on the stand by William L. Sullivan, an assistant corporation counsel, who told of the discrepancy between valuations on properties for bonding purposes and the cost of the properties and the appraisals for assessment purposes.

Reveals Large Loss on Bonds.

Mr. Oglesby was questioned by Assistant Attorney General James G. Skinner. During his two hours on the stand he was caustic in his comment on investment houses and bondholders' committees. He declared he had lost "a considerable sum" in real estate mortgages.

"I'm just a farmer and use rural expressions," Mr. Oglesby began. "I was just a sheep or a goat—whichever you prefer. Or maybe I was and am just a plain sucker. I fell for a lot of euphemistic and wordy letters from bond houses and bought a lot of bonds."

Mr. Oglesby told the committee that he had received notices of the default of one issue after another. In all cases he was urged to deposit his bonds with a bondholders' committee, he said.

Still Waiting for Money.

"I was pretty near threatened that unless I deposited my bonds the property would be sold in reorganization and I would receive only 10 cents on a dollar," he said. "I deposited where I had to, but I didn't even get the 10 cents. I'm still waiting for something."

Mr. Oglesby said he wrote frequently to the bondholders' committees for information. In reply to one of his letters he received information which he said was startling. He asked permission to read the letter, which was sent to him by Paul C. Loeber, trustee of the Leight Trust, formerly Leight & Co., investment brokers.

"Leight & Co. underwrote a bond issue of $210,000 on the 900 Argyle

Republicans Fighting Inflation Plan

AVER PROGRAM VIOLATES RULES OF SOUND MONEY

Democratic Chiefs Urge Speed.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 21.—[Special.]—Conservative Republicans in congress broke with the administration today over President Roosevelt's program for "controlled inflation."

Republican coöperation blew up in an explosion of denunciation in which the President was described "as a child playing with dynamite." His proposed inflation amendment to the pending farm bill was characterized as a measure violating "the most elementary principles of sound monetary, credit and financial policies."

The attack began even before the inflation bill was reported out after none too calm a journey through the senate banking and currency committee—a journey which saw the significant section providing for devaluation of the gold dollar all but stricken from the bill by committee action.

Joint Attack Made.

From a single handed assault by Senator David A. Reed [Rep., Pa.] on the senate floor the opposition expanded into a joint statement by Senator Reed, Republican House Leader B. H. Snell of New York, Senator Frederic C. Walcott [Rep., Conn.] and Representative Robert Luce [Rep., Mass.].

Their concerted objection shattered the partisan serenity which, though threatened now and again, has thus far marked congressional consideration of the measures in the President's legislative program.

In retaliation Democrats tonight were making counter charges of political obstruction.

Senator Reed declared that the President, in his dabbling with explosives, might destroy the country and himself as well.

Confers with Mills.

The Pennsylvania senator is known to have been in conference with former Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills. Andrew W. Mellon, former secretary of the treasury and lately ambassador to Great Britain, was reported as on his way to Washington. And behind such a trio of conservative Republicanism the Democrats professed to see the hand of the eastern banking interests bent on protecting portfolios threatened by devaluation of the dollar.

Replying to Senator Reed upon the senate floor Senator Key Pittman [Dem., Nev.], one of the framers of the inflation measure, asserted that the Pennsylvanian was repeating the proverbial Republican plea in behalf of the moneyed interests.

"Old Fashioned Scare."

"The speech of the senator from Pennsylvania is the same old fashioned scare trying to compare this situation with the inflation of the German mark," Senator Pittman said. "The people are demanding a cheaper dollar. We are going to have a reasonable adjustment of prices. Your threats and scares are going to have no effect whatever. This is a conservative, safe approach toward inflation."

In the house the Republican opposition stirred up a resolution by Representative Martin Dies [Dem., Tex.] denouncing the "selfish group of lobbyists," and Mr. Mills in particular, who were engaged in an attempt to "thwart the noble purposes of the President."

Mr. Dies asked for a congressional investigation to "immediately and diligently investigate and report to congress the lobbying activities of Ogden Mills and other lobbyists who are seeking to defeat the program of the President and congress; that said committee is also directed to carefully and diligently investigate and report to congress the activities and plans of foreign governments and international bankers to propagandize the country with a view of seeking to cancel the war debts and maintaining the abnormal value of our currency at home and abroad to the detriment of American labor, agriculture and industry."

In the senate Mr. Reed took the floor to deny any intention to filibuster, but to show the country, he said, just what the bill contained, to demonstrate that with the bill the potential inflation of the currency amounted to 20 billion dollars.

He believed that he and colleagues

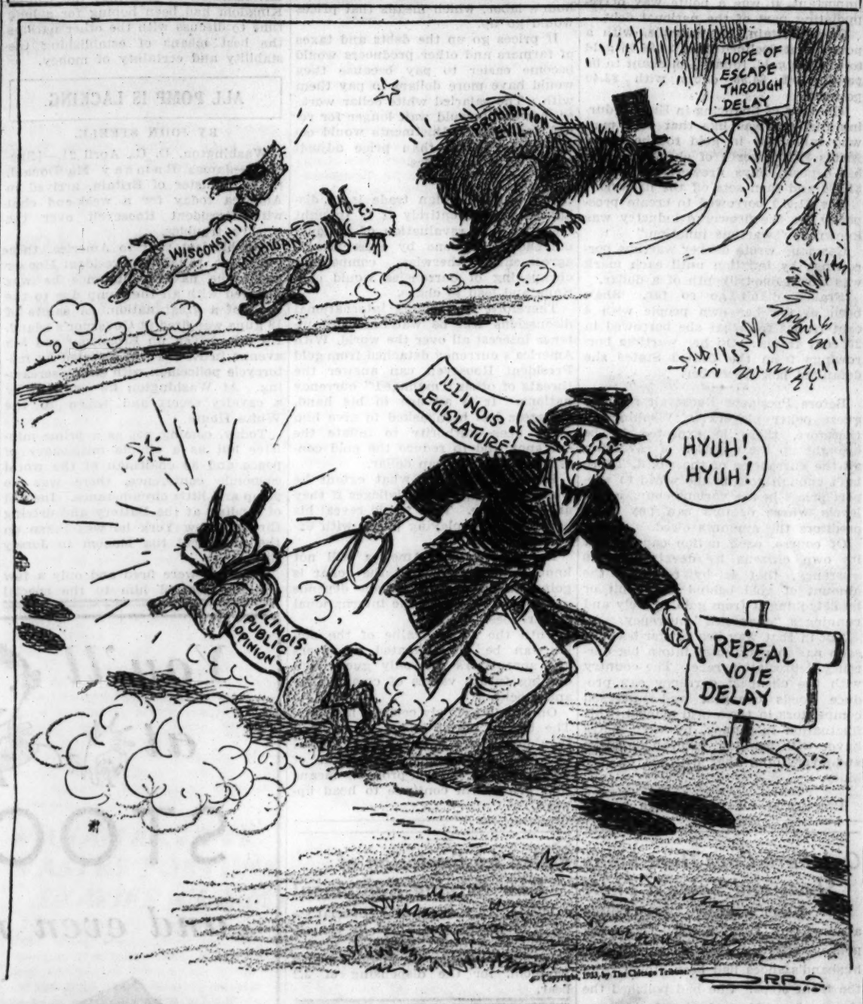
HOLDING UP THE CHASE



Russia Decrees Boycott of All British Goods

MOSCOW, April 22.—[Saturday.]—(AP)—The soviet government today retaliated against the British embargo on Russian goods by ordering a prohibition of any purchases in England and other restrictive measures.

[The British government recently decreed an 80 per cent embargo against importation of Russian goods in an attempt to protect British subjects who were tried in Moscow on charges of sabotage, bribery and espionage in electrical construction in the soviet union.]

Other restrictive measures ordered by the soviet government were:

The chartering of cargo vessels flying the British flag was forbidden.

Boycott British Ports.

Restrictions were applied to the passage of British goods in transit through Russia.

Utilization of English ports and bases was ordered reduced to a minimum.

Increased duties were ordered on British ships entering soviet ports.

"All these measures," the decree said, "are to remain in force during the time of validity of the embargo applied April 19 on imports to England of main items of soviet exports."

Assail British Motives.

An editorial in the newspaper for industrialization, organ of the commissariat of heavy industry, forecast the reprisals yesterday when it asserted, "The British embargo is a two-edged sword and the English bourgeoisie may still have the experience of a cut of the sharpest edge."

"Die-hards in England hope other states will follow their example, which will allow them to succeed in building a unified front in boycotting the U. S. S. R. similar to 1927," the paper added. It said, however, that it was not convinced that other countries, "incited by competition," would refuse to accept soviet orders.

"Our progress toward liberation from technical and economic dependence on the capitalist west gives our economic and importing organizations wide maneuvering possibilities, and we know how to use them," the paper concluded.

Meanwhile, the Russian counsel for William MacDonald and L. C. Thornton, the British engineers who were sentenced to two and three years' imprisonment, respectively, petitioned the central executive committee of the soviet government today either to cancel or commute the sentences to deportation.

MACON'S 13 HOUR TEST FLIGHT IS CALLED SUCCESS

Akron, O., April 21.—(AP)—The world's newest and largest dirigible—the Macon, sister of the ill fated U. S. S. Akron—cruised nearly 13 hours today on her maiden flight and then landed gracefully at her airdock here just before sunset tonight.

Hardly had the Macon returned to port before her officers and inspectors were expressing themselves as highly pleased with the ship's initial performance.

On her maiden cruise the Macon shuttled back and forth across northeastern Ohio and along the edge of Lake Erie as the first of a series of tests to determine finally whether the United States navy will welcome her into the fleet.

"The ship handled well," was the one sentence statement made by Capt. Alger H. Dresel, skipper of the Macon, who has skippered the Los Angeles and the Akron.

Rear Admiral George Day, chief of the naval board of inspection, declared "the ship made a very successful undocking and takeoff in spite of a cross dock wind of about 12 knots."

The initial flight ended at 6:52 p. m. [eastern standard time]. A throng was gathered on the surrounding hills to witness the finish.

Tries to Extort Money From L.J.Rosenwald

Philadelphia, Pa., April 21.—(AP)—Accused of attempting to extort under threat of death $100,000 from Lessing J. Rosenwald, chairman of the board of Sears, Roebuck & Co., a young man was arrested tonight in a cigar store while, authorities said, he was telephoning his intended victim.

Police said the man identified himself as Charles R. Weil, 29, a clerk, unemployed for more than a year. They stated he admitted sending Rosenwald three letters.

Three Letters Received.

Three letters received by Rosenwald threatened the wealthy executive with "ruthless, cruel, and vicious death" unless the money was paid.

The first letter was received March 20, advising him to "Wait seven days for further instructions." On March 27 the second letter ordered him to leave the money in $20 and $50 notes at a lonely spot in North Philadelphia. Police watched the appointed place, but no one appeared for a dummy package.

Put Under Surveillance.

Authorities said Weil was seen near the place and was put under surveillance. On April 13 another letter was received ordering Rosenwald to place the money near a fire plug in the Frankford section. This letter reduced the demand to $75,000.

By means of wire tapping, police said, they located the source of telephone calls to the Rosenwald home and arrested Weil shortly after he began a conversation with the executive tonight.

Lessing Rosenwald went to Philadelphia as manager of the Sears, Roebuck & Co. plant there in 1920. He became vice president of the company at the same time. He was elected chairman of the board to succeed his father, the late Julius Rosenwald, Chicago philanthropist. Lessing spent his boyhood in Chicago and served in the war as an apprentice seaman at the Great Lakes naval training station.

Smiles Greet MacDonald at White House

"Man's Mistake"

"Why is it that international trade is shrinking and shrinking and shrinking? Why is the stream of world commerce getting shallower and shallower and shallower? God didn't mean that. It must have been a mistake by man."

[Excerpt from Ramsay MacDonald's remarks soon after his arrival at the White House.]

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 21.—[Special.]—Ramsay MacDonald was greeted by President Roosevelt this afternoon in a manner as informal as a reunion of two long time friends.

In such an auspicious way commenced the contact between these two leaders which they hope may proceed these next five days to agreements which will lead the world from the darkness of depression.

The British prime minister and his daughter, Ishbel, stepped from a car to the front portico of the White House and there found the President, Mrs. Roosevelt, and their daughter, Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Dall, all bareheaded, their faces alight with glad smiles.

The informality of the picture was capped by the presence of the two White House dogs—big Major, a police dog, and the waddly Meggie, the first lady's Scotty.

Poses for Pictures.

After handshakings and posing for pictures the group moved into the mansion. Almost immediately afterward the prime minister went to the President's office and received newspaper men.

He was found seated at the President's desk and explained that Mr. Roosevelt had wanted him to sit in the President's chair.

"So you see we're getting on," he remarked.

Pleading he was still "full of innocence," the prime minister asked to be excused from discussing details of his impending conversations with the President, but in his Scottish burred voice he delivered quite a speech, stressing the importance of what he hoped would be accomplished. He explained his custom of never permitting his interviews to be directly quoted, imposing upon the reporters a condition that his remarks be stated in the third person.

Hope to Find Solution.

Mr. MacDonald said that he and President Roosevelt, with the leaders of other nations, must try to find a solution for the "very, very" tragic breakdown of the world's economic mechanism.

The American farmers on one hand, he said, and the British skilled mechanics on the other are today in a state of dire distress, and he declared this was not a national problem but one which must be solved by the nations of the world in unity.

The necessity, he asserted, is for a laying of heads together as "friendly coöperatives" in a study of the problems. Why is it, he asked, that international trade is shrinking and shrinking and shrinking? Why, he went on, is the stream of world commerce getting shallower and shallower and shallower?

"God didn't mean that!" he exclaimed, declaring that surely it must be a mistake by men and in this light, he said, he and the President will talk during these days.

He paid the President high compliments, calling him a good colleague with great spiritual powers.

He offered to answer any questions

PRESIDENT AND PREMIER SEEK ECONOMIC CURE

MacDonald First of Foreign Visitors.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., April 21.—[Special.]—Possibilities of the restoration of the gold standard, Great Britain, and other nations to the gold standard by international agreement establishing new currency values were canvassed tonight in the first conversation to take place between President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain.

The discussion revolved around the devaluation of the dollar and the pound sterling on conditions calculated to stabilize the value of all currencies and cause an advance of commodity prices, a restoration of purchasing power and consequent revival of business.

Reciprocal Tariff Lowering.

Reciprocal lowering of tariff walls and other obstructions to international trade also came in for discussion.

Revision of the war debt settlements, so far as could be learned, was not pressed by Mr. MacDonald in this preliminary survey of the problems confronting the United States and Great Britain, though the prime minister indicated that he would unbosom himself on this subject in due time. He regards reduction, if not cancellation, of the debts due America as essential to any program for world economic recovery.

President Roosevelt made it clear that he does not intend to commit himself one way or the other on war debt revision until he sees how far the debtor countries are willing to go on monetary stabilization and tariff concessions.

Thus began the most momentous international negotiations since the Paris peace conference.

Pull World Out of Slump.

Upon the outcome of the conversations the President will have in the next few days with the British statesman, with former Premier Edouard Herriot of France, who is on the way to Washington, and with the envoys of other powers hangs the fate of concerted action to pull the world out of the economic depression.

If these exchanges of views result in the establishment of some common ground of action they will pave the way for a successful issue of the more formal negotiations that are to take place in the world economic conference called by Great Britain, which is scheduled to meet in London about June 15.

It was after dinner, as the smoke of the President's cigaret and the prime minister's pipe curled ceilingward, that the American and the Britisher began taking each other's measure in the contest of wits which always characterizes such international negotiations. At a late hour it was stated that Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. MacDonald were still in conference.

Two Powerful Figures.

Thus it was that two men of great personal charm representing the two most powerful nations on earth sat down together in the President's study to devise ways and means of ameliorating the economic plight of the world without sacrificing more than necessary the interests of each one's country.

On the one hand was the elder grizzled Briton, schooled in European statecraft, versed in the arts of diplomacy, master of a persuasiveness of altruistic motives which has carried him and his nation far in negotiations of this character.

Facing him was the younger American, freshly called to a position of tremendous power and colossal responsibility, a tyro in the technique of international negotiation but with a winning personality and disarming manner, a political sagacity and a determination that have been important factors in such success as he has achieved up to date.

Moved by Similar Motives.

These men sat down to talk together, each seeking the same end though by different means. Each declared the economic stabilization of the world his objective.

But Mr. MacDonald came primarily seeking the reduction if not cancellation of the war debts owed to the United States as a major factor in world recovery.

Mr. Roosevelt came to the conference holding that the restoration of stable currencies in all countries and a removal of tariff, exchange and other restrictions on international trade is the primary and war debt revision a secondary consideration.

It was the intention of Mr. Mac-

Donald, however, not to press the war debt question, in the preliminary conversations at least. He was willing to confine the negotiations to the economic questions stressed by Mr. Roosevelt.

It so happened that the events of the last few days while Mr. MacDonald was on the ocean had transformed in a marked degree the whole aspect of the White House conferences. The United States had gone off the gold standard and left the dollar to fend for itself in foreign exchange with the result that it has become as unstable as the pound sterling has been since Great Britain deserted the gold basis.

At once the pound became more unstable, the advantage of British producers in foreign trade disappeared and the British government found itself facing huge losses in its manipulations of the values of the pound and dollar through use of its 750 million dollar sterling stabilization fund. At once it became more important than ever to Great Britain that some agreement be reached restoring currency stability throughout the world.

That is what is meant when it is said that by withdrawing support of the dollar abroad Mr. Roosevelt had armed himself with a powerful weapon in the negotiations with the European powers about to take place.

Strengthens American Position.

Had it not been for such action America would have appeared in these conversations as a suppliant for return of all the powers to the gold standard, but without special influence to obtain the consent of the other nations. There were indications that America would be asked to make concessions to obtain this boon, concessions such as cancellation of the war debts.

Suddenly, however, America leaped into the same boat as Great Britain and the other depreciated currency countries and it became apparent to the others that it is no less important for them than for the United States to get back on a gold basis through some sort of international currency stabilization agreement.

It was disclosed earlier in the day, however, that Mr. Roosevelt would endeavor to disabuse Mr. MacDonald of any notion that the step taken by the administration to take the country off the gold standard was intended to arm the President with a powerful weapon in the negotiations.

Called Domestic Necessity.

The prime minister was to be assured that the move was forced by domestic considerations, among which was the imperative necessity of halting further deflation and getting commodity prices started upward and the danger that if the administration were not to initiate a controlled inflation of credit and the currency there would be no stemming of the movement in congress, led by the radicals, for an uncontrolled inflation.

The withdrawal of support of the dollar abroad, according to this explanation, was designed to produce a moderate inflationary effect upon domestic prices in exactly the same manner as the depreciation of the pound when England went off gold.

Mr. Roosevelt went into the conference with Mr. MacDonald also prepeared to explain with the utmost frankness the legislation sought by the administration in the Thomas bill authorizing the executive to bring about, if necessary, a controlled inflation of the currency.

Emphasis was laid by the President that the powers provided by the bill to inflate the currency by issuance of greenbacks, devaluation of the dollar and acceptance of silver in payment of war debts are purely discretionary, that it might not be necessary to resort to them, particularly if a satisfactory rise in price levels and revival of business were to take place without them.

Gold Content Clause Important.

The provision of the bill most pertinent to the White House negotiations is that authorizing the President to reduce the gold content of the dollar. Mr. Roosevelt desires this authority, as it was explained to Mr. MacDonald, in order to know how far he can go in negotiating an international agreement on the return of all countries to the gold standard.

Great Britain, for example, plans to return to the gold basis eventually with the pound sterling at perhaps 30 per cent less than its original value. Mr. Roosevelt wants to be able to agree that America will return to the gold standard with a dollar of a certain value, representing a reduction of the present gold content.

With such power to fix the value of the dollar the President believes he will be better able to reach an agreement on the stabilization of world currencies. Unless such an agreement is reached Mr. Roosevelt is prepared to remind the other powers that the consequences may be disastrous for all concerned.

A competition among nations in the depreciation of their own currencies may be the result. That would produce a condition of uncertainty or currency values that would stagnate foreign trade so long as traders could rely on foreign exchange values for any length of time.

There are signs that the effort to inflate credit will get under way even before enactment of the Thomas bill.

Expect Banks to Go Along.

Adherence of the federal reserve banks to the new inflationary plan was accepted as a foregone conclusion tonight, although the governors of the banks plan to meet again tomorrow and have not yet issued a statement. The banks will be ready to start their proposed open market operations when the whole plan is perfected.

Should pressure be necessary to force the reserve banks into line, the President has two weapons at his disposal. He can immediately fill the four vacancies on the reserve board with men whose opinions agree with his, or he can turn to the alternative plan of issuing greenbacks. The banks would be reluctant to see the greenbacks floated, because they would take the whole program out of the hands of the banks.

Economic logic of the Roosevelt inflation plan marches straight up to the eventual revaluation of the dollar, treasury department experts revealed today. Such a step will be necessary to consolidate the gains of the immediate open market and public works inflation, they said.

Gold Content to Be Cut.

After the first inflationary impulse of the open market operations has pushed prices to a new high level the gold content of the dollar will be cut to conform with and stabilize the new price level, the experts predicted. This policy will be much the same as that followed in France after the war, when the French government, following inflation, revalued the franc at a ratio of about 5 to 1.

Without such a revaluation the gains of the open market inflation might wear off and prices slump again. Revaluation, however, probably will insure for some time a higher price level. There is no assurance except the fundamental recovery of the country that the higher level can be held to indefinitely, the officials said.

Methods of revaluation for most of the leading countries of the world, leading to a general return to the modified gold standard and a new world price level will be one of the things discussed during the international conferences at the White House, it was said.

SOME SIDELIGHTS ON THIS INFLATION BUSINESS

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Everybody from office boy to president, and not excluding the wife of the company president and the office boy's girl friend, is trying these days to find out more about this thing called inflation and how it affects him personally.

The difficulty with most people is that they have "hard money" inhibitions. They have always been accustomed to the ups and downs of prices in terms of fixed and rigid money. That money itself should go up and down in terms of gold is about as understandable as a trombone with two sets of slides.

"What is the price of money?" they will say. "Why, that's absurd. Money is price."

As a matter of fact, money isn't price; it's a measure of price, and when it isn't anchored to gold it's like a rubber yardstick.

Pretty soon we may get accustomed to asking "What kind of money?" when we're told that the price of beans is twelve cents and then we'll be just as much at home with the palpitating dollar as a fly on a ship's elevator—but not until we get rid of hard money inhibitions, and they'll die hard.

But now that we've got our pockets full of it we might as well try to understand something about this "managed" currency and how we left the gold standard, and why.

To the outsider looking in, the dollar isn't a 100 cent dollar at all. The Frenchman, for example, who is still on the gold standard sees the dollar one day as an 86 cent dollar and the next as an 89 cent dollar.

American newspapers say that the pound, the franc, the lire, and the zloty "went up" in foreign exchange. The European papers say the dollar "went down." It all depends on the point of view.

There hasn't been any inflation yet. There's been great shouting and hair pulling on the stock exchange and the board of trade and quotations have skyrocketed, but all this has been just a curtain raiser. The boys have been trying to guess what's going to happen before it happens. That's the way they make their living—when they do.

The only change actually made to date in the money system is that our currency has been unhooked from gold. There is still about the same amount of money outstanding as there was a week ago. And there's still as much gold to back it up.

Uncle Sam has ordered, however, that the privilege of bringing in money and exchanging it for gold be suspended. It was suspended for residents of the United States last month. This week's ruling makes it likewise impossible to withdraw gold for shipment abroad.

Now the administration has introduced its "inflation" bill. Under this bill the President would be empowered to do many things to the currency of the United States. He might practically double the amount of currency outstanding, and in addition, if he so chose, reduce the gold content of the dollar as much as 50 per cent.

It is not suggested that the President intends to do all these things. The bill would merely give him permission to do them.

But that is highly important, for the President began last night one of the biggest poker games in history with the representatives of ten foreign nations, and he needs all the aces he can muster.

There are eleven nations in this poker game, the representatives of eleven nations now convening in Washington, and foreign trade is the stake.

For several years practically every nation in the world has been trying to lift its own business depression by exporting more goods and importing less, with the result that foreign trade has been rapidly drying up.

At first high tariffs were employed to keep the other nations' goods out, but soon European nations discovered that they could do the same thing more effectively by cheapening their money. This not only set up barriers against imports but it enabled cheap money nations with their reduced production costs to sneak over the tariff walls of countries still on the gold standard. And, still more important, it was a polite way of repudiating part of the national debt.

Great Britain, for example, with a pound that declined from $4.86 in gold to $3.40 in gold, found it pleasant to be paying off $4.86 debts with $3.40 pounds.

The type of financing in Europe during the war was like that of a man who takes $20 in gold to the bank, writes $1,000 worth of checks against his deposit, buys fireworks with the $1,000 and then sets off the fireworks.

The $1,000 borrowed to create prosperity for the fireworks industry was known as "wartime inflation."

Germany wrote off her wartime borrowings by inflation until each mark was worth one-trillionth of a dollar.

France didn't go so far. She's been paying her own people with 4 cent francs for what she borrowed in 20 cent francs. On her wartime borrowings from the United States she defaulted last December.

Before President Roosevelt and his guest poker players in Washington, therefore, there is expected to be brought up the question of revaluing all the currencies of the world. There isn't enough gold in the world to support prices in the various countries at levels where debtors can pay their creditors the amounts owed.

Of course, each nation can protect its own citizens by devaluating its currency, that is by reducing the amount of gold behind each unit or by detaching it from gold entirely and running a "managed" currency.

But in that way lies danger because each nation may enter into a big currency depreciation race. The country with the cheapest currency can produce goods cheapest and undersell competitors in the world market. This fluctuation in money, however, plays havoc with banking, insurance, wages and everything that depends on stability.

Practically all nations are agreed that a return to the gold standard is desirable but none agree concerning at what levels each shall go back on gold. On the decision depends each nation's share of foreign trade.

Besides there isn't enough gold in the world to support the post war inflated credit structure which has toppled. At the Washington conference and also at the international monetary conference to be held in London this summer suggestions will be advanced to make up for this deficiency in gold by adding to monetary gold enough silver or other metal to establish a sufficiently solid base for a rebuilt credit structure.

That means revaluation of gold in terms of all money. Until the other day the American dollar was worth a chunk of metal weighing 25.8 grains, nine-tenths of which was gold and one-tenth copper alloy. By international agreement, if the currencies of other nations were similarly treated, the gold content of this chunk of metal exchangeable for a dollar might be lowered.

That is what is called cheapening the dollar. It would be worth less gold. That means it would take more dollars to buy an ounce or a pound of gold. It would also require more dollars to buy a bushel of wheat, a can of beans, a side of bacon or an hour's labor, which means that prices would go up.

If prices go up the debts and taxes of farmers and other producers would become easier to pay because they would have more dollars to pay them with. The salaried white collar worker, however, would wait longer for relief, for salary adjustments would occur more slowly than price adjustments on commodities.

But unless foreign trade is to disappear almost entirely it is thought essential that revaluation of national currencies be done by international agreement. Otherwise, competitive cheapening of currencies would continue and lead to chaos.

Therefore, the coming international discussions will be watched with intense interest all over the world. With America's currency detached from gold President Roosevelt can answer the threats of other "managed" currency nations. It is an ace in his hand. Congress has been asked to give him other aces—authority to inflate the currency and to reduce the gold content of the American dollar.

He hasn't said to what extent he would exercise these privileges if they are given him. That would reveal his hand and he's playing poker with experts.

For that reason America will not know immediately what the dollar is going to be worth. Much depends upon the outcome of the international conferences.

Until the future value of the dollar can be approximated producers and speculators can only guess concerning future values of commodities and stocks.

One thing is fairly certain, however. The United States is not going back to a dollar worth a chunk of metal weighing 25.8 grains, nine-tenth of which is gold. Which probably means that prices will continue to head upward.

WELCOME GIVEN GUEST PREMIER IS INFORMAL ONE

he considered "discreet," and the first one asked was whether he intended to discuss the war debts with the President. Mr. MacDonald replied that the question of debts is one of the pictures of the landscape that must be surveyed, and he gave little doubt that he would press the discussion on this subject rather strenuously.

In response to a question as to whether England would coöperate with the United States in reëstablishing gold standards on revised scales, Mr. MacDonald said that the United Kingdom had been hoping for a long time to discuss with the other nations the best means of establishing the stability and certainty of money.

ALL POMP IS LACKING

BY JOHN STEELE.

Washington, D. C., April 21.—[Special.]—James Ramsay MacDonald, prime minister of Britain, arrived in America today for a week-end chat with President Roosevelt over the world's troubles.

On his last visit to America, three years ago, to talk to President Hoover about the naval conference he was received with all the pomp due to the head of a great nation. A salute of 19 guns was fired at Governor's island. He was driven up Broadway and 5th avenue in New York, escorted by motorcycle policemen with sirens screaming. At Washington he was met by a cavalry escort and taken to the White House.

Today, coming not as a prime minister but as a simple missionary of peace and as chairman of the world economic conference, there was no pomp and little circumstance. Instead of landing at the Battery and driving through New York he was taken on the municipal tug Macom to Jersey City.

No guns were fired and only a few officials escorted him to the special training waiting at the B. & O. depot.

In Washington today there was no cavalry escort and only a small crowd. He drove to the White House and settled down at once with his daughter, Ishbel, as the week-end guest of President and Mrs. Roosevelt.

The last day of the Berengaria's voyage was an anxious one for the prime minister and staff of experts. Only the most fragmentary news reached the ships, and until the Macom came alongside this morning with New York newspapers no one knew more than the mere fact that the United States had gone off gold.

The prime minister was met at quarantine by Ambassador Sir Ronald Lindsay and Warren Delano Robins of the state department. At Washington he was met by Secretary Hull and Louis Howe.

The party drove straight to the White House, where the premier is accompanied by only one secretary, Jan Barlow. Sir Robert and Lady Vansittart, Sir Frederick Leith Ross have gone to the British embassy.

Plan Exchange of Views.

So far the prime minister has refused to discuss the objects of his visit except in the most general terms. At quarantine he gave out a formal statement which said little except that he had come to have a frank exchange of views with the President on economic and political questions.

He had prepared a tentative agenda in which tariffs and trade restrictions took first place, monetary standards second, and international debts last. Today monetary standards have leaped into first place.

Already the drop in the dollar from three fifty to about four dollars to the pound has saved Britain millions.

Woman Fails to Testify Against Accused Gangster

George Downs, south side gangster, was dismissed on a charge of disorderly conduct yesterday by Municipal Judge Leon Edelman when Miss Laura Wojcik, who charged him with beating her during a drunken party in her apartment at 4636 Drexel boulevard, failed to appear against him.

Oak Park Cops Hunt Shiny Shoes and Solve a Theft

Mrs. Helen Harrison, 339 Clifton avenue, Oak Park, notified Oak Park police yesterday that a pair of her husband's shoes had been stolen from the front steps. She had polished the shoes, she said, and placed them on the steps to dry. Policemen Burt Barsema, son of the Oak Park police chief, and Clarence Mau found a circular in the mail box at the Harrison home. They toured the neighborhood until they discovered a man, who was limping in freshly polished shoes, delivering circulars. Arrested, the man identified himself as Joe Caldwell, 32 years old, 330 Milwaukee avenue. He was locked up.

FRANCE MAY QUIT GOLD STANDARD; FEARS FOR TRADE

Roosevelt Is Criticized for U. S. Action.

PARIS, April 21.—(AP)—French fears for diminishing commerce brought the first public admission today that France also may be obliged to "maneuver" for a better monetary position.

Although a government spokesman said that the government and the Bank of France are "undisturbed" by developments in the United States and that France is determined to maintain the gold standard, the possibility that the franc may be involved was voiced by Leon Chavenon, director of the leading afternoon financial paper, L'Information.

If the determination of France to maintain a gold basis, he wrote, "does not bring good results, it will be necessary, according to the circumstances, for France to maneuver in her turn."

Will "Wait and See."

A firm determination to "wait and see" was expressed by the government and the Bank of France.

A possibility of coöperation by England, France, and Germany was scouted in the highest quarters, where it was said the position of the three countries was at too great a variance for such action.

France is on the gold standard, it was pointed out, while England is off and relations between the Reichsbank of Germany with other central banks have been somewhat strained since the return of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht to the presidency of the Reichsbank.

Cabinet to Act Today.

The cabinet tomorrow will review the entire situation.

At a conference of Finance Minister Georges Bonnet, Clement Moret, governor of the Bank of France, and Premier Daladier it was agreed that it is unlikely anything will be done particularly concerning tariff increases until after the talks at the White House.

It was pointed out that a vote of parliament would be needed for a gold embargo, France already being on a gold bullion basis.

Those countries which still are on the gold standard at present are defending their currencies, with France leading the way, but it was stated in governmental sources that no joint action or agreements were being effected.

Herriot Accepts Situation.

S. S. ILE DE FRANCE, April 21.—(AP)—Former Premier Herriot and his advisers, who are en route to the United States to represent France in economic discussions with President Roosevelt, have decided to accept the action of America in going off the gold standard in a sporting spirit and have agreed that "we must go right ahead and see what we can do."

Herriot apparently has gotten over his initial bewilderment, and tonight he and Prof. Charles Rist, the economist and former vice governor of the Bank of France, who is in his entourage, were particularly cheerful.

They were represented as feeling that President Roosevelt had been driven to take the gold embargo step through political necessity and they were said to appreciate the President's position fully.

Prof. Rist, it was understood, takes the position that the Washington discussions should proceed as planned and that every effort should be made to prepare for the coming world economic conference in London. The Frenchmen now are determined to make the Washington talks successful, if possible.

Germany to Stay on Gold.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, April 21.—The German mark will not follow the example of the dollar. This was the substance of a statement issued today by the Reichsbank.

A majority of the press today urged German debtors to America to buy dollars and repay as much of their indebtedness as possible. Dollars will never be as cheap again as they are now, it is declared.

The Reichsbank statement said that the "organic tendency of the dollar is upward. The present American measures are not due to international movements of trade and capital, but are enforced for the sake of a concrete aim."

Aims to Protect Savings.

Should the depreciation of the dollar be continued, however, Germany's solvency would be endangered, since her export trade would be annihilated, the statement said. To allay the fears of those who remember the terrible days of inflation here, the Reichsbank says it clings to the principles of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, who recently said:

"The Reichsbank is an unshakable force which unswervingly will do everything to protect savings."

The Boersen Zeitung believes the coming world economic conference is in danger of failure before it even starts. Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung predicts competition between England and America to depreciate their currencies. It points out that this may help trade partially and temporarily, but will kill the trade of the debtor nations, who thus will become unable to repay their debts to England and America.

Japan to Ask Action on China.

TOKIO, April 21.—(AP)—Viscount Kikujior Ishii, Japan's representative at President Roosevelt's economic discussions in Washington, said today that a vital portion of his mission would be to convince American and Chinese leaders alike of the absolute necessity of an early joint effort by Japan and China to solve their mutual problems. The viscount will sail for the United States May 4.

From the viewpoint of Japan the outstanding world problem, economically as well as politically, is the chaotic condition of China, he said.

"If the present chaos and civil war continue, China will fall into a hopeless condition, thus confronting the world with a problem far more serious than the Manchurian question," the viscount added.

T. V. Soong, who has been selected to represent China at the Washington talks, arrived at Yokohama today on the liner President Jefferson. He remained secluded in his cabin, as he did yesterday at Kobe, seeing no Japanese officials. Dr. Soong will sail for Seattle tomorrow.

FIVE DAY WEEK FOR CITY WORKERS IN BOSTON; PAID LESS

Boston, Mass., April 21.—[Special.]—A five day week unexpectedly established by Mayor Curley today in all municipal departments other than fire, police, institutions and hospitals, makes city workers the only beneficiaries of the virtual cessation of municipal service on Saturdays and Sundays hereafter.

The mayor's decision, to which his advisers were reported strongly opposed, is said to give Boston the distinction of being the first important American city to inaugurate the five day week plan.

The mayor issued an executive order reducing by 5, 10 and 15 per cent the salaries of 18,537 city and county employés.

C. S. CASTLE JR. AND DAUGHTER OF BANKER ELOPE

Charles Sumner Castle Jr., a broker, and Miss Dorothy J. Boyles, daughter of George R. Boyles, president of the Madison-Kedzie Trust and Savings bank, eloped to Waukegan yesterday and were married. The ceremony was performed by Justice of the Peace J. P. Haney.

Mr. Castle is 25 years old, and is a member of the brokerage firm of Jordan & Castle, 175 West Jackson boulevard. His bride is 19 years old. They lived respectively at 647 Linden avenue, Oak Park, and 915 North Euclid avenue, Oak Park. Their families have been friends for years.

The elder Mr. Castle received a telegram from Kenosha last night, informing him of the marriage. He said he was a "little surprised" but that he had known of the intended marriage and was pleased.

WOMAN DIES AFTER FALL.

Injuries she sustained when she fell in the home of her employer, William Collins, 3314 Sheridan road, yesterday caused the death in the John B. Murphy hospital of Mrs. Margaret Schneider, 53 years old, a maid.

BOY, 13, POISONED; STEPFATHER AND TWO WOMEN HELD

Three persons were being held by Hammond police last night in connection with the death of Anthony Braubender, 13 year old school boy, in whose body chemists found enough arsenic, they reported, "to kill three men." An insurance angle is being investigated.

Those held are Mrs. Daisy Harmon, 53 years old, of 543 Truman boulevard, a widow; William Fox, 29 years old, 534 Indiana street, the boy's stepfather, and Mrs. William Fox, 29, his mother, all of Hammond. The mother is held as a material witness. Mrs. Harmon, police say, holds three life insurance policies on Anthony amounting to $4,200.

Anthony died Sunday, an hour after being taken to St. Margaret's hospital in Hammond by Mrs. Fox and Dr. E. L. Eggers. Dr. Eggers notified Lake County Coroner Andrew Hofmann and the latter caused a medical examination which resulted in the arsenic report. Coroner Hofmann then ordered the arrests.

Mrs. Fox said her husband forced her to board Anthony out and that the boy had been living with Mrs. Harmon.

WANAMAKER JR. WASTES FORTUNE, EX-WIFE CLAIMS

Norristown, Pa., April 21.—(AP)—Capt. John Wanamaker Jr., son of the late Rodman Wanamaker, today was accused of "frittering away $1,200,000 since 1928" in a court fight to prevent reduction of a $27,500 yearly support order.

The charge was made by Joseph L. Gilfillan, Philadelphia, counsel for Wanamaker's divorced wife, the former Pauline Disston, who shares the support money with two children, John, 14, and a daughter, Fernada, 10.

"Capt. Wanamaker has frittered away $1,200,000 since 1928 and in that time has paid only $100,000 for the support of his wife and two children," Gilfillan told Judge Harold G. Knight in Montgomery County court.

The attorney declared that Wanamaker, since his father's death in March, 1928, has received total income "in excess of $1,700,000."

NORTH CAROLINA ASKS ARREST OF HARRY L. DRAKE

Accuse Chicagoan of 'Loan Shark' Conspiracy

A bench warrant for the arrest of Harry L. Drake, 1500 Lake Shore drive, was issued yesterday afternoon by Judge Joseph L. McGarry after he was informed that an indictment had been returned in Raleigh, N. C., charging Drake with conspiracy to "evade and nullify" the usury laws.

Representatives of the southern state said that Drake owns thirty-four "loan shark" offices in North Carolina cities, and that perhaps 30,000 workers were being forced by these offices to pay from 350 to 400 per cent interest on loans.

State to Ask Extradition.

A requisition from the governor of North Carolina has been forwarded to Gov. Horner at Springfield and a hearing on the extradition of Drake probably will be held early next week. Attorney Floyd E. Thompson, former chief justice of the Illinois Supreme court, counsel for the accused Chicagoan, announced that his client would surrender on the bench warrant today. It was indicated that Drake will fight against being sent to North Carolina for trial.

F. R. McNinch Jr. of Charlotte, N. C., is in charge of the effort to obtain his return. Mr. McNinch said that Dimmick D. Drake, wealthy father of the Chicagoan and now a resident of France, and D. M. Battle, one of young Drake's office managers, were also indicted, and that Battle has been arrested.

Also Represents Governor.

"The junior chambers of commerce in a number of North Carolina cities took up the fight against the loan shark evil some months ago," he added. "Besides these I represent the governor and the North Carolina Civic association, which was formed especially to drive out voracious salary buyers.

"Shortly after the indictment was returned, in January, we heard that Drake was in Asheville, where he has a fine home. He had gone into Tennessee, however, before we could catch him."

North Carolina has no small loans law, like the one in Illinois, and lenders there have extremely high rates. Borrowers are forced to sign wage assignments and pay approximately 30 per cent a month for money. Mr. McNinch estimated that the companies which Drake is alleged to own have taken millions annually from North Carolina. The debtors, he said, were mostly mill workers.

Better Business Bureau Aids.

The Chicago Better Business bureau has been coöperating with the Carolinians in an investigation of the Drake interests. They learned that he has an entire floor at 35 East Wacker drive for his Chicago organization, the Commercial Accounting company. The Chicago concern is not, according to the information the bureau has, engaged in the small loan business.

Raids on Chicago loan shark offices were recently made at the request of the bureau, which is still seeking to find and arrest absentee owners of such businesses.

Mr. McNinch said that he had information that Drake has loan offices in seventeen states, covering most of the south and much of the west. Drake is only 36 years old. He served in the army during the world war and has since been in the real estate and the loan businesses. He is a member of the Illinois Athletic, Hamilton, Sunset Ridge, and the Vista Del Lago clubs.

KILL NEWSPAPER CIRCULATION MAN AND KIDNAP GIRL

Frank X. Holbrook, 54 years old, loop circulation division boss for the Daily Times, was shot and killed early today in front of 3110 West Madison street by one of three men who forced Holbrook's car to the curb. The gunmen then dragged a woman who was riding with Holbrook from the car and forced her into their machine, driving away at high speed.

Sergt. Frank Donohue of the coroner's office, who was driving in his own car, witnessed the shooting and kidnaping and attempted to chase the murderers, but was outdistanced. He returned to the scene of the shooting and found Holbrook lying dead in the street beside his car, which had two bullet holes in it.

Near the body was an automatic pistol from which the numbers had been filed. Lieut. Phil Carroll of the detective bureau said he believed the pistol was Holbrook's.

Holbrook had been a newspaper circulation man in Chicago for more than thirty years. He was a division boss for the Chicago Herald and later worked in the same capacity for the Chicago Journal. He lived at 200 North Parkside avenue and was married.

building," the witness said. "Loeber wrote me that the proceeds of the issue were not segregated as they should have been, but were put into a general fund and used to pay contractors. A balance of $86,000 was used by Leight & Co. themselves for their own accounts."

Mr. Oglesby was asked to offer suggestions to aid the committee in curbing receivership abuses.

"I do not set myself up as an adviser," he said, "but as a ruralist, and from the point of view of a man who tries to have common sense, from the point of view of the plain men of the streets—suckers, if you please—I think it would be proper for the committee to ascertain if there has been infringement of the postal laws."

Wild applause greeted this statement.

"In my opinion," he continued, "there should be a mandatory time limit for any plan of reorganization. Furthermore, the bondholders should be given a chance to name some representatives on the committee."

A Query by Legislator.

At this point Representative W. O. Edwards of Danville interrupted to ask if the witness knew how bondholders' committees are selected.

"No," Oglesby replied.

"Well, I've been here three days and haven't been able to find out," Edwards remarked drily.

"And you're a younger man than I am," Oglesby said.

Oglesby continued his suggestions, declaring lists of bondholders should be made public. He said such lists might be deposited with the state auditor.

"I believe gentlemen in the bond business have not been in the business for their health," he continued. "In view of the fact that every house of issue gets a generous underwriting fee they should not arbitrarily withhold the lists of the bondholders for another fee."

Testimony on Investments.

Mr. Oglesby said he had purchased bonds from Halsey, Stuart & Co., Lackner-Butz, George M. Foreman & Co., Leight & Co., Cochran & McCluer, H. O. Stone & Co., Greenebaum Sons Investment company, and the Central Republican Bank and Trust company.

In his testimony Assistant Corporation Counsel Sullivan disclosed that the bond circular appraisal on the 333 North Michigan avenue building as issued by Greenebaum Sons Trust company valued the building and land at $9,166,068.

"The full valuation of the board of assessors was $2,019,158 on the land and $3,227,808 on the building, a total of $5,246,966," Mr. Sullivan said. "This is $3,930,102 less than the circular's appraisal. The assessor's figures are shown to be more accurate by the records of the city building commissioner, in which the cost of the building was given at $3,850,000.

Cites Another Building Appraisal.

The circular of S. W. Straus & Co. on the Straus building gave the value of land at $6,884,000 and the building at $14,112,000, a total of $20,996,000, Mr. Sullivan said. This circular, he asserted, was issued in connection with the sale of six million dollars' worth of gold debentures after a nine million dollar first mortgage already had been placed on the building.

"The assessor in 1928 valued the land at $5,472,037 and the building at $6,910,889," Mr. Sullivan testified. "The total is about 12 million dollars, or $8,613,000 less than the circular appraisal. Yet the officials of the building objected to taxes on the assessors' valuation and now owe somewhere around $444,572 in taxes."

Mr. Sullivan also gave figures on the 1400 Lake Shore Drive building from a circular of George M. Forman company in 1926. The valuation was $6,198,333 for land and building, as compared to $3,226,894 fixed by the assessor. The witness said that first mortgage bonds of six million dollars were sold.

As a suggestion to curb inflation of appraisals for bonding purposes Mr. Sullivan urged that real estate bonds be examined by the blue sky commission. Real estate bonds do not now come under the act, he said.

Swanson Tells of Losses.

Former State's Attorney Swanson told of losses on investments with Leight & Co. He has been named as a member of the bondholders' protective committee on Leight issues within the last six weeks. He was asked by Assistant Attorney General George S. Lavin to tell how he became a member of the committee.

"After I became one of the army of the unemployed through a vote of the people," he began, "I was invited to a meeting of bondholders. They requested three positions on the committee. Members of the committee who were not bondholders were reluctant, but finally acquiesced.

"I must tell you that three years ago there were two committees, one formed by Leight, and another group. Each had attorneys. One was represented by Gottlieb & Schwartz and the other by Kirkland, Fleming, Green & Martin. They finally kicked off several members and formed one committee but kept the two groups of lawyers."

Mr. Swanson was unable to tell of the workings of the committee, he said, because he had not had time to examine the records.

His Suggestions for Care.

To remedy the present situation Mr. Swanson suggested that an official similar to the state auditor be created to supervise the sale of bonds. He also urged the appointment of a board of three, to be named by the governor, the attorney general, and the state's attorney, to watch over all issues.

"As it is now, by the time anything illegal gets to the office of the state's attorney the statutes of limitations have lapsed so that offenders cannot be prosecuted on charges of operating a confidence game or conspiracy," he said. "If the state's attorney were represented at the time issues are floated and during foreclosures he could stop anything which was not strictly correct."

Mr. Swanson was followed on the stand by John W. Ellis, master in chancery in Cook county for 26 years, who suggested that laws relating to sale of foreclosed properties be amended so that a reference need not be made to a master. This, he said, would save large sums for bondholders.

Two other witnesses were Attorney Erwin Cowen, who told how bondholders were "frozen out" in a reorganization of property at 4220-28 South Michigan avenue, and Clarence F. Johnson, manager of the Transportation building at 608 South Dearborn street. Johnson said that though the Chicago Title and Trust company was receiver for the building he did all the work of manager and receiver for $14,500, while the trust company was awarded fees of $50,500.

At the night session Mr. Meyer told the committee the $6,000,000 bond issue on the three hotels, known as the Lott hotels, was floated by Greenebaum Sons Trust company. For this the company received a fee of $600,000 and its attorneys got $50,000, he said.

Since the foreclosure on the properties on April 20, 1928, there have been four receivers and 41 lawyers involved in various phases of the proceedings. For 11 days as receiver the Chicago Title and Trust company was paid $1,750. For about two years the defunct Garard Trust company received $32,500. The defunct Foreman Trust company got $34,000 for almost 14 months' service, and the present receiver, Connery, who has served 22 months, had received $42,000 up to yesterday, Meyer said.

Michael F. Ryan, as attorney for all the receivers, was said to have received $67,500.

During the period of receivership the gross income of the property has dropped from $1,515,000 to $800,000, Meyer said. He declared that the heavy drain of fees had prevented reorganization of the property and also prevented owners from settling with the bondholders to the benefit of the security holders and the owners.

Criticizes Present Receiver.

He was questioned by Assistant Attorneys General Skinner and John W. Brabnet-Smith on the management by the various receivers. He said he had no complaint to make of the first receivers. He was asked if he had any complaint against Connery.

A.—Well, he discharged all the old help and put in incompetent help—political employés. Among these were relatives of a judge. We were in court this morning fighting his fees. Judge Burke cut his fees and the attorney's fees from $23,000 to $8,000.

Q.—Are you seeking his removal? A.—We are bringing a number of actions. In the Appellate court we are contending that the charter of the Greenebaum company did not empower it to make real estate loans; we are raising the question of the guarantee of the bonds by the Chicago Title and Trust company to determine how far the guarantee should go, and we are fighting Connery at every turn.

At this point Assistant Attorney General Lavin took up the questioning.

Q. Who is Connery? A.—A former fire commissioner.

Q.—Has he any hotel experience? A.—Only as a guest.

Q.—You spoke of political appointees or relatives of a judge, who are they? A.—One draws $750 a month—a member of the auditing firm of McCoy, Holland, Arndt & Sweeney.

Q.—Who is the judge? A.—Philip L. Sullivan.

Q.—Are they good auditors? A.—I could get some for $400 a month, but they have assistants who get $600.

Q.—What other political appointees have you? A.—Another relative of a judge.

Q.—Who is the judge? A.—Judge Sullivan.

Q.—Do you know of any other political appointees? A.—Not at this minute. I haven't had time to look into all of them. I'm told there are others.

The witness was excused.

Other Witnesses Heard.

Other witnesses at the night session were Estelle M. Wells, an attorney, and Attorney Newell Mecartney. Attorney Wells told of representing clients who own a cooperative apartment on which they have met all obligations but have been denied rental because the building is in the hands of a receiver. Attorney Mecartney charged that a receiver for the Kenwood Apartment hotel at 6318 Kenwood avenue had spent $41,396 in a year to collect $20,756.

Mecartney was the last witness. The hearing will continue this morning in the council chambers.

CAPONE CASE BRIEF FILED IN U. S. COURT

New Orleans, La., April 21.—(AP)—The government today filed its brief in the United States Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals on the appeal of Al Capone, Chicago gangster, from the action of the Atlanta, Ga., federal court denying his application for a writ of habeas corpus.

Capone is serving a ten year sentence in the Atlanta penitentiary for income tax evasion. He sought the habeas corpus under the statute of limitation, a question which the government in its brief today held should have been introduced at, or prior to, his trial in Chicago.

Arguments in the case will be heard here next Wednesday.

GREEN MAPS ANSWER

United States District Attorney Dwight H. Green arrived in Washington yesterday to confer with other officials who will oppose the appeal of Al Capone for freedom on a writ of habeas corpus, which will be heard in New Orleans Wednesday. Capone's lawyers contend the statute of limitations had expired before the gangster was indicted and tried for income tax evasion. Mr. Green will return to Chicago late next week.

PEACE URGED BY G. O. P. TO RUN FOR PROBATE JUDGE

Charles E. Peace was slated for nomination as Republican candidate for Gov. Henry Horner's old place on the Probate bench, at a meeting of the Republican county organization last night at the Bismarck hotel, but his acceptance is uncertain. Mr. Peace, who is 42d ward committeeman, said his law partner is ill and asked that some one else be named, but the committee told him to "sleep over it" and give his answer this afternoon, when the county convention is to meet at the Sherman hotel to pick a nominee.

No candidates were picked last night to fill the six vacant places on the Republican ticket for the Circuit court caused by the withdrawal of five Republican judges who will run on the Democratic fusion ticket, and of John A. Sbarboro, who will not run at all. A string of possible candidates appeared before the committee and the word was that the six may not be named until next week.

Among the names presented were those of Charles S. Eaton, John A. Swanson, James H. Turner, Robert Pradburn, Henry J. Samuels, Lloyd Moody, Noble W. Lee, Alfred O. Erickson and Charles Center Case.

FACTOR FREE, BUT POLICE RENEW HUNT FOR GANG

Find Father Deliberately Misled Authorities.

"We want the kidnapers," Capt. Daniel Gilbert, chief investigator for the state's attorney's office, declared last night as he renewed his investigation of the kidnaping of Jerome Factor, son of John [Jake the Barber] Factor, who was released early yesterday after having been held eight days for ransom.

Capt. Gilbert said the fact that Jerome, a 19 year old pre-legal student at Northwestern university, was unharmed and that the father, who was reputed to have made $7,000,000 in fraudulent stock selling in England, claims he paid no ransom, would not cause any letup in the police investigation.

Capt. Gilbert said it was impossible for him to be sure whether Factor had paid ransom, because Factor had withheld information and made false statements to police throughout the time of young Factor's captivity.

Fakes Ransom Letter.

Factor admitted yesterday that the ransom letter he gave to Gilbert was a fake, written by himself for the purpose of confusing the kidnapers and causing them to suspect each other of double-crossing.

A shooting at Millard and Ogden avenues at 9 o'clock Thursday night prevented what otherwise might have been a meeting of Factor with the kidnapers, Gilbert said he had been informed yesterday. Factor was accompanied at the time by Lieut. Leo Carr of the Grand Crossing station, who was assigned to the case after it was learned he had become interested in it because of his friendship with Factor.

Factor said he had made several attempts to follow orders given him by the kidnapers and had driven to designated places, but failed to meet the kidnapers. Thursday night he and Lieut. Carr were again following the kidnapers' orders and were driving west on Ogden avenue and had just sighted a car which they believed contained the agents of the kidnapers when the shooting started, according to the information obtained by Capt. Gilbert.

Open Fire on Policemen.

Sergts. James Kehoe and Marshall Pigeon of the Lawndale police station, driving in a car owned by Pigeon, encountered a small car containing three men. Without warning or reason, Pigeon reported, the men in the other car started firing at them. They returned the fire and pursued the other car south in Millard avenue.

As the story was told to Capt. Gilbert, the policemen and the supposed bandits, firing at each other, passed the car in which Factor and Lieut. Carr were riding and also the car in which the supposed kidnapers were observing Factor and speculating on whether it would be safe to drive alongside and ask Factor for the ransom money. When the shooting started the supposed kidnapers sped away. Factor and Lieut. Carr turning to the Morrison hotel headquarters.

Suspect Hoodlums' Motives.

Capt. Gilbert was of the opinion that Murray Humphreys, public enemy and successor of Al Capone as gang chieftain, and "Golfbag Sam" Hunt, who were in charge of the elder Factor's "Secret Six" engaged in hunting the boy, were interested chiefly in getting Factor's money, either as agents of the kidnapers or as "hijackers" of the ransom prisoner of another gang. Factor, however, relied on them and on Lieut. Carr, and deliberately misled Capt. Gilbert and Chief of Detectives Schoemaker.

From Capt. Gilbert's office came the opinion that Factor, Humphreys, and Hunt had "framed" the arrest of Archie Brown, Ted Patterson, and Edward Strauss to throw police off the trail and to give them an opportunity to handle their own business unwatched. Yesterday those three prisoners, two of whom had been identified by young Factor's mother as having been seen by her lurking in front of her home on two nights preceding the kidnaping, and one of whom had been further identified as having tried to communicate with a friend of Factor, were released.

The other prisoners taken by Lieut. Frank Johnson of the state's attorney's office were ordered released when a writ of habeas corpus was obtained for them. Michael McGovern, one of them, was turned over to the government on a dry law warrant.

Boy Contradicts Father.

It was when Chief Schoemaker was compelled to release Brown, Patterson, and Strauss that the question arose of further police interest in the case. Chief Schoemaker said it was a closed incident to him. But Capt. Gilbert said the state would demand the facts and that he would keep after the kidnapers.

Jerome said he had been treated kindly by the kidnapers. His story contradicted statements previously made by his father, including a statement that he had received no communication, directly or indirectly from his son, or any instructions from the kidnapers.

"I was at the Morrison hotel for dinner with my father a week ago Wednesday night," Jerome said. "I drove to the garage near by home and picked up the boy who was to take my car back. When I walked into the court of the building where I live with my mother [Mrs. Leonard Marcus] two men seized me and took me out with them to their car. They took off my glasses and I couldn't see. We drove around for a while and they asked where they could get in touch with my dad.

Victim Reads About Self.

"'Well, kid, we are going to find out how much your dad thinks of you,' they told me. After about two hours I was carried into a building and up a flight of stairs and put in a dark room which contained a mattress and a pillow. I was kept there until last night. Whenever any of the men came in the room they had pillow slips over their heads, with holes for their eyes. They let me read magazines and newspapers and soon I was reading about myself.

"They had me write a letter to my father telling him it would cost $100,000 to get me released. I wrote a letter to him every day at their orders, or at my own request, and they said they would deliver all of them. I know now they did.

"Last night they told me they couldn't get any money for me. Previously they said they had tried to meet my father but every time he drove along streets named by them there was another machine following his car and they told me they thought he was trying to get them killed. They were afraid some one with a machine gun might be crouched on the floor of dad's car.

Freed on Devon Avenue.

"They finally took me out, put adhesive tape over my eyes and put my glasses in my pocket. After driving around for an hour or more they told me to get out of the car and wait a few minutes till they were gone and then walk a few blocks and I would come to a street car line. When I took the tape off my eyes and walked a bit I found I was on Devon avenue and a cab came along and I hailed it and rode home. They had not taken $15 I had in my pocket."

The victim said he would be unable to identify any of the men who held him, and that he hadn't any idea of the location of the place where he had been kept. Police suspected, however, that inasmuch as he was released on the north side he had been imprisoned on the south side—perhaps in the territory where Quirk operates as head of one section of Murray Humphrey's syndicate.

PLAN CAMPAIGN TO MODIFY BEER LAW IN OAK PARK

Oak Park restaurant owners combined yesterday to fight for modification of the village ordinance which permits the sale of beer, but bans the drinking of it in the place of purchase.

At the meeting, held at 130 North Marion street, they retained L. A. Westcott as their attorney to begin legal proceedings in the near future, if necessary. Meantime, on Attorney Westcott's advice, the owners will obey the village's beer regulations.

The ban against drinking on the premises, declared the café proprietors, has resulted in driving prospective customers to restaurants outside the village where they may have beer with their meals.

California Governor Signs Bill for Dry Repeal Vote

Sacramento, Cal., April 21.—(AP)—The bill calling for a referendum for a convention to repeal the eighteenth amendment was signed today by Gov. James Rolph Jr.

REEVES CHARGES BREWERS BACK REPEAL DELAY

Wets Assail Democrats in Legislature.

Leaders of Chicago's anti-prohibition forces returned from Springfield yesterday voicing indignation at the action of the Democratic senators on Tuesday in refusing to vote for a convention to ratify repeal of the 18th amendment at the forthcoming judicial elections of June 5, and then supporting an amendment to put the convention over until April 8 of next year.

Col. Ira L. Reeves, commander of the Crusaders, voiced suspicion that the brewers, unwilling to share the beverage traffic with the vintners and distillers by hastening repeal, had exercised their influence to delay the ratification convention as long as possible. By accepting the policy of dalliance, he said, the Democrats of the senate were jeopardizing the repeal cause throughout the country.

Challenges Explanation.

"The explanation of the downstate Democrats that they did not want their judicial tickets plunged into the huge vote likely to respond to a call for a repeal vote is either cynical or dishonest," said Col. Reeves. "Since when has the Democartic party found it necessary to pursue a policy of scheduling judicial tickets to be put over at an election where a small vote is assured?"

"The explanation does not suffice," he declared. "The more probable cause of the desire for delaying repeal may probably be traced to the brewers. Naturally they want to prolong their present monopoly as long as possible, and apparently they are lining up the downstate dry legislators to accomplish that purpose."

Aside from the downstate drys Col. Reeves singled out Senator Frank McDermott, a brewer of the 4th (Chicago) district, saying he could not understand how a legislator of his business connections could came back to his stockyards constituency and justify his vote to defer the repeal convention a year.

States Watching Illinois.

"This program will jeopardize national repeal," Col. Reeves declared. "Twenty-five other states have their eyes on Illinois and the drys in those states are boring in with the story that with beer restored the people are satisfied and repeal has no public demand. The drys will cite the dilatory attitude of the Illinois senate to prove their contention."

Capt. W. W. Bayley, Chicago chief of the Association Against the 18th Amendment, was inclined to support Col. Reeves' theory of a brewers' alliance with dry legislators, while pointing out there was no tangible proof.

"The brewers and distillers have always been at each others' throats," he said, "and it would not be surprising to have proof turned up that such is the situation now. In any event the Springfield situation is in a mess from the standpoint of the repeal cause. The principal trouble seems to be lack of Democratic leadership."

A. D. Plamondon, head of the Illinois Association Opposed to the 18th Amendment, discounted the theory that the brewers are trying to block Illinois ratification of repeal. Such a policy would be against their own interests, he maintained.

"I cannot conceive of the brewers being so shortsighted," Mr. Plamondon said. "If they are blocking ratification they should be fought at every turn."

Convicted 'Boy Banker' Still in His Job as Bank Receiver

Frank J. Karel, known as the boy banker of Berwyn, who was indicted last year on an embezzlement charge and convicted of bribery two months ago, has been serving throughout the full period as receiver of a defunct state bank, it became known yesterday.

The Frank Karel who was indicted by a federal grand jury on a charge of embezzlement five days after the closing of the First American National Bank and Trust company of Berwyn last June, is the same Frank Karel whom State Auditor Oscar Nelson had appointed receiver of the closed Lyons State bank at Lyons, Ill., one year earlier, it was learned.

Notwithstanding the federal action and a subsequent state indictment in which Karel was charged with employing the embezzled funds to bribe thirteen Berwyn officials, he has continued to draw $150 a month as receiver of the Lyons bank until now. Karel was found guilty on the bribery charge on Feb. 17 by Judge Philip L. Sullivan and is now appealing from the conviction.

Bank President at 29.

In 1928, at the age of 29 years, Karel became president of the First National bank of Berwyn. When outlying banks began to grow shaky in 1931, Karel put through a merger involving his bank and two others, calling the merged institution the First American National Bank and Trust company, with himself as chairman of the board.

On July 29, 1931, the Lyons bank closed its doors, carrying listed resources of $399,234 and deposits of $243,402. Karel, who was being hailed as the savior of Berwyn banking, was named as receiver and John S. O'Donell was appointed as his attorney.

Just eleven months later, the First American National of Berwyn also closed. Within five days national bank examiners had uncovered evidence which resulted in Karel's indictment by the federal grand jury on charges of falsifying records and misappropriating $10,000. At the time, Karel is reported to have stated publicly in Berwyn that he used the money to bribe Berwyn city officials.

Indicted for Bribing Officials.

Byron C. Thorpe, former mayor of Berwyn, demanded an investigation, as a result of which Karel was indicted in the state courts for distributing the bribe among three aldermen, nine former aldermen and the former city attorney for the suburb. Two former aldermen turned state's evidence and are said to have testified that Karel distributed the money among the council members to pass an ordinance enabling the city to rent for a period of years the building which Karel's bank occupied before the merger, and finally to purchase the building for a city hall at a price of $187,000.

At the trial before Judge Sullivan, Karel declared the $10,0000 was a "campaign contribution." One of the former aldermen, who had been promised immunity, surprised the state by corroborating Karel's story. Judge Sullivan rejected the explanation and found Karel guilty.

At State Auditor Barrett's office yesterday it was stated that Mr. Barrett was investigating the case.

BREWING CONCERN ELECTS LUEDER ITS PRESIDENT

Postmaster Arthur C. Lueder was elected president of the Manhattan Brewing company yesterday afternoon. Arthur Anderson of Sibley, Anderson & Co., R. Cooper Jr. of the General Electric Refrigerator company, Charles W. Wrigley and Attorney Fred Plotke were named directors. William J. Eisenbeiss, secretary of the Chicago Brewers' association, is to serve as brewmaster.

Mr. Lueder announced that he would not resign as postmaster. The Manhattan brewery at 39th street and Emerald avenue is being renovated, Postmaster Lueder said, and delivery of beer will be started on or about July 1.

Carl W. Schultz, 51 years old, 5210 Wayne avenue, a chemist, died yesterday in the county hospital of a cerebral hemorrhage.

U. S. BEER SALES AT CANAL BRING PANAMA PROTEST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PANAMA CITY, April 20.—The Panama government has protested to Washington over the Canal Zone's handling of beer sales.

Foreign Minister J. D. Arosemena sent a message to Dr. Ricardo J. Alfaro, minister in Washington, in which he intimated that the sale of American beer in Canal Zone commissaries and army and navy exchanges is an additional incursion into commercial activities which is not permitted under the United States-Panama treaty.

Panama claims the treaty permits the sale of only provisions, medicines, clothing, and other necessary articles required by canal employes. Beer is being sold in large quantities in every Canal Zone village and town. Panama City and Colon saloonkeepers are suffering.

BOY CONFESSES KILLING MOTHER AND HIDING BODY

Breaks Down Months After Crime.

Galesburg, Ill., April 21.—[Special.]—Arvid Boyer, 20, confessed in the Knox county jail this morning that he shot his mother, Mrs. Abel Boyer, 50, last Labor day at midnight. He admits he threw her body in a well on their farm near here, after weighting it down with a 90 pound anvil.

The body was found Oct. 4 by Sheriff Fred Porter of Warren county and Sheriff Lou Wilson of Knox county. The son, who lived alone with his mother on the farm near the Knox-Warren county line, reported her disappearance three days after the slaying and then left at once to visit a girl over the week-end. He was arrested and questioned at the time, but was released.

Boyer was arrested yesterday near Canton by State Highway Patrolmen Max Armstrong and Charles Lafferty on a charge of stealing an automobile belonging to N. W. Toohey of Abingdon. Last night he was brought to the Knox county jail here, where, after confessing to the theft of the car, he was questioned again about the slaying.

At first the boy stated that he had killed his mother, but that it was an accident, officers said. Early this morning he changed his story to a complete confession of the crime.

COUNTY BOARD AGAIN CALLS HALT ON LAND BUYING

The forest preserve commissioners yesterday readopted a resolution to purchase no more land for preserve tracts while the finances of the district remain in their present state. The district has defaulted on $2,400,000 in bonds and interest, and is six weeks behind in pay to its employés.

The resolution was adopted after a report was made by a committee of commissioners who had inspected the Beverly farm, a 300 acre tract along the Kane county line, which was offered to the district for $240,000. The land was appraised by the assessor's office recently at $62,000 full value. The county committee, headed by Commissioner Walter J. La Buy, which examined the land, reported that the price asked was "ridiculously high."

HAYS WILLING TO AID IN RESTORING MOVIE SALARIES

His Own Sliced for Total of 64 Per Cent.

Hollywood, Cal., April 21.—[Special.]—When Will Hays, czar of the movies works for the restoration of motion picture salaries to former levels, as he has been doing for the past three weeks here, he is whole hearted about it, for the successive salary cuts in the movies have reduced Mr. Hays' own stipend 64 per cent.

Hays' salary was reputed to be $150,000 when he signed his first contract in 1922. That contract was renewed in 1927 and again in 1932, each time on a five year basis. Mr. Hays has taken three salary cuts. The first one was 20 per cent, the next one was 10 per cent, and the last one was 50 per cent, all reductions of his original salary aggregating 64 per cent, self-imposed by the movie boss at the same time—March 6—when the film industry in Hollywood agreed to accept 50 per cent reductions all along the line, to last for eight weeks.

All the studios are restoring full pay before the eight weeks are over, but Hays is taking his 50 per cent cut until May 1.

The 64 per cent cut taken by Mr. Hays was applied to all the highest paid officers.

PASTOR'S DESERTED WIFE PLANS TO SUE HIM FOR DIVORCE

Springfield, Mo., April 21.—(AP)—Mrs. Sharon C. Inman, red haired wife of the Cave Spring, Mo., Presbyterian pastor who dramatically confessed his love for another woman to his church session April 9 and left with Miss Ezia ["Pat"] Holdridge the next day, announced today she will file suit for divorce.

She said she would name Miss Holdridge and ask custody of the two Inman children, Lowell, 12, and Dance, 6.

Inman has been cited to appear before a church court here next Tuesday on charges of "gross immorality and conduct unbecoming to a minister."

It was learned today that Miss Holdridge and Inman have parted. Inman made arrangements for a job selling fly spray and cattle dip before leaving for Texas, it also was revealed.

At the time Inman confessed his love for the girl, the daughter of an Oklahoma minister, and was suspended from his pastorate, it was disclosed Miss Holdridge had been living in the Inman home for a month and attending classes at the State Teachers' college here with Mrs. Inman.

Mrs. Inman said she invited the girl into the home, hoping that she could win back her husband's love.

SUPREME COURT O. K.'S ELECTION OF MAYOR KELLY

Any lingering clouds over the validity of the official signature of Mayor Edward J. Kelly were swept away yesterday, in the opinion of the city legal department, by action of the Supreme court at Springfield. The high bench refused to hear a mandamus action which had been filed Thursday attacking the constitutionality of the new emergency law under which the city council elected Mayor Kelly to fill out the unexpired term of the late Anton J. Cermak.

The suit, which was filed in the name of Frank Brossheit, as a taxpayer, asked the Supreme court to mandamus the Chicago city council to call a special mayoralty election to fill the vacancy. The petition argued that the emergency act under which Mayor Kelly was elected was in conflict with the state constitution as a type of class legislation.

The Supreme court refused to hear the case.

MAX BORCHARDT, LONG EVANSTON JUSTICE, JAILED

Max Borchardt, 58 years old, 1564 Sherman avenue, Evanston, who for years before his defeat in the recent election was a justice of the peace in the north shore suburb, yesterday was committed to the county jail by Probate Judge Harold J. Taylor, when he admitted in court that he was unable to produce $11,000 belonging to two estates of which he was executor.

The commitment was on a citation for contempt of court. Borchardt will have an opportunity to gain his freedom on a writ of supercedeas today when his attorney, Irwin Roemer, files an appeal with the Appellate court.

Borchardt was brought into court by the heirs of the estates of Edward Dehning and of Mrs. Hannah Harris, and by attorneys representing the Maryland Casualty company which had posted his executor's bond.

Borchardt threw himself on the mercy of the court.

COURT RELEASES BOY DEBTOR, BUT JAILS ANOTHER

County Judge J. G. Van Keuren yesterday tried two cases which were brought to his court on appeals under the insolvent debtors' act, freeing one youth who had been sent to jail because he was unable to pay a $500 judgment, but jailing Frank J. Broucek, commissioner of Berwyn, against whom a $5,000 judgment recently was obtained on a charge of slander.

The youth was Frank Drozek, 17 years old, 1534 Dickson street, charged with maliciously firing a blank cartridge pistol into the face of a playmate, Edward Janowski, 12 years old, 1539 Dickson street, and injuring the younger boy's eyes. After hearing testimony of other boys who were present Judge Van Keuren ruled that the injury was accidental. A jury in Circuit court had awarded the Janowski boy the damage judgment.

Broucek came into court in an effort to escape a jail sentence under a judgment obtained by John H. Ehardt, Berwyn police magistrate. Broucek failed to defend Ehardt's slander suit, but pleaded he was insolvent. Judge Van Keuren said that a special malice count in the verdict prevented him under the debtors' law from interfering and Broucek was taken to jail.

BUTTER PRICES AMONG FIRST TO FEEL INFLATION

But Food Bargains Still Await Shoppers.

BY PAUL POTTER.

The first signs of rising food prices for consumers in Chicago and suburbs due to inflation of the American money system as President Roosevelt proposes to congress, will be noted in retail stores today by housewives replenishing the larder for the week-end.

Most striking in its sudden rise in local groceries is the price of fresh creamery butter. Following a steady increase in wholesale prices, frugal housewives have watched butter rise from the low point of 19 cents a pound, reached in February. The price has advanced 2 to 4 cents per pound almost overnight.

Egg Prices Still Moderate.

Only the fact that butter production has been light this spring while consumption continued at a high rate made this food so sensitive to nation-wide speculation. Eggs, on the contrary, have been coming to market in unusually large quantities. Coupled with heavy consumption during Lent that has receded this week, eggs are still selling at moderate prices.

Some influences of the week's sudden boosting of values in the stock market, the wheat pit and on the butter exchanges are reflected today in flour and sugar prices. For the most part, however, retail food prices remain at their low levels of recent weeks with prospects that some prices will advance gradually in coming weeks, while others, such as canned goods, salt, vegetables and fruits in season and some cuts of meats remain low in cost.

Await Increased Buying.

Grocers interviewed yesterday expressed the reassuring view that until buying power was increased materially for a large number of customers rising food prices as a whole would not affect the consumers' budgets materially. Commodities such as dairy and poultry products, fruits and vegetables, sugar, flour and some kinds of meat are most easily affected by changing market conditions.

The possibility that bottled milk may become a public utility in Illinois is now being considered by dairymen who supply Chicago. Milk has become a public utility and its price has been fixed in Wisconsin and New York this month. Legislation of a similar nature is proposed in Rhode Island, Ohio, Minnesota, and Illinois.

Under such regulation prices would be standardized at a level within reach of the city user, yet assure a return to dairy farmers sufficient to enable them to continue producing a high quality milk supply.

The possibilities of such action are now the subject of negotiations between Chicago milk companies, the labor unions, and dairy farmers' representatives. Reports from Washington indicate that the federal government may make the entire nation's milk supply subject to standardized prices under authority of the proposed farm relief act. Evaporated milk prices would advance somewhat under such a measure, it was decided in a meeting of manufacturers of evaporated milk in Chicago this week.

Among the bargain priced foods on grocery shelves today are strawberries, new peas, steaks, lard, breakfast cereals, bread and pastries, new potatoes, eggs, rhubarb, oranges, and grapefruit. Coffee and tea prices also remain at attractively low levels.

Praecipes in Two $50,000 Suits Name Kelloggs

Praecipes in two $50,000 damage suits against John L. Kellogg and William K. Kellogg of Battle Creek, Mich., were filed yesterday in the United States District court by Police Lieutenant Charles G. Essig and Mrs. Julia Dean. The suits charge the complainants, as stockholders in the Warren Teed Seed company, lost money through mismanagement and misrepresentation of the Kelloggs, who were officials of the company. Attorney Clarence L. Snyder, who filed the praecipes, said the declarations would not be filed for several days.

PAPEN GIVES UP PRUSSIAN POST TO HITLER'S AID

Will Be Berlin's Envoy at World Parleys.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, April 21.—Franz von Papen, former commissar of Prussia, relinquished his power to the newly appointed premier of Prussia, Capt. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, at a special ceremony this afternoon. Capt. Goering, who is Hitler's right hand man, also is minister without portfolio in the reich's cabinet.

Von Papen remains vice chancellor of Germany and will be given his own palace in Wilhelmstrasse as headquarters for his new office which was created partly to compensate him for the loss of the Prussian premiership.

Hitler's Spokesman.

From his new palace, which was originally erected for the engineer, Borsig, and later housed the Mortgage bank, Von Papen is scheduled to sally forth to represent Chancellor Adolf Hitler at international conferences.

(Von Papen's palace, built in Italian style, stands in Voss street opposite the Prussian office of public works and the ministry of transport.)

Authorities today gave assurance that Foreign Minister Baron Konstantin von Neurath approves of the plan, although it slightly restricts his powers. It is rumored in Berlin that Von Neurath will be appointed governor of his native state of Wuertemberg and turn over his ministerial post to Von Papen or some other Hitler appointee.

Hugenberg Is Worried.

Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, minister of national economy, food, and agriculture, is worried by the overwhelming influence of Hitlerites in public offices and private bodies. The former kaiser's "henchman" sounded a warning today, asserting that dictatorial powers were entrusted to Hitler and all members of the present cabinet and that cabinet changes would nullify the reichstag's enabling act. This was denied by Hitler's National Socialists.

Premier Goering appointed the present commissarial ministers as regular Prussian ministers with the exception of Dr. Hugenberg. He is still negotiating with Hugenberg.

President Paul von Hindenburg and Chancellor Hitler lunched today with King Gustav V. of Sweden. Hitler seized the opportunity to tell the king of "his disappointment with the Swedish left wing press which continues to defame Germany's new government." He urged the monarch to silence these newspapers.

After tomorrow's cabinet conference, Hitler will board an airplane for Munich to preside at the National Socialist party caucus.

CANADA YOUTH GROUP LAUNCHES CAMPAIGN AGAINST THE JEWS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., April 21.—Jews were attacked here last night at a meeting of young French-Canadians under the auspices of Jeune Canada, a movement aiming at revival of French nationalist sentiment in Quebec. The Jewish communities of Montreal and of Quebec were declared to be seeking and obtaining power out of proportion to their numbers and deserts. The Canadian constitution, it was pointed out, recognizes only two races, English and French. It was asserted that Jewish people could never become assimilated and that they had in them a spirit of proletariat internationalism which engendered communism.

RICHEY GRAHAM BARES PROFIT IN PRESERVE BONDS

That Richey V. Graham, state senator and son-in-law of the late Mayor Cermak, bought thirty $100 forest preserve bonds at 72 and sold them three months later at 100, plus accrued interest, was revealed yesterday by Assistant State's Attorney O. P. Lightfoot, who is investigating the defaults of forest preserve bond issues. The bonds owned by Senator Graham, along with $10,000 worth purchased by the federal reserve bank, were the only ones of a $500,000 issue held by Chicago investors.

Senator Graham, who returned to the city yesterday from Springfield, admitted he had redeemed the bonds through the First National bank. "It was a perfectly legitimate investment," he said, "and there is no mystery about it." Graham's profit on the transaction was $1,210.

The investigation by the state's attorney's office was begun as a result of the charge by County Commissioner Grace Fleming that recent defaults of the district bond issues were deliberate. The defaults, she asserted, depressed the market price of the issues, allowing speculators to purchase them at figures as low as 53. By recent redemption of $600,000 of the bonds the speculators reaped huge profits, she said.

Ex-Lieutenant Governor of Arkansas Arrested

Camden, Ark., April 21.—(AP)— Lawrence E. Wilson, former lieutenant governor, was arrested today on charges of embezzlement contained in an indictment returned yesterday. The charges grew out of Wilson's liquidation of three closed banks in this county. Wilson furnished bond of $5,000 and was released. Trial was set for the October term of Circuit court.

ALLMAN PROMOTES 38 PATROLMEN TO RANK OF SERGEANT

Police Commissioner Allman yesterday promoted the 38 patrolmen at the head of the civil service eligibility list to the rank of sergeants. The promoted were.

Jhillip H. Breatzke	Fred E. Kelly
Charles J. Keith	Joseph D. Fallon
Michael J. Ahern	James J. Connelly
William J. Smith	Frederick O'Day
John T. McAvoy	Robert E. Welling
John M. Cullnan	James T. O'Brien
Daniel F. Healy	Joseph M. Whitelaw
John H. Scherping	Thomas E. Connelly
Thomas Martin	Thomas J. Gorman
Charles W. Lodding	Thomas J. Slattery
John L. Howe	Henry F. Jansen
William J. Quilter	Edwin C. Johnson
Thomas E. Gartland	Joseph J. Purcell
Mathew Frolich	James B. Conlisk
Stephen J. Casey	Joseph J. Carroll
William J. Drury	Mathew A. Homer
Bernard J. Curcoran	Eugene J. Nevins
Le Roy M. Steffens	Edward T. LeFevour
Thomas J. O'Donnell	Harold T. Fogarty

"These men are needed badly in the police department," said Commissioner Allman. "With the addition of 500 patrolmen to the force, we need more experienced men to direct activities."

There are 83 vacancies in the list of sergeancies provided by the last city budget. In addition to the men promoted, two others are to be reinstated later as sergeants, Commissioner Allman said. The new sergeants, many of whom have been performing the duties of that office for some time, get a basic pay of $2,900 a year, against $2,500 for patrolmen. This is subject to pay cuts and pension deductions at present.

OFFICIALS AGREE ON BILL TO AID TAX COLLECTION

Empowers Treasurer to Act as Receiver.

Passage of the Skarda bill, empowering the county treasurer to act as receiver and collect the income of properties on which taxes are delinquent, will be recommended to the legislature by Mayor Kelly, county tax collecting officials, and the Sargent committee, the mayor announced yesterday.

The mayor's announcement followed a conference in his office on pending legislation affecting Cook county finances. The conference was preliminary to a meeting Monday with the Cook county legislators, Gov. Horner, and the members of the state tax commission, at which the Chicago leaders will state their views on a legislative program regarding tax collection and kindred matters.

Yesterday's conference was attended by County Judge Jarecki, Corporation Counsel Sexton, State's Attorney Courtney, and his principal assistant in tax matters, Hayden N. Bell; Robert Dunham, and Fred W. Sargent, Ernest R. Graham, and John O. Rees of the Sargent committee.

Plan to "Get Rough."

"We have been handling this situation with kid gloves up until now," said Mayor Kelly. "Now we'll have to get rough. Taxes must be paid."

Attorney General Kerner drafted the bill, which was presented in the legislature ten days ago and has already been recommended for passage by the house revenue committee. Applying to income producing properties it would not be used against home owners who have been unable to pay their taxes.

Mayor Kelly was asked if the Keehn-Huebsch bill, which would throw all properties on which 1928, 1929, or 1930 taxes are delinquent back to the board of tax appeals for what amounts to a reassessment, was discussed at the conference.

"It was discussed," he replied, "but not enthusiastically."

In other quarters it was said that this bill, backed by the same interests which fomented the tax strike in litigation, has no chance of passage.

Mr. Sargent, whose support was originally claimed by its authors, has lately been very cool toward the bill. He said at yesterday's conference, it is understood, that he is opposed to any measure which would open to all delinquent taxpayers a fresh review of their assessments.

Set Date for Arguments.

Arguments before the Supreme court on the petition for a writ of mandamus directing the board of tax appeals to expunge its order for a 15 per cent assessment cut on homes and small flat buildings have been set for June 5. The petition was filed by Attorney Lester L. Falk on behalf of Kilmer Fox Thomas, a real estate owner.

The Supreme court took original jurisdiction in the case, after attorneys for the city, school board, sanitary district, and county had filed intervening petitions pointing out the urgency of an early decision.

BEAUTY TO WED

MISS ELINOR CORCORAN.

A romance of Lake Forest college days will lead to the marriage this afternoon of Miss Elinor Corcoran, 24 years old, twice winner of the "most beautiful girl" contests at the college, and David Dale Ashton, 27 years old, former star basketball player.

Both were graduated in 1930. In that year and the year before Miss Corcoran won the beauty contests. In 1930 Ashton captained the school basketball team. They will be married at 4:30 o'clock in the Lake Forest college chapel by President Herbert M. Moore.

Miss Corcoran is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Corcoran of Libertyville. Ashton, who is in business at Fond du Lac, Wis., is the son of Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Ashton of Rhinelander, Wis.

RECORD SHOWS COST OF LINCOLN ESTATE NOT PAID

Springfield, Ill., April 21.—(AP)—A deficiency in the payment of court costs for administration of the estate of President Abraham Lincoln was discovered today by Probate Clerk Lewis E. Bird.

Clerk Bird thumbed through the records of his court and turned to the year 1865.

Under the estate of Lincoln, President of the United States, court costs were listed as $30.45. Only $25 had been paid. There was a $9 entry for printer's fee.

The discovery was made when Clerk Bird launched a campaign to collect costs on estates of long standing.

Police Capture Bandits 3 Minutes After Holdup

Samuel De John, 19 years old, 1130 Sedgwick street, was arrested yesterday less than three minutes after he had stolen $15 from John Siegel, 3924 Argyle street, a truck driver, in front of 868 Orleans street. The arrest was made by Detectives Charles Stanger and Thomas McNulty of the Chicago avenue station, who spotted De John after hearing a radio alarm. They also seized two other youths as suspects.

SCHOOL WORKERS TODAY GET THIRD PAY IN 10 DAYS

More Tax Warrants Sold to Pension Fund.

While city employés were receiving their first installments yesterday on two months' back pay, school officials announced that with the cooperation of trustees of the municipal employés' pension fund they will be able to clear up the board's pay rolls for last August.

It was the second time that the pension trustees have advanced money for school pay rolls, and the third school pay day within the last ten days. President Orville J. Taylor pointed out. Yesterday the pension fund bought $184,000 in school tax warrants. Its purchase of $371,000 worth a few days ago made it possible for the board to meet its civil service pay rolls for July.

Pay checks will be sent out for last August today to all school employés who worked during that month except playground instructors. President Taylor hopes to get cash for the playground pay roll early next week. The playground instructors received tax warrants for their July pay, the only school employés to be paid in this manner. The August pay rolls to be met tomorrow aggregate $384,000. The board had $200,000 in cash in its funds with which to supplement the payment from the pension fund.

Nearly All Paid to September.

With the exception of a half month's pay for civil service employés in September, school employés are now paid up to the opening of the present school year. Following the election of Mayor Kelly, banks bought tax warrants to give funds for clearing up June salary arrears. Warrant purchases by the city pension fund were largely responsible for clearing up last summer's pay rolls.

The city pay day is being met out of funds realized from the sale of warrants for which the Dewey committee obtained $8,069,000 in subscriptions. Yesterday's pay checks were for the first two weeks in November. As quickly as the warrants can be delivered to subscribers and pay checks can be prepared, city workers are to get their back pay up to the first of the present year. The municipal employés' pension fund also bought $250,000 worth of city corporate warrants yesterday.

Union Leader Sees Kelly.

Mayor Kelly had a conference yesterday with Miss Agnes Clohesy, head of the Elementary Teachers' union, on the pay situation. Miss Clohsey pledged him her cooperation in attempts to get pay roll funds from banks and the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

Later in the day some 300 "demonstrating" teachers crowded into the mayor's office. Mayor Kelly left a conference to speak to them. He told them that at the moment of their call he had been discussing plans to force payment of delinquent taxes so that pay rolls may be met.

"I have been making hearty endeavors to have you paid since I took office," Mayor Kelly said. "If you will give us time, I think you will be paid."

The teachers applauded that statement, but some of them booed at his reply to the demand of one of their group that the city divert part of the funds for its own employés to the school board.

"The purchasers of those warrants bought them for the specific purpose of paying police, firemen, and other city workers," said Mayor Kelly. "I think it would be illegal and certainly would be a breach of faith with the purchasers, to use the money for any other purpose."

Henry P. Chandler, chairman of the "Liberty loan" drive to sell tax warrants for school pay roll funds, was still engaged yesterday in recruiting key men for his organization. Teacher leaders have approved postponement of the start of the drive until a sound organization has been formed, he said.

"We have a large objective and we need a sound foundation for our efforts," said Mr. Chandler. "If we were to start prematurely, our drive would merely be a glorified tag day."

Navy Paring Program May Close Great Lakes Station

The curtailment program for the navy department, presented to the budget bureau at Washington yesterday by naval officials, is understood to provide for either the closing of the Great Lakes Naval Training station or the drastic curtailment of activities there. Hugh Fisher, chief clerk of the civilian division at the station, received information to this effect yesterday from the Army and Navy Journal in Washington. There have been persistent reports at Great Lakes that the station is to be closed June 30.

February Freeze Reduces Peach Crop; Will Increase Prices in Illinois Belt

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Centralia, Ill., April 21.—[Special.]—About half a crop of Illinois commercial peaches now seems to be the prospect for this year.

It is a prospect that is far from being a bitter blow to the peach growers as a whole.

In 1931, the most recent of the bumper years, the peach crop was about four million three hundred thousand bushels or the equivalent of more than ten thousand car loads and the price which the grower received at the orchard dropped to 50, to 40, and even 10 cents a bushel.

That was ruinous.

The result was that the equivalent of from 1,500 to 2,000 carloads never was harvested at all. That meant nearly 800,000 bushels of wicked waste of as fine peaches as are grown in the world.

Marketing, as the university pundits are always telling us, is still the most inexact of sciences.

In other words, a 5,000 car crop will give the Illinois growers a far better price than a 10,000 car crop.

This year they will get that better price.

February Freeze Responsible.

It was the February freeze that reduced the prospective crop to about 15 per cent of normal in such great southern Illinois peach growing counties, as Union, Johnson, Williamson, and Massac. There never has been such devastation in that area. In Union and Johnson counties only very light remnants of the prospective crop are left. In Williamson and Massac counties the remnants are only fair.

Those are largely the estimates of Harry Day, manager of the Illinois Fruit Growers' exchange with headquarters at Centralia and it is part of Mr. Day's profession to be careful when he makes estimates.

Heavy though the losses are in Union, Johnson, Williamson, and Massac counties, what is going to pull Illinois up to 30 per cent of a normal crop will be the prospective good yield in the more northerly counties of Marion, Jefferson, Wayne, Clay, Jasper, and Hamilton. In Marion county the peach prospects are splendid, and in the other six counties just named they are good.

50 Mile Peach Belt.

W. S. Perrine, veteran of the orchards of whom I spoke in yesterday's dispatch sums up prospects thus:

"In the area fifty miles wide extending from Centralia on the west to the state line on the east and from Farina on the north to Duquoin on the south we probably shall have the biggest peach crop in the United States, except those in southern Georgia and California. It may be a million and a half bushels, and remember these will be table peaches, not canning peaches."

To Mr. Day's list of counties where the peach outlook is good Mr. Perrine adds Clinton, Washington, and Lawrence counties.

Mr. Day tells me that the same February freeze that hit Illinois peaches so hard, hit Michigan peaches much harder; consequently, he says, Michigan will have only from ten to fifteen per cent of a crop this year.

Apples Not Damaged.

In the four southerly counties—Union, Williamson, Johnson and Massac, where the peaches were so cruelly hit by the February freeze, the apple outlook is fine. The apple tree, although it requires a great deal of care owing to the increasing number of pests in the last half century, is a hardier tree than the peach.

"That is why many of our growers," said Mr. Perrine, "grow both apples and peaches—the old moral of not putting all your eggs in one basket."

I told the veteran of London merchant Harry Selfridge's revision of that moral to "put all the eggs in one basket and then watch that basket." But he shook his head; for after a long lifetime in orchards he has ceased to trust Mother Nature with either baskets or weather. About the fearful gamble of fruit growing I have gathered many curious facts which I plan to give you in Sunday's TRIBUNE.

Gold and Fruit.

Meanwhile let me tell you what is the exciting news of the hour down here—namely: the effect on fruit prices of our country's departure from the gold standard.

On Tuesday last and until Wednesday evening the growers were figuring that owing to the shortage in the peach crop they would be getting $1.15 a bushel this season and that meant that you, the consumers in Chicago and other American cities, would be paying from $1.75 to $2.25 a bushel for about two million bushels of Illinois peaches.

On Wednesday evening came the big news from Washington and there was jubilation among the Illinois fruit growers from Farina on the north to the Kentucky border on the south. Promptly revising their estimates they say it now looks like a price to the peach grower of from $1.40 to $1.65 a bushel—an increase of from 25 to 50 cents, with the result that you will pay at the stores from $2.50 to $2.75 a bushel.

The effect of those new estimates was electrical. They put fresh heart into everybody.

Hurries Spray Chemical.

Mr. Perrine did not go to bed until he had sent hurry up messages on his orders for five more tons of zinc sulphate, a quantity which will give four or five sprayings to each hundred acres of the Perrine orchards of 600 acres in Marion and Johnson counties.

I must tell you about these Perrines, for they are not only a historic Illinois family but also are of the aristocracy of American farmers and have been for nearly two centuries. They come of ancient French Huguenot stock, than which there is no better blood in the world. In the war of the revolution the battle of Monmouth was fought in part on one of the old Perrine farms at Freehold, N. J. In Illinois the family has been growing fruit for nearly seventy years.

The present head of the Illinois branch is my patient and instructive friend, W. S. Perrine of Centralia, one of the greatest authorities in the United States on fruit tree pruning and a man who is highly regarded in both university and commercial circles.

Official of Growers' Societies.

He is president of the Illinois Commercial Apple Growers' association, the oldest buying organization for fruit growers in existence, present treasurer and former president of the Illinois State Horticultural society, and adviser to the horticultural department of the University of Illinois.

His father, George H. Perrine, bought fruit land in Marion county seventy years ago. With George there came to Illinois his father, David Perrine, who was nine years old when Gen. Washington died and who passed on in 1886 at the age of 96.

Now the second and third generations are carrying on the business which George H. Perrine founded, for W. S.'s sons, Alden and David, are partners with him. These young men are of the ninth generation from the John and Priscilla Alden of Longfellow's poem, "The Courtship of Miles Standish." Both are university trained horticulturists, having studied at Cornell.

American Tradition.

Thus both historically and professionally the family represents a grand old American tradition and seem to me quite as well worth writing about as apples and peaches are, for they, like the fruits they grow, are part of the essential wealth of Illinois.

The kind of tradition they carry on is indicated by a remark W. S. Perrine let fall on one difference between American and European fruit growers.

"European growers," he said, "are jealous and secretive. I like the spirit of our growers, for they exchange secrets. Their gospel is that what helps the industry as a whole helps everybody in it, and so helps our whole country from the orchards in the state of Washington to the peach orchards of Georgia."

LIBBY HOLMAN'S BABY WILL GET $2,000,000 FUND

Concord, N. C., April 21.—[Special.]—The "incubator" baby of Libby Holman Reynolds, erstwhile Broadway torch singer, will be assured at least of a $2,000,000 slice of the $15,000,000 fortune left by his father, the late Smith Reynolds, member of the noted tobacco family, under an agreement revealed in a court action here today.

Attorneys for the Reynolds family and counsel for the widowed singer and her infant child have decided to "compromise and settle all matters by giving the child, Smith Reynolds Jr., $2,000,000," the court was informed.

First Child Gets $2,000,000.

A letter by W. M. Hendren of Winston-Salem, counsel for the brothers and sisters of the young tobacco heir who was mysteriously shot to death in his Winston-Salem home one night last July, carrying a statement to this effect, was read into the record.

According to Mr. Hendren, the agreement also insures a $2,000,000 bequest to Anne Cannon Reynolds, daughter of young Reynolds by his first marriage when the estate is split up. The rest of the young millionaire's holdings will be used, it was said, to establish a foundation for charitable purposes in memory of the testator.

Fortune Goes to Charity.

Expenditures from this fund will be confined to the state of North Carolina and will go largely to orphanages of fraternal orders and religious denominations, it was said.

The agreement came to light in the course of a proceeding involving a petition asking the court to set aside a decree creating trust funds of $500,000 each for Anne Cannon Reynolds II and her mother, Mrs. Joseph F. Cannon, and the Cabarrus Bank and Trust company are co-guardians of the little girl.

The bandits escaped in an automobile before 20 employés, who were loading trucks outside the warehouse, learned of the robbery.

WEBER DEMANDS RELIEF CONTROL BY COUNTY BOARD

Charges Commission Squanders Funds.

Asserting that idle relief funds are being squandered by the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, County Commissioner Charles H. Weber, at a session of the county board's public service committee yesterday, demanded adoption of his resolution to place the sole administration of relief funds in the hands of the county board.

Specifically, the resolution seeks amendment of senate bill 160 now pending at Springfield. The bill would put administration of relief in Cook county in the hands of a commission of five or seven members, none of whom would have political or sectarian connections.

Spending 7 Million Month.

"The charge is made that politics would govern the administration of relief if the county board handled it," said Commissioner Weber. "I don't think the commissioners would, in a matter such as the relief of the really destitute, let politics govern them. Certainly, the county board could do no worse than the relief commission, which is constantly spending more money and which will get rid of $7,000,000 in April alone."

The relief commission, the commissioner charged, has been acting like a business which is always seeking new customers. The attitude of the social workers in charge has been in favor of putting all applicants on the relief lists without regard to the real need for support, he declared.

"The relief shelters are crowded with drunks who flock here from all parts of the country," he said. "There is a college on West Madison street which teaches these men how to panhandle properly, and they are training them now to prey upon the thousands of visitors who will be here for the World's Fair."

Defends Social Workers.

Most of the other commissioners present, with the exception of Miss Amelia Sears, indorsed Commissioner Weber's stand. Miss Sears declared that relief funds could never be properly distributed except by trained social workers. The members finally deferred action until Monday, when a full meeting of the board will be held.

Director Joseph L. Moss of the county bureau of public welfare, the agency which distributes the funds for the relief commission, yesterday declared that he and his staff were only too anxious to investigate all cases in which persons were wrongfully receiving relief money.

"We are hampered by a small staff of trained investigators," he said. "The public must coöperate if we are to detect all fraudulent cases. Every relief station will be glad to receive information, even of an anonymous character. Every complaint will be investigated.

"I have been receiving hundreds of communications regarding suggested reforms of the methods of distributing relief and all these plans are carefully considered. We hope to be able to eliminate most of the unworthy recipients of relief from the rolls."

JAPANESE ACT TO FREE KIDNAPED U. S. MISSIONARY

MUKDEN, Manchuria, April 21.—(AP)—Japanese officials said today that efforts to release Dr. Niels Nielsen, kidnaped American missionary, had resulted in providing him with comforts through peasant messengers.

Letters have been exchanged with Dr. Nielsen, the Japanese asserted. They declared the captor was Liu Tien-Wen, a former village magistrate and now a bandit leader. Other authorities said Liu disclaimed any connection with the kidnaping although he admitted he knew the abductors and offered to bring about the release of the prisoner.

Demand $100,000 Ransom.

DAIREN, Manchuria, April 21.—(AP)—The government of Fengtien province announced today that Dr. Niels Nielsen, kidnaped American missionary, was located about 13 miles from Hsiuyen in the hands of bandits. Dr. Nielsen was kidnaped last week at Hsiuyen, about 100 miles south of Mukden. The kidnapers were reported demanding $100,000 ransom.

JAPAN ORDERS TROOPS TO HALT DRIVE IN CHINA

Tokio Stops Attacks South of Great Wall.

TOKIO, April 22 [Saturday].—(AP)—The war office announced today that Japanese troops have been ordered to cease their attacks on and halt their pursuit of Chinese troops south of the Great Wall of China.

The campaign south of the wall, it said, has gained all objectives—the termination of Chinese pressure on the southern boundary of Jehol province and the pushing of the Chinese beyond artillery range of the wall. The campaign began officially April 10, more than a month after the seizure of Jehol.

A war office spokesman said the Chinese have been expelled entirely from the district eastward of the Lwan river and also from a zone extending an average depth of ten miles below the wall west of the Lwan river as far as the Miyun area.

Moscow Defies Manchukuo.

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

HARBIN, Manchukuo, April 21.—The attitude adopted by Russia toward the Chinese Eastern railway dispute was strengthened today by a note from the soviet consul general to the Manchukuo ministry of foreign affairs.

Today's note occasioned great surprise in Manchukuo and Japanese circles. It had been expected that Moscow would yield to Manchukuo's demands for the return of rolling stock from Siberia.

Purchased in U. S.

While the note today concedes Chinese Eastern ownership of certain freight and passenger cars now held in soviet territory, it asserts positively Russian ownership of eighty-two locomotives demanded by Manchukuo.

The note points out that the locomotives are part of a group of 124 bought from America by the Russian government. It quotes Chinese Eastern railway records to prove that soviet ownership has been recognized by China. The note adds that a considerable sum is owed to Russia by the railway for the use of locomotives and declares this claim will be advanced.

Manchukuo has demanded the return of cars and locomotives by May 10. What measures are likely to be taken by Manchukuo if this is refused is uncertain.

Japs Menace Another Province.

TIENTSIN, China, April 21.—(AP)—The van of a Japanese "western expedition," numbering 3,000 troops, was reported today to be threatening the Chinese province of Chahar, just west of Jehol province. Chinese advices from Kaigan, the main city in Chahar, said that the Japanese engaged a Chinese garrison at Chaling and that Japanese aviators bombed border towns, causing residents to flee westward.

Meanwhile the Chinese military command announced that Japanese and Manchukuan troops had been driven back across the Lwan river, in north China proper, and had been expelled from Lwanchow, the most important city on the railroad between Tientsin and Shanhaikwan.

Ceremony in N. Y.

Arno, a German shepherd dog owned by S. M. Majewski, 1123 Milwaukee avenue, is one of 15 dogs to be honored for bravery today in New York City by Mrs. Diana Belais, president and founder of the New York Anti-Vivisection society. Arno was shot in the paw on Dec. 21 last year when he routed two bandits from his master's home. The dog will not be present at the ceremony.

RETURN HOMICIDE VERDICT.

A verdict of justifiable homicide was returned yesterday at the inquest into the death of Arthur Gentile, 22 years old, 1317 West Erie street, who was shot to death by police as he attempted to steal an automobile on Wednesday.

SALES TAX LAW UNDER ATTACK IN SUPREME COURT

State Is Waging Fight to Dissolve Injunction.

BY PARKE BROWN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., April 21.—[Special.]—The Illinois state sales tax was under heavy fire before the Supreme court here today. For almost three hours oral arguments were heard on the appeal that seeks to dissolve the injunction against state officials granted by Judge Jesse R. Brown of the Madison county Circuit court.

Three of the five attorneys who obtained the injunction attacked the tax severely, branding the act of the legislature as incomplete, unworkable, indefinite, conflicting, arbitrary, unreasonable, confiscatory, discriminating, and constituting unlawful class legislation, placing a tax upon labor and service.

Winning Appears for State.

Those three were Roscoe Forth of Granite City, Roy F. Hall of Rockford, and Frank G. Thompson of Mount Vernon. Their combined assaults on the constitutionality of the law were met single handed by Montgomery S. Winning, special assistant attorney general, but Attorney General Otto Kerner sat beside him and advised him concerning some of the points raised.

As counsel for the appellants State Auditor E. J. Barrett, State Treasurer John C. Martin and Joseph J. Rice, director of finance, Attorney Winning opened the argument with a detailed analysis of the contentions in the brief filed for Robert Irving Winter, in whose name Judge Brown issued the injunction.

"The legislature recognized, as this court has done in other cases," he said in answering the contention that the tax is not occupational, as it is purported to be, "that the burden must be borne by the consumer. It is clear that this is a tax upon the occupation of selling tangible personal property at retail and whatever the retailer may do to reimburse himself is not a matter between the retailer and the state department of finance but a matter between the retailer and the customer."

Attorney Forth asserted that the actual tax collected under the law amounts to considerably more than the 3 per cent named in the statute.

"The act is not adaptable to the denominations of United States currency," he said, and then went on to show that the 3 per cent is being exceeded in the practice of charging one cent tax for articles retailing at prices between one cent and 33 cents, that two cents is being collected on sales between 33 cents and 66 cents and 3 cents on articles sold at prices from 66 cents to one dollar.

Description Is Attacked.

Attorney Thompson called attention to the fact that the official copies of the law are entitled "sales tax" and that the bill refers to the proceeds from the tax as the "sales tax fund," instead of describing it as an occupational tax fund. He also spoke of the wording supposed to be handed each customer under the law stating the sales price is included in the taxable receipts of the merchant.

The court reserved decision.

A. OF C. ASSERTS 3 CENT POSTAGE CUTS REVENUE

The 3 cent postal rate for letters has cost the federal government more than $100,000 in business from 200 known Chicago concerns, the Chicago Association of Commerce declared yesterday in an announcement on the proposal to restore the rate of 2 cents for local letters. There are no figures on some 20,000 other large concerns.

The proposed 2 cent restoration will not solve the postal deficit problem unless the reduction is made on all first class mail, national as well as local, according to the views of the association.

The association states that the use of messenger service, store delivery agencies, and other nonpostal distributing channels to handle mail formerly carried by letter carriers in the Chicago district has been resorted to for the handling of 2,652,799 pieces of mail by the 200 firms in question.

WOMAN JUROR IN CONTEMPT TO PRISON MONDAY

U. S. Judge Resentences Her to 6 Months' Term.

Minneapolis, Minn., April 21.—[Special.]—Mrs. Genevieve A. Clark, whose insistence on acquittal brought jury disagreement in the Foshay mail fraud trial here in 1931, today was resentenced to six months in jail for contempt of court.

Mrs. Clark, a Minneapolis housewife, will start serving her term next Monday in jail in St. Paul.

Mrs. Clark had been ordered resentenced in the federal district court in St. Paul after the United States Supreme court upheld her conviction in Minneapolis.

The Circuit Court of Appeals previously upheld the conviction, but decided she must be fined or jailed, but not both. The lower court which convicted her had assessed a $1,000 fine and a six month jail term.

The only woman juror in the trial of W. B. Foshay and six associates on mail fraud charges growing out of collapse of the 20 million dollar Foshay enterprises in 1929, Mrs. Clark held out for acquittal for nearly a week. The eleven men favored conviction and the jury was discharged after a seven week trial.

The government charged that while being questioned as a prospective juror Mrs. Clark failed to disclose she once was employed by the Foshay company.

L. L. Drill, United States district attorney, charged Mrs. Clark with having "no justification for her act."

SEIZED IN RAIL STATION; FINED.

Walter J. Hall, 27 years old, 438 North Clark street, who was seized early Tuesday as he hid behind a pillar inside the ticket cages at the Union station, was fined $50 yesterday by Judge George V. McIntyre on a charge of disorderly conduct.

QUIZ TWO YOUTHS CAUGHT ON GLASS SMASHING TOUR

Frank Vituccl, 934 West Grand avenue, and John Sabbino, 526 North Sangamon street, both 23 years old, were questioned by Assistant State's Attorney Mal Coghlan and Lieut. Frank Johnson last night after they had attempted to break windows in the Vopon beauty shop, 1610 Howard avenue. They were arrested by Rogers Park police, who found a list of barber and beauty shops and a load of bricks in the boys' automobile.

Miss Nellie Smith, manager of the Vopon shop, told the police that two weeks ago three men demanded that she join an association and pay $40 dues. She refused even after the price was reduced to $14, she said.

5 CONTRACTORS BID ON CLEANING FEDERAL BLDG.

Collector of Customs Czarnecki yesterday opened bids submitted by five contractors for cleaning and tuckpointing the Federal building, which, since the postoffice departments are moving to their new quarters across the river, will now be known as the United States court house.

The bids were forwarded to Washington, where it is expected that officials of the division of supplies, treasury department, will award the work to the low bidder, the United Building Cleaners, 39 West Adams street. Their bid was $8,450, and included the promise to complete the work in sixty days. The third low bidder was the Chris Paschen company, 1448 Clybourn avenue.

INFLATION BILL BATTLE OPENED BY REPUBLICANS

Ogden Mills Is Attacked as Lobbyist.

similarly opposed to the measure would not require until after next Wednesday to state their case. But they would sate it, he asserted, "plainly," and he looked for a reaction from an informed country that would kill the bill.

Strikes at Inflation.

"To tamper with the currency is like lighting the fuse of a high explosive and standing by to see what happens," said Senator Reed. "If the fuse sputters and dies nothing happens. If it reaches the explosive things happens rapidly and with destructive effect. The whole history of inflationary experiments in other countries shows that it is almost as impossible to control inflation set in motion by printing press money, following the abandonment of the gold standard, as it is to keep a charge of nitroglycerine in check when the burning fuse reaches it."

Senator Reed declared distress would follow the increased cost of living inevitable upon a devaluation of the dollar. He recalled the distress and disappointment which had attended inflation in foreign countries.

Sees Billions Inflation.

The country ought to know for one thing, the Pennsylvania senator said, that the bill would permit a 12 billion dollar expansion of the currency. Three billions of this amount would be carried in the section of the bill providing for open market purchase of government securities; three billions might be issued under authority to issue new currency for retirement of government obligations. And the authority for the President to diminish the gold content of the dollar, if exercised to the utmost limit of a 50 per cent decrease, would double the amount of the present outstanding currency, creating 12 billions out of the present 6 billions, the senator said.

In addition to this 12 billion dollars expansion, Senator Reed pointed out, the present reserve stocks of gold are sufficient to permit the issuance of 4 billions of additional federal reserve notes, which in turn might be doubled into 8 billions under the gold content clause, making a total potential inflation of 20 billions.

G. O. P. Statement Issued.

Shortly afterward the joint Republican statement was issued from Republican Leader Snell's office with the added comment that "Mr. Mills has seen the statement and approved it."

"The administration inflation bill violates the most elementary principles of sound monetary, credit, and financial policies," was the Republican verdict. "It is better designed to defeat than to promote business recovery.

"It is said that the bill is necessary in order to avoid more radical legislation. What could be more radical than authority to issue printing press money and to give one individual, in direct violation of the constitution, the power to alter at will the value of the medium through which all business transactions are conducted and the terms of all monetary obligations and the value of all property expressed?"

Would Make Concession.

The Republican quartet doubted the wisdom of further treasury influence upon the federal reserve and they scouted the practice of the government's borrowing directly from the central banks, but they would, they said, in view of the emergency, be willing to support some such provision as section 1 of the bill for expansion of credit through open market operations even through direct purchases from the treasury by federal reserve banks.

But beyond that they could not go. Section 2's proposal for retirement of government obligations by a new issue of currency, they said, was simply a resort to the printing press.

"It is undisguised printing press or 'say-so' money," the statement asserted. "In other words, the two sections combined mean six billion additional currency, half secured by paper and half just paper.

"This would represent a doubling of our already swollen circulation. It is inflation on a grand scale. If it does not produce the expected results the government having conceded the principle will be forced to increase the dose.

European Cases Cited.

"If it does take and prices rise because of loss of confidence in the value of the country's currency then the government may well find, as did those of Germany and France, that inflation, once started, feeds upon itself and soon gets completely out of control."

"This bill," the statement continued, "may well constitute the first step on the road to ruin which the German people took under compulsion but upon which it is proposed we now voluntarily embark.

"Let there be no misgiving as to those who bear the loss. Not the well-to-do with funds invested in common stocks, who are in any event best able to take care of themselves, but the wage earner who sees the cost of living fast outpace a lagging wage, the salaried classes and those with fixed incomes, the aged recipients of pensions and annuities, the savings bank depositors, the holders of 121 million insurance policies; the small investors with their life savings invested in one or two sound bonds, and last but not least, the farmer. German farmers today are heavily in debt and pay higher interest rates than before the great inflation."

Called Unconstitutional.

As for the section of the bill giving the President power to alter the gold content of the dollar, not only was it unconstitutional, the four Republicans contended, but it was unthinkable that so great an arbitrary authority should be vested in one man.

By outright inflation, said the statement, the possible benefits to be derived from credit expansion under section one would be wiped out.

"The key to a business revival is cheap long term money which will encourage the revival of heavy industries and the purchase of capital goods." The statement concluded. "But who can afford to lend on time with the threat of inflation, dilution of the currency and the arbitrary decrease of the value of money staring him in the face? Prices may rise, but they will rise as a result of fear, not of confidence, and no permanent prosperity can be erected on any such base.

"It seems unnecessary to emphasize that these proposals may involve the partial repudiation by the government of its obligations and the impairment of countless contracts affecting immense sums payable in gold of the existing standard of value."

Some Democrats Opposed.

Though it was left for the Republican side to spread their criticism openly, opposition came from eminent sources on the Democratic side as well.

Senators William G. McAdoo [Dem., Cal.] and Carter Glass [Dem., Va.], both of them former secretaries of the treasury, and Senator Thomas P. Gore [Dem., Okla.] left their party to vote with the Republicans in the banking and currency committee in the attempt to strike out the section giving the President power to diminish the gold content of the dollar.

And it was from the inflation bill introduced by Senator McAdoo yesterday that there was taken and written into the administration bill by the committee a section empowering the President and the federal reserve board to check too rapid credit expansion by requiring federal reserve banks to increase their reserves against deposits.

Neither Republican opposition nor criticism within their own ranks, however, shook the confidence of the Democratic leaders that the bill will be enacted into law, possibly before the end of next week.

Warns Against Filibuster.

Senator Joe T. Robinson of Arkansas, the senate's majority leader, rose in his seat armed with instructions received at a White House talk with the President to refuse bluntly requests that the inflation measure go through on its own instead of as a rider to the administration farm bill. And ramblings of a filibuster he countered with a warning that dilatory tactics will be the signal for cloture to be imposed.

"I desire all senators," he said, "to understand that if the President is to be hampered in the important work he is now undertaking, that fact should be made known to the country, and the senate should act upon it."

Leader Robinson made much of the necessity for pushing the measure through so that President Roosevelt may be armed when he meets the delegates of the foreign governments in the series that began with Premier MacDonald's arrival this afternoon.

Chairman Duncan Fletcher [Dem., Fla.] introduced the report of his banking committee on the bill, and with it a committee resolution recommending that the inflation measure be taken up as a separate bill and not as an amendment to the farm bill.

Robinson Demands Speed.

But Senator Robinson would have none of it. He wanted speed and intended to obtain it by pushing the farm bill and inflation rider through in one measure.

"If anything is to be accomplished in connection with the stabilization of exchange and of foreign currencies it is desirable that the authority of the President be defined as sooh as practicable," he said. "The President feels that it would be of great value and assistance to him to have this amendment disposed of as soon as practicable to the end that he may know and that others interested in the conference may knew the extent of his authority to the further end that he may be assisted and supported in making arrangements which it is believed are of first importance to the commerce of the United States, to domestic conditions, and for that matter to the business situation in various parts of the world."

Wants Plan to Stand Alone.

Republican Leader Charles L. McNary of Oregon pleaded in vain for the bill to be allowed to stand on its own feet.

"To offer it as an amendment to the farm bill is unfair," he complained. "It will deprive senators of the right to express their opinions in their votes."

"If we wish to strengthen the hands of the President in the very heroic and difficult task which he is assuming we should define his authority in time for that definition to be reflected in his negotiations which are commencing this evening," Senator Robinson replied.

What was not so openly discussed in debate was the report, generally current, that neither the domestic price situation nor the foreign exchange factor could alone have driven the administration to propose so drastic a step had it not been for the mushroom growth of the inflationist movement in congress itself during the past few weeks.

The 33 senators who voted last Monday in favor of free silver at 16 to 1 were just so many reasons for the administration to get in first with its own plan for "controlled inflation" before some even more drastic legislation was punched through by a restive congress.

MADE AMBASSADOR

SUMNER WELLES.
[Acme Photo.]

Washington, D. C., April 21.—[Special.]—Sumner Welles of Maryland, who had but recently taken office as assistant secretary of state, was nominated by President Roosevelt to be ambassador to Cuba.

The appointment was manifestly of an emergency character in connection with the disturbed conditions in Cuba and the desire of the administration to readjust commercial relations with the island republic so as to ease the sugar situation and thereby contribute to economic rehabilitation and political stability.

Other nominations sent to the senate were:

Theodore A. Walter of Idaho, to be first assistant secretary of the interior.

Francis Winfred Peck of Minnesota, to be a member of the federal farm board.

URGE HORNER TO KEEP WAGES UP TO PRICE LEVELS

Gov. Horner was urged to take action to insure a rise in wages equal to the inflation of commodity prices in a resolution made public yesterday by the joint labor legislative board of Illinois.

"The announcement that the United States is now off the gold standard in the world's trade clarifies the meaning and purpose of the telegram sent last week by President Roosevelt to governors of the various industrial states, urging action to safeguard wage standards throughout industry and commerce," the resolution said.

"A rise in commodity prices is expected on all sides. Wage rates in a great number of industrial and commercial enterprises have, in recent months, dropped to an almost unbelievably low level. Inflation of commodity prices brought about by governmental action as a means of stimulating trade will undobutedly proceed at a much faster rate than any corresponding rise in wages unless, through some action as urged by President Roosevelt, steps are taken by the state government here and in other states to bring about improvements in wage rates wherever they have dropped below a living standard.

"This, it seems to us, is a matter of such pressing importance that it calls for immediate attention and prompt action, failing in which great numbers of our people, who have up to the present time managed to sustain themselves, will eventually be forced, through the rise of commodity prices, to seek aid from the public relief agencies."

ASKS ECONOMIC LITERACY AS AID TO BUSINESS RISE

An increase in economic literacy among the people and in business statesmanship among the economic leaders is necessary to business recovery, Dean W. H. Spencer of the University of Chicago School of Business told members of the Executives club at the Hotel Sherman yesterday.

"Who can doubt," he asked, "that a part of our present difficulties arise out of the economic illiteracy of the masses of the people, and who can deny that in large measure our present difficulties grow out of a serious breakdown of business leadership at the top?

"Business in the past has survived sinking spells, and it is not unreasonable to hope that it will survive this one. But even if it be admitted that the patient is on the road to recovery the fact remains that he is still very sick. He must not get up too quickly and must beware of drink with high speculative content.

"In spite of the Socialist, the communist, and the technocrat, the capitalistic way of doing business is not utter chaos and planlessness. Our business leaders are largely responsible for the apportionment of social energy and for coordination and control of thousands and millions of business specialists."

HOUSE PASSES BILL PROVIDING STATE GIFT AID

Measure Calls for Fund of Half Billion.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 21.—[Special.]—The house of representatives today followed the footsteps of the senate toward a federal dole.

By a vote of 331 to 42, the house passed the so-called Wagner-Lewis bill providing half a billion dollars of federal money for outright relief gifts to the states.

A moment earlier it had voted 109 to 263 to turn down a proposal which would have kept the government's emergency relief assistance on a strict loan basis without curtailing in any way the amount provided in the bill

Approved by Senate.

The bill, already approved by the senate, will create a federal relief administrator to supervise the 500 million dollar fund. The total is to be divided into two equal portions—one-half to be alloted to the states on the basis of need, and the other half used to match state relief expenditures at the ratio of one federal dollar to three expended by the state. No one state will be able to obtain more than 15 per cent of the total sum.

Over the protests of the Republicans, who charged them with making a political job machine out of the relief bill, the Democrats by a vote of 215 to 161 struck from the measure a provision requiring that all employés of the new relief administration have civil service status. With this provision eliminated, jobs created under the bill will be available to a wide range of persons.

Leads Republican Fight.

Representative Robert Luce [Rep., Mass.] led the Republican fight to retain the present loan system of federal relief. It was he who submitted the motion to recommit the bill which instructed that the committee return it so drafted that the fund would be loaned instead of granted, to the states.

"This bill will certainly break down the spirit of state and local responsibility," said Mr. Luce.

Chairman Henry Steagall [Dem., Ala.] of the banking and currency committee retorted that the bill represented the relief philosophy of the Roosevelt administration as opposed to that of the Hoover régime, and his Democratic colleagues rallied immediately to the party cause.

Although the relief measure has passed the senate it must return for the formality of a new sanction. The house considered the bill introduced by Representative David Lewis [Dem., Md.] while the senate adopted the measure sponsored by Senator Robert F. Wagner [Dem., N. Y.]. Although the two are identical the house version must be approved by the senate under parliamentary procedure.

ABLIN'S AGENTS FREED; ACCUSER DENIES THREATS

Charges of intimidation were dismissed yesterday by Judge Joseph McGarry in the South State Street court in the cases of Raymond Keenan and William Howeland, promoters for David [Cock-eyed Mulligan] Ablin's new Chicago Service Station Operators' Protective association.

The complainant was George Geller, a south side gasoline station oil owner, living at 1955 North Leamington avenue. He had told police that he had been threatened with being shot if he refused to join Ablin's union.

In court Geller said that neither Keenan nor Howeland had threatened him. Howeland had merely asked him to join, he added. Both defendants likewise denied making threats. They were then freed, with warnings by Judge McGarry, however, that if additional evidence were submitted against them in the future he would punish them. Keenan and Howeland walked out of court with Ablin, the latter in the rôle of an interested spectator.

FILL COOK CO. QUOTA OF FOREST ARMY TONIGHT

Expect Orders for a Second Contingent.

Cook county's quota of 4,000 idle men for the reforestation army will be filled by tonight, Joseph L. Moss, director of the county bureau of public welfare, announced last night. Yesterday 4,154 young men had been selected for enlistment by the public relief agency and by private charities. Only 300 have been rejected as physically unfit.

Mr. Moss said that the county organization is preparing to select another quota of 4,000 as soon as authority for their enlistment is received from Washington. He said he had received no official notice, but believed that the second quota would be ordered.

Only Nine Recruits Quit.

Up to yesterday 3,450 recruits had reported for two weeks' training at Fort Sheridan. Another 500 in expected today. In the last nine days only 15 members of the civilian army have left the camp, according to Maj. Paul McDonnell, camp commander. An equal number departed when they received civilian jobs. No orders have been received to send contingents of the reforestation army to timber camps as yet, Maj. McDonnell said.

Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commander of the sixth corps area, announced yesterday that thirty reserve officers have been ordered to active duty in Illinois, Michigan, and Wisconsin to command the reforestation army. The officers will report today at Fort Sheridan, Camp Custer, Mich., and Jefferson Barracks, Mo.

Illinois Men Get Orders.

Illinois reserve officers ordered to active duty at Fort Sheridan include Capt. George G. Mills, 511 Lee street, Evanston; Capt. Harvey M. Hopp, 175 West Jackson boulevard; First Lieutenant L. W. Giltner, 510 Hawthorne street, Elmhurst; First Lieutenant Clifford A. Kaiser, 5493 Cornell street; First Lieutenant Frank X. Cruikshank, 2200 Warren boulevard, and Second Lieutenant A. N. Niemi, 5950 West Superior street.

Illinois reserve officers ordered to active duty at Jefferson Barracks, Mo., are Capt. Harry E. Cooper, 6417 St. Anthony court; First Lieutenant S. L. Johnson, 616 Kishwaukee street, Rockford; First Lieutenant Joseph K. Davis, 925 Webster avenue, Wheaton, and Second Lieutenant Carl M. Mikaelson, 5002 North Paulina street.

P. F. LA FOLLETTE HERE; SAYS DOLE HELPS BUSINESS

Former Gov. Philip F. La Follette of Wisconsin, who has just returned from Europe, said yesterday that the "back to the land" movement has failed to relieve the depression abroad. The dole and work relief appear to provide the best stimulus to trade, he told a luncheon meeting of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations.

La Follette cited the experience in Germany where more than 750,000 persons have moved out of Berlin to live on the land. These people, he said, have not gone back to the farm life of 1925, but have reverted to a primitive type of self-sustaining agricultural life such as existed in the fourth and fifth centuries.

In Great Britain this process has been reversed, he remarked, and the people have been kept in the cities by means of the dole. As a result they provide a purchasing power which has become responsible for the much greater total volume of business in England.

City Gets Year's First Lot of California Cherries

The year's first shipment of California cherries was received in Chicago yesterday by A. Mages & Co., 106 South Water market. The cherry crop ripened two weeks earlier than last year, officials of the company said, and is larger than usual.

DAY'S GIFTS TO FUND FOR HUNGRY PUPILS DROP TO ONLY $12.50

The Hungry School Children's fund had rather a sad day of it yesterday when it came to counting up the day's total in gifts. Only $12.50 reached the fund, whose task is to feed 10,000 children daily in 100 public schools.

However, Verdun unit, No. 472, of the American Legion auxiliary helped the fund along with a gift and two old friends, the Bookhouse for Children and "Fees," sent additional contributions. But it should be remembered that $12.50 can't go far in the huge feeding program, and unless the daily totals push upward considerably the fund may find it impossible to continue feeding the present number of youngsters.

Acknowledgment is made as follows of yesterday's gifts:

$5.40—The Bookhouse for Children.
$2—Verdun unit, No. 472, American Legion Auxiliary.
$1.10—Fees.
$1—Mrs. Russell.

Total	$ 12.50
Previously acknowledged	23,598.87
Grand total	$23,611.37

LINDBERGHS AT ST. LOUIS IN TRIP ACROSS COUNTRY

St. Louis, Mo., April 21.—[Special.]—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh landed at the airport here this afternoon, completing another lap on their coast to coast air jaunt. It was his first visit to his old home town since January, 1930. He and his wife are staying here overnight.

Not more than fifty persons were present, most of them being newspaper people and employés of Lambert-St. Louis field. Col. Lindbergh alighted first from the plane, then assisted his wife to the ground. She wore a tailored blue suit and hat of the same color. He was hatless, as usual. The two posed smilingly for photographers. The colonel shook hands with several newspaper men whom he knew when he worked out of here as a mail flyer.

The Lindberghs reached Lambert field from Indianapolis, a flight of 230 miles, which they made in 1 hour and 27 minutes. They arrived in Indianapolis from Columbus, O. The stop at Indianapolis was uneventful. That at Columbus, where they landed the night before, was reminiscent of old times, more than 500 greeting them.

VIENNA, April 21.—(AP)—The cabinet of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss issued a decree today making political strikes a crime against the state. The measure forestalled any possibility of a Socialist general strike against the government.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

ONE THING AT A TIME.

The bare announcement that the dollar had been divorced from gold and that some kind of inflationary measures were to be undertaken sent the stock and commodity markets soaring. The trend of prices may be taken as evidence of the confidence of business men in a rapid improvement. It seems pretty clear that if their expectations are realized the government will have to take few other measures of a reconstructive sort.

While hopes for successful manipulation of the currency are running high, it is still true that the latest move in Washington is experimental. To that extent it involves risks. The experience of this country with such measures is limited, and there is no agreement among financiers and economists as to the ultimate results. There is, however, a pretty substantial agreement that of all the experiments undertaken or proposed by the Roosevelt administration, except only its economy measures, this is the one which will do the most good and the least harm.

In that respect it differs sharply from Secretary Wallace's farm bill and Secretary Perkins' wages-and-hours bill. Both of them are price-fixing measures and in the light of universal experience with such schemes must be expected to end disastrously for lack of control of production. Both measures in addition will tend to disrupt the existing channels of trade, the farm bill by placing further restrictions on trading in farm products and the labor bill by discouraging interstate commerce in manufactures. For months after either of these bills is enacted the country must expect to be in a ferment. Indecision and fear, the great allies of deflation, will counteract much of the benefits that it is hoped will flow from the currency program of the administration.

This country can risk an experiment in inflation after three and a half years of almost unremitting deflation, but it is doubtful if it can stand at the same time the experiments in price-fixing and industrial dictatorship which Mr. Wallace and Miss Perkins favor. The risk of ruin when three such revolutionary measures are undertaken is altogether too great to justify the chance. For the present congress should confine its activities to the monetary program and let the others lapse.

FRANCE IN DEBT PARLEY.

Following Mr. MacDonald will come M. Herriot and his French associates, invited by President Roosevelt for the same purposes as bring Mr. MacDonald and representatives of other nations. Herriot is the French statesman who lost his government because he wanted to pay the French installment on the debt when due. It was a trivial payment of less than twenty million dollars, owed by a country fully able to pay it. Herriot, although he lost his premiership, comes as the representative of a government which defaulted.

France was able to pay. It had the second largest gold accumulation in the world. In spite of this it preferred, for reasons which the United States has failed to recognize as valid, to appear in future debt conferences as a defaulter rather than as a solvent debtor willing to make good on its obligations until they had been changed in substance and form by agreement with its creditor.

It may be unfair that Herriot as a man should carry the responsibility for this situation as a statesman, but nevertheless there the situation is. France sends a delegation at Mr. Roosevelt's invitation, but it is a delegation from a defiant defaulter, from a state which has reneged on its highest commitments, and which has done so truculently and with no other purpose than to declare its national conviction that its creditor is morally shameless and without a just cause in international opinion. The United States protests that declaration, and, although courtesy will be extended the French representatives, their case before the American nation is in distinctly worse position than that of the British, who have paid, and, although they protest, will abide by their agreements until the agreements are altered.

POSTAL RATES AND SOME OTHERS.

A bill to empower the President to manipulate postal rates has been introduced in congress at the request of the postmaster general, Mr. Farley. The bill is intended to provide a means for combating the postal deficit. It takes congress a long time to decide what the rates shall be, and frequently, when new rates are tried out, they prove to be disappointing. Thus the 3 cent rate on first class mail has not been as productive of revenue as was expected. By the time congress gets around to changing the rate needless losses will have been incurred and perhaps the new idea will prove as unsound as was the old one. It is reasonable to suppose that the man best able to set rates which will at once avoid deficits and permit a maximum use of the postal facilities is precisely the head of the postoffice department.

It would seem also that an administration which can see this principle as it applies to transporting the mails should be able to appreciate it as it applies to all other forms of transportation. The aim of the administration with respect to railroads is to restore them to solvency. There is no better way of doing that than the method which the administration has proposed for restoring the postoffice department to solvency—namely: to give to the executive head of each railroad system a pretty free hand in determining what rates shall be charged for various services.

The delays which the postoffice department encounters in trying to get its tariffs changed by congress are certainly no longer than the delays encountered by the railroads in their dealings with the interstate commerce commission. The commission can almost be relied upon to use boom time evidence to raise rates in a depression, and vice versa. A couple of years is the expectable wait when any general revision is under consideration and a lot of things can happen in a couple of years.

Any rate is tentative and experimental. Costs of transportation change. So does the ability of the tariff to meet the rates asked. Mr. Farley now knows that when letter postage went up to 3 cents a lot of business was killed. The same thing happens when railroad rates are too high. They kill business. A principal objection to the interstate commerce commission as a ratemaking authority is that it is cumbersome. By the time it gets around to revising rates to recognize a new state of facts traffic is lost irretrievably. Ships or trucks have taken it or markets have been seized by competitors.

THE RELIEF FUNDS.

The subject here approached has its fully recognized difficulties. It is that of the relief of the destitute. Any inquiry into its integrity must be prepared to disarm criticism, in turn, because the motive will be misinterpreted and there will be an unreasoning feeling that a lack of sympathy is concealed in the investigation.

Circumstances thus make it an unpleasant task to insist upon a critical analysis of what is being done with funds raised to support the destitute. It cannot be shirked because of this. Cook county relief now has a stated cost of seven million dollars a month. It is freely recognized that for several years some of the best citizens in Chicago have given their time and their money to this tremendous problem. They have worked and they have worried. They have worn themselves out attacking the social tragedy which pained them as men and women and taxed all their ingenuity to meet its demands. They have been unselfish and without reward. It must be quite as plainly recognized that there is inherent in any scheme of relief affecting so many thousands of people and requiring so many millions of dollars a tendency to laxness, to overexpenditure, and a liability to fraud and deception.

Just as trying times bring out the virtues, they also develop the vices. Desitution and idleness may produce fine qualities of sympathy and also many manifestations of weakness and duplicity. We do not know how long the period of abnormal suffering may be extended. We hope it is nearing its end. But we do know that as it continues, as the resources for meeting it grow less and the need grows greater, an inflexible probity must control the expenditures. If the deserving are not to suffer more than they should, the undeserving must be discovered and frauds must be stopped. The social workers are the ones who should have or should be able to obtain information to guide the work of carrying over the truly needy families and individuals. Impostors are really working to defeat the social benefits and the humanitarian ends justifying the relief work. It would be a crime if deceits and frauds were permitted to wreck an imperative social work. Criticism which develops errors is not unsympathetic, but it is in its very nature of the highest humanity.

Editorial of the Day

[Minneapolis Tribune.]

President Roosevelt's Tennessee valley development project, which he discussed in general terms prior to his inauguration, has bobbed up again as the subject of a special message to congress.

While an infinite number of details remain to be filled in, it is plain that Mr. Roosevelt contemplates a vast experiment in national planning with a complete river watershed for his laboratory. In this laboratory lies Muscle Shoals, but the experiment is not to be confined to the development of power; as the President envisions it, it should embrace flood control, soil erosion, forestation, the elimination of marginal land from agriculture, and the distribution and diversification of industry.

To carry such a program into effect Mr. Roosevelt proposes the creation of a corporation which is "clothed with the power of government but possessed of the flexibility and initiative of private enterprise." This corporation would be charged with planning for the conservation and development of the natural resources of the Tennessee valley and with rehabilitating the Muscle Shoals project.

That nearly every one will wish for the complete success of such an experiment goes almost without saying. But it is not unreasonable to inquire, after giving Mr. Roosevelt due credit for a happy vision, as to just what the experiment will cost and how deeply it is intended to thrust the federal government, through such an experiment, into the field of private enterprise. On these points Mr. Roosevelt's message throws little light, but they are matters in which the country as a whole, which must underwrite a program of the sort, has more than a passing interest. It is one thing for the federal government to encourage the orderly development of the Tennessee valley and its resources and still another for it to sink untold millions into a program of bureaucratic regulation and control. To pass intelligent judgment on the Roosevelt plan it would be necessary to know exactly what his intentions are in regard to Muscle Shoals and whether he plans to rehabilitate it, at a tremendous outlay, for the sole purpose of putting it into competition with private industry.

We can all agree, in other words, that the federal government may properly interest itself in such projects as Mr. Roosevelt has outlined; but the merits of any experiment, in the last analysis, depend on the moderation and restraint it exercises in translating that interest into concrete terms. The nation, we believe, has no consuming desire to see the federal government finance huge development schemes in the Tennessee valley, or any great faith that it can create a Utopia from the taxpayers' money. But if Mr. Roosevelt simply contemplates the giving of impetus and direction to certain needed projects, no fair objection can be raised to that.

GETTING OFF the gold standard is a little like getting off a slippery log. We hadn't thought of getting off at all; we hadn't wanted to get off; we hadn't, in fact, thought anything much about it. But all of a sudden we seemed to be slipping, there was a loud splash—and we were off!

WASHINGTON CHERRY TREES.

Now bloom the lovely cherry trees again.
Nearby, the Monument; not far away,
Majestic in the morning sun's first ray,
Looms the Memorial to Lincoln, plain,
Noble and pure. In meekness, in disdain
To those who carped their fretful day—
Trees, Monument, Memorial—still they
The lofty legends of the past maintain.

So, when I see the cherry trees in bloom,
I know the tale, ingenuous, was truth
That Weems told; and I know the faint perfume
Of that first tree, cut down by thoughtless youth,
A gentle ghost, still permeates the air,
Confounding Moderns with its essence, rare.

LOOKS AS THOUGH we would have to continue inflation of the last line for quite a long time, and we are very glad, as inflation makes it go farther. Of course, some of our poets are a little nervous for fear the last line will keep on inflating until it pushes some of their rhymes out of the column, but there is not the slightest danger. We have our inflating completely under control.

OUR FRIEND, THE ANT.

THERE is an old and well known bit of doggerel about fleas having other fleas to bite them.

A certain army medical officer made practical use of the principle which is the theme of this verse. He had some soldiers' quarters which were infested with bedbugs. Ordinary means of getting rid of them proved ineffective. He was in a country where there prevail several diseases transmissible by insects. The case against the bedbug as a disease spreader is a poor one. There is no evidence that it is an important agency in the spread of any disease and yet this pest is always under suspicion.

Its method of feeding, its foods, its habits generally qualify it so admirably for spreading communicable disease that one always feels like returning the Scotch verdict of "guilty although not proven."

This angry medical officer decided to try setting ants on the bedbugs. He found it worked. A colony of small red ants was transferred to the infested quarters and there made at home. The ants were observed as they caught, killed, and ate the bugs. A bedbug can hide away in inaccessible cracks, but small red ants can swarm into a crack that would scarcely accommodate a bedbug.

In order for the method to succeed certain conditions must be met. The ant nest must contain eggs and young ants as workers and rulers. The insects will abandon a transferred nest if there are no eggs and young to be protected. In climates where even egg laying is seasonal care must be taken not to remove nests containing no eggs and young.

Another requisite is that the premises must be kept free from crumbs of bread, sugar, and other ant food. These insects will not attack and kill bedbugs if they have plenty of sugar waiting to be consumed. It is not necessary to pay any attention to water, either to provide it or to make it inaccessible. Ants appear to be able to get all the water they need from their food.

Temperature is to be considered. Ants do not come out of the cracks during cold weather. They will not come out in large numbers in cold weather even though the air in the rooms be warm.

These facts indicate that the ant method of routing bedbugs has its limitations. It will not work in some places and at some times. But there are premises and occasions for which it seems to be well suited.

CALLUSES.

H. L. writes: I have a lot of calluses on my hands. I take them all off with pumice stone, but in a couple of days they are as bad as ever again. I am a machinist by trade, 40 years old, and have been this way all my life. Is this a disease? Is there any way of curing it?

REPLY.

There is little you can do short of changing your job, and that is risky now. Calluses form to protect the bones, joints, and other underlying tissue. They are one of nature's methods of taking care of exposed parts.

Can you wear gloves while you are at work? The heavier they are in the palm area the better. Possibly you can wear gloves trimmed to protect the calloused areas but leaving other parts of your hand free.

Can you use your hands differently?

METHYLENE.

M. M. B. writes: Concerning the article on an antidote for cyanide and monoxide poisoning I am rather amazed that you still give the old version of how this antidote was discovered, omitting completely the part I played in suggesting not only the use of methylene blue for cyanide, but in actually doing the first experiments on monoxide poisoning in animals and suggesting to Dr. Geiger personally that he try methylene out in human cases.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

CITIZEN OR NOT?

Chicago, April 13.—[Friend of the People.]—If a girl was brought to this country at the age of 4, has lived here for 23 years, and is now married to a citizen [1] is she an American citizen? 2. Has she the right to vote? 3. Must she take out citizenship papers? A. D.

1. If she was married to a citizen before Sept. 22, 1922, she became a citizen of the United States by such marriage; if she was married on or after that date she did not.

2. It is understood that the right to vote is allowed only to citizens.

3. If she did not become a citizen by her marriage and wishes to apply for naturalization she may, being the wife of a citizen, file a petition for naturalization without a declaration of intention (first paper) and need prove only one year's residence in the United States. FRED J. SCHLOTFELDT, District Director, United States Department of Labor.

MORTGAGE.

Chicago, April 13.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—The writer owns a piece of property on which the mortgage will be due in a few months. I gave another piece of property by quitclaim deed to my daughter a few days before the former piece of property's mortgage loan became due. Can the mortgage holder have any claim on the property I gave to my daughter in the event the loan man would foreclose or would demand the principal of the mortgage which we could not pay? The property is worth about three or four times the amount of the mortgage. A. P.

Yes. If on the foreclosure sale the property does not bring enough to pay the mortgage plus charges a deficiency decree can be taken and your other assets subjected to payment of such a decree. The gift to your daughter could be set aside as a fraud on existing creditors.

CHICAGO—Fifty-four carloads of material and works of art, comprising the first installment of the Italian exhibit, arrived at the World's Fair grounds. The goods were brought over from Italy on the Royal steamship Eridano. His excellency Marquis Ungaro, M. P., royal Italian commissioner, will direct the placing of the exhibits. There were twenty cars containing rare wood carvings and furniture. Among the collection were large consignments from the leading wood carvers of Italy, like Mariani of Milan, Besarel of Venice, Ramellio of Milan, Toso of Venice, Picchi of Florence, and Lanetti of Vicenza. A number of rare old pieces of furniture and antique wood carvings came from the industrial museum of Naples. Five or six cars contained what the Italians call jesurum, consisting of costly laces, brocades, and silk stuffs. Several cars of marble statuary from Florence, to be used as models for work that will be done during the exposition, were likewise received.

The greater portion of Brazil's exhibit reached the World's Fair grounds yesterday. The Brazilians have made an appropriation of nearly $600,000 and yesterday's consignment shows there would be coffee enough in the display to give every visitor a taste of the luscious beverage as it is brewed in the new republic.

"Today we unpacked what I considered one of the most interesting features of the exhibitions which we shall make," said Karl Hagenbeck, the greatest dealer in wild animals in the world. "In this collection we shall try to illustrate the Darwinian theory. We have specimens of every known species of what are called the anthropomorphic apes. There is the chimpanzee, the gorilla, the orangoutang, and several others, some of which are extremely rare. In the same room we shall have a stuffed man of a low order of development, so that the series will be complete."

WITH THE BALFOUR PARTY.—Great Britain's high commissioners to the international war council, to begin in Washington next week, set foot on American soil yesterday and now are on their way to the capital. Arthur James Balfour, secretary of state for foreign affairs of the empire, formerly premier, and often called the dean of the world's elder statesmen, is the central figure of a party that includes some of Great Britain's most prominent men. Mr. Balfour warmly expressed his appreciation of all the United States has done as a neutral in charitable and relief work in Belgium and in German prison camps, his gratification that England and the United States now were allied for a common purpose, and his conviction that this country in its war efforts would astound the world, particularly Germany. The British statesmen, having safely evaded the German submarines and mines which sent Lord Kitchener to his death, were received with the highest honors as guests of the American people when they arrived at a place in America which cannot be named.

WAR SUMMARY.—Reports from French front say poilus have driven Germans out of gun range of Soissons. Paris reports continued progress north of Sancy and repulse of counter attacks north of Braye-en-Laonnois. London reports the repulse of German efforts to recapture Gonnelieu. Further advances were recorded east of Fampaux and southwest of Lens. Berlin reports heavy artillery actions along the whole front. Strikes and rioting in many German cities are reported to have caused declaration of state of siege. German sea raid, possibly aimed at death or capture of Premier Lloyd George, results in naval victory for the British.

CHICAGO.—A. A. Sprague, who is president of Sprague, Warner & Co., roused by what he considered an affront to the national anthem, when played in Orchestra hall last night by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, filed charges against three young men who refused to rise when the anthem was played. Mr. Sprague was seconded by Mrs. Sprague, Bishop and Mrs. Charles P. Anderson and Attorney Morris Johnston, 1636 Prairie avenue, all of whom were incensed by the affront to the patriotic music.

THE OBSOLETE OFFICE OF CORONER.

Evanston, Ill., April 17.—The Oser case has once more focused attention on the coroner's office. The functions of the coroner's office are in part of a technical medical character and in part of a technical legal character. The performance of both functions is vitiated by the fact that the appointment of coroner's physicians and deputy coroners and the selection of coroner's juries are influenced by political considerations.

The office is antiquated and obsolete. It was transplanted from England to the original colonies. It was a governmental agency adapted, and even in the beginning none too well adapted, to a rural civilization. Life and civilization have become more complicated, but the office of coroner has undergone little or no change that would better fit it to meet present day conditions.

The determination of causes of death, which is the chief medical function of the coroner, is a scientific procedure that should employ every technical advance that medicine has made in the past century of very rapid development. In populous jurisdictions other than Cook county this duty of determining the cause of death is called upon in variable degree in ten per cent of all the deaths that occur in the community.

The inquest is a magisterial or quasi-judicial proceeding, usually conducted by a deputy who has no legal training, before a jury composed of persons to whom one would not by choice submit any matter of importance. The purpose of the inquest is to determine whether a crime or negligent act has been committed. Incidentally, it may uncover evidence that will determine who is responsible for the crime or negligent act. The inquest is of little help in the administration of justice. Not infrequently it obstructs justice and renders its administration more difficult. The coroner, in the holding of an inquest, does nothing that must not be done all over again by the state's attorney.

The inquest should be abolished as a function of the coroner. If the medical examination indicates that legal investigation is necessary, the latter should be made by the state's attorney, with the aid of the police and the sheriff's office. If the inquisitional duties of the coroner are transferred from that official to the state's attorney, only the medical duties would be left. These should be performed by qualified physicians acting under civil service. The physician could and should report his findings directly to the state's attorney. Shorn of its medical and legal duties, the coroner's office would lose every reason for further existence. With the office abolished, with the medical duties transferred to an independent medical examiner reporting directly to the state's attorney, and with the latter making the legal investigation that he must make anyway in every suspected criminal or negligent death, we would arrive at the medical examiner system which has proved itself highly successful in Massachusetts, New York City, and Essex county, New Jersey.

What local government needs is not a new coroner or a reformed old coroner or a coroner of different political affiliation but abolition of the coroner system and its replacement by the medical examiner system.

SENATE BILL 150.

Chicago, April 18.—Senate bill 150, now before the senate, is of vital interest to the welfare of dependent children in Illinois.

It is a shame to the state that many needy children in order to receive public care must first, technically, become delinquents. This bill, known by legislators as the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society bill is undertaking to correct this deplorable situation. The society is promoting the bill because its workers who go into the counties where there is great child neglect are brought face to face with the plight of numbers of children, shamefully neglected, for whose care no provision now exists except that which is offered by private agencies.

The bill places upon the state department of public welfare the obligation of making provision for the protection and care of needy children who cannot be received or cared for by any other existing agency. It does not interfere at all with the operation of any other existing public or private organization, but it does emphasize the right of a great number of children, terribly in need, to the security and protection, the education and the care to which they are entitled.

This bill may be opposed because of presumed added expense. The history of the state of Massachusetts in protection of minors through public funds clearly demonstrates the value of such a measure. This plan proves that a relatively small sum of money used in the protection of neglected children obviates the subsequent large expense of prosecution and incarceration of delinquents.

In some of the counties of Illinois the only provision that exists for the protection and care of these children is the poor farm and the jail.

When children—induced by their training and environment—become delinquents, begin to steal or become a community nuisance, they are immediately eligible for state care. They can be brought before the Juvenile court and, as delinquents, sent to a state institution where they will be cared for at large expense until eligible for parole. Many of them after serving their period in an industrial school return to the same environment from whence they came. It has been a costly investment.

BAIT SELLER'S LAMENT.

Chicago, April 13.—I am one of 105 men who have been deprived of the right of selling bait at the lake front because an unscrupulous politician found it advantageous to sell the concession to one person.

For the last two years the 105 men have been permitted to sell bait and thereby receive a little money to keep themselves, their parents and dependents from becoming charges of the state. They had each paid the sum of $5 for the necessary permit. AL FLANIGAN.

VULNERABLE.

Chicago, April 8.—Perhaps the south park commissioners have the welfare of Chicago people at heart when they oppose the laying of street car tracks across Michigan avenue into the World's Fair grounds.

Turn about is fair play. Chicago citizens, who are also voters, should have this same welfare in mind at the coming election next June when the future status of the present south park board may be up for consideration.

STATE HIGHWAY PROGRAM GIVES CITIES A SHARE

May Get Something for High Contributions.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., April 21.—[Special.]—Representative David Hunter [Rep., Rockford], chairman of former Gov. Emmerson's road advisory commission, today cited statistics to show that the commission's recommendations for future state highway construction within cities would not give the municipalities more than their dues in view of their contributions to Illinois' paving fund.

These recommendations, pending before the general assembly, include an allotment of 1 cent from the gasoline tax for construction within cities by the state. They also remove restrictions on the type of construction so that in Chicago the money could be used for elevated highways such as proposed by the city's traffic survey. The legislative measures this week received the indorsement of Gov. Horner's chief highway engineer and his director of public works.

Near 7 Million for Chicago.

Chicago, under this allocation of gas funds, would receive $6,820,373 a year. The federal government's economic survey for 1930 listed this city as paying $9,949,700 in gasoline taxes and $6,096,100 in motor registration fees. The municipality's streets never received a penny's worth of pavement in return until the 1931 general assembly allotted $3,000,000 for the biennium.

Cities of between 75,000 and 400,000 population would get $316,684, under the commission program. They paid $673,900 in registration fees and $1,035,000 in gas tax in 1930.

Cities of between 15,000 and 75,000 would receive $2,701,584 in improvements. They paid $3,560,000 in license fees and $5,558,300 in gas tax in the year of the government survey.

Municipalities of between 2,500 and 15,000 population would get $2,924,189 They paid $3,054,700 for 1930 license plates and $4,819,600 in gasoline taxes.

Rural Roads Get Most.

Villages of less than 2,500 population would get $2,689,982 for streets and roads, as compared with $2,775,200 in license fees and $4,367,700 in motor fuel excise paid in 1930.

For rural roads in unincorporated areas, $31,231,138 would be allocated. The farmer motorists paid $2,287,200 in license fees and $2,516,400 in gas tax in 1930.

The advisory commission program does not change the assignment of the $18,447,200 a year collected in registration fees. It is dedicated by law to pay interest and principal on the $160,000,000 road bonds. Since 92.1 per cent of the bond issue system mileage is in unincorporated country, $14,241,267 of the registration fees is included in the $31,231,138 allotment for rural roads. The rest of the $18,447,200 goes to smaller municipalities.

Much Goes to Relief.

The 1 cent to the cities would be apportioned in relation to population. A second cent of the motor fuel levy would be spent by the state in improvements on the bond issue system such as widenings, grade separations, realignments, and resurfacing. The third cent would continue as at present, to go to the counties for expenditure on local roads or city streets at the discretion of the respective counties. Much of the counties' money has been pledged for relief.

SECURITY LIFE AFFAIRS PROBED BY GRAND JURY

The Cook county grand jury yesterday opened an investigation into the affairs of the defunct Security Life Insurance Company of America. Assistant States' Attorneys Vernon Thompson and Benjamin Nelson, who are in charge of the case, said the testimony was presented to show evidence of conspiracy.

Ald. John A. Massen was appointed receiver for the company on April 18, 1932, in the United States district court. An impairment of $5,025,342 in the assets of the company was noted in a report made by Receiver Massen in federal court early this month. Mr. Massen said that when he took over the company its books carried capital at $250,000 and assets at $9,921,667.

This impairment was reflected in part by depreciation in the capital stock of the Inter-Southern Life Insurance company, the Northern States Life Insurance company, mortgages on part of a tract of real estate formerly owned by the Manufacturers' Terminal company, Waukegan, and a collateral loan of $330,036 to Edwin Hult & Co., Hammond, Ind., held by Security Life.

Mr. Massen said in the report that some time in May, 1930, the Keystone Holding company, with executive offices in Hammond, Ind., acquired shares and voting trust certificates of the Security Life company.

Fair to Have Even 'Sounds and Smells of Paris'

Even the sounds and smells of Paris, as well as the sights, will be incorporated in the concession, "Streets of Paris," when A Century of Progress exposition opens June 1. Georges Cauuet has been appointed "director of costumes, sounds, and smells," George Lytton, president of Paris, Inc., announced yesterday. All of the cafés of "Streets of Paris," as well as a theater, dance pavilion, swimming pool, shops and promenades will be completed by May 29, when an inaugural Bal des Quat'z Arts will be held, he said.

Fair Exhibit to Trace Changes in Family Life

The typical family of 100 years ago and that of today will be depicted in bas-relief groups flanking a miniature stage in a small motion picture which will be a feature of the exhibit of the Household Finance corporation at A Century of Progress. The theater, in the Hall of Social Science on Northerly island, will show a changing series of natural color pictures portraying the development of social and economic life since 1833.

For Each Campus

Miss Marianne Dooley, 4812 Washington boulevard, and Miss Anne Leies, 1956 Larrabee street, are 1933 queens of De Paul university. Margaret Fleming, editor of the De Paulian, school annual, announced their selection following the counting of the student vote. Miss Dooley was chosen as queen of the north campus and Miss Leies as queen of the downtown campus. They will be crowned at the senior ball of the university, which is to be held May 13 at the Stevens hotel.

FIGHT TO KEEP LAKE FOREST IN SCHOOL DISTRICT

Neighbors Oppose Proposed Law.

A fight was opened in three north shore communities yesterday against pending state legislation which, if passed, would permit Lake Forest to withdraw from the Deerfield-Shields township high school district and build and operate its own high school.

The three towns, Highland Park, Deerfield, and Highwood, are in the same school district. It is asserted that Lake Forest's withdrawal would place an added financial burden upon them because there would be no appreciable decrease in the school's operating budget. Against that threat, these communities yesterday began circulating petitions demanding the defeat of the legislative measure.

Assert School Is Adequate.

Lake Forest's foes assert that the Deerfield-Shields High school is adequate for all present needs. They also hint that Lake Forest needs no independent high school inasmuch as many of its children attend private schools.

Supporting the Lake Forest independent high school are School President Fred J. Held and Mayor A. D. Farwell, both of Lake Forest.

"There are 1,500 pupils at Deerfield-Shields, and only 225 of them are Lake Forest residents," said Mr. Held. "Forty-seven per cent of the taxable revenue for that school is contributed by Lake Forest, and this makes the per capita cost for the 225 pupils $779. Moreover, these children must travel four to eight miles to class. By building our own high school we are moved by a desire to provide additional educational advantages in our own community."

Gets Least Return.

Other Lake Forest supporters declare that Lake Forest expends more for the upkeep of Deerfield-Shields than any other town, and gets the least return. Highland Park, they argue, gets all the school business. The teachers live out of Lake Forest, as do most of the high school board, they say.

A similar move by Lake Forest in 1929 to build its own high school lost in the courts. In that year the state legislature passed a law favorable to the building of such a school. The Deerfield-Shields High school board began quo warranto proceedings to test the validity of the act, which was held invalid later by the state Supreme court.

URGES U. S. QUIZ OF CEMENT PRICE FIXING IN STATE

Washington, D. C., April 21.—[Special.]—Federal investigation of an alleged price fixing conspiracy among cement producers and dealers in Illinois, Indiana and Iowa was demanded in the house today by Representative Martin A. Brennan [Dem., Ill.].

Submitting a resolution authorizing the federal trade commission to initiate the inquiry Mr. Brennan declared that recent cement price increase as reflected in bids submitted for highway construction in the states, has caused road work to be hindered or suspended and prevented the employment of thousands of men.

"During the present period of low production costs," his resolution stated, "the cost of cement for highway construction in the state of Illinois has risen from 94 cents a barrel, on the basis of bids in 1932, to $1.62 a barrel on the basis of bids tendered in 1933.

"The excessive price of cement is believed to be due largely to collusion among the producers and dealers in cement, as evidenced by the great rise in the price fixed in the bids tendered and the similarity of the form in which the bids are being made."

Milwaukee Road Brings Ticket Agents to See Fair

Twenty-five passenger and ticket agents of the Milwaukee road will arrive in Chicago from Minneapolis and St. Paul tomorrow to visit A Century of Progress grounds. The tour is being arranged by W. B. Dixon, general passenger agent, in order that they may qualify "as enthusiastic and well informed salesmen of A Century of Progress." Groups of Milwaukee road agents from Kansas City, Omaha, Des Moines, Sioux City, and other cities also will make the tour.

City's Half Million Pupils Free for Spring Vacation

Chicago's half million school children put aside their books for their annual spring vacation yesterday. The schools will reopen on May 1. "The pupils probably will enjoy the holiday," said Supt. William J. Bogan, "but most of the teachers, who haven't been paid for seven months, will be forced to abandon any vacation plans that will mean spending money."

HORNER APPOINTS EMMERSON FAIR BOARD MEMBER

Springfield, Ill., April 21.—[Special.]—Gov. Horner today appointed his predecessor in the state house, Louis L. Emmerson, as vice chairman of the State Century of Progress commission.

Other members appointed who will serve on the commission in addition to the holdovers from the Emmerson administration are the following:

State Senators R. M. Shaw [Dem., Lawrenceville], Peter P. Kielminski [Dem., Chicago], R. Wallace Karraker [Dem., Jonesboro], Harold G. Ward [Dem., Chicago], and Francis J. Loughran [Dem., Chicago].

State Representatives David E. Shanahan [Rep., Chicago], Harry L. Williams [Dem., Chicago], Bernard J. Kewin [Dem., Chicago], John D. Upchurch [Dem., Eldorado], and Thomas P. Sinnett [Dem., Rock Island].

Members outside the legislature: Mrs. Florence Fifer Bohrer, Bloomington, former state senator; Homer J. Tice, Greenview, former state representative; Carter H. Harrison, Chicago; Boetius Sullivan, Chicago; Mrs. Sarah Bond Hanley, Monmouth, former state representative; Eli M. Strauss, Chicago, and Peter B. Carey, Chicago, president of the Board of Trade.

Lieut. Gov. Thomas F. Donovan [Dem., Joliet] and Speaker Arthur Roe [Dem., Vandalia] become members of the commission because of their official positions.

FAIR EXHIBIT TO SHOW SOMETHING OF REAL CHINA

Ziang Ling Chang, Chinese commissioner to A Century of Progress, arrived yesterday over the Milwaukee road after a journey from Shanghai by way of Seattle, and was met by Dr. Robert T. Kah, Chinese consul; Gung Hsing Wang, vice consul, and Dr. Allen D. Albert, of the World's Fair staff.

Commissioner Chang expressed enthusiasm over his country's decision to take part in the World's Fair and described some of the exhibits never before seen in America which will represent "something of the real China" at the fair.

A jade temple 14 feet high which was 18 years in the making, and porcelain, lacquerware, silks, embroideries, carved ivories, and other treasures will be included in China's exhibit. Other attractions in the Chinese village which will be erected on the fair grounds just south of the Jehol temple will be a troupe of Chinese acrobats and a group of actors and actresses who are favorites in China.

NOW TOLEDO CAN GET ANSWERS TO QUERIES ON FAIR

Miss Marie Kutcher and Miss Christine Lutz, associated with the Toledo chamber of commerce, Toledo, O., came to Chicago yesterday to look over A Century of Progress exposition. They plan to answer the large volume of queries concerning the fair which the Toledo chamber of commerce receives, they said.

Both girls expressed themselves surprised at the fair buildings, and added that they thought they were "wonderful." They expect to be able to explain all about the buildings to the many women who have written to the chamber of commerce for information about them.

"I think we've had more letters about the Enchanted Isle from children than any other queries," Miss Kutcher said.

It is the "odd shapes of the buildings" and their vivid colors which make them interesting to Miss Kutcher, she said. Miss Lutz expressed greatest interest in the group of model homes under construction.

Burglars Raid Apartment and Take $5,000 Jewelry

Burglars yesterday entered the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Levens, on the eighth floor at 210 East Erie street, and escaped with four bracelets, a wedding ring, and two diamond rings valued at $5,000. The thieves entered the apartment through a window from a fire escape. Levens is an insurance adjuster at 166 West Van Buren street.

BOOKS

Mrs. Bradley Tells Story of City in Fiction

Each of Four Novelettes Is Complete Unit.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Old Chicago," by Mary Hastings Bradley. [Appleton.] Published yesterday.

IN four novelettes uniform in size and binding and sheltered in a gay box Mary Hastings Bradley tells the story of "Old Chicago" from the days of "The Fort" to the "Metropolis" of 1893. Each tale is complete in itself, and the four are only fragilely linked by occasionally recurring or mentioned characters. They give a panorama of Chicago which drives home the truth of the last few sentences of "Metropolis."

MARY BRADLEY.

"That's what a city is. Lives. And more lives."

The first and the last volumes are the more pictorial, the second and third the more humanly emotional.

Emotionally "The Fort" is the story of a young Englishman's unspoken love [almost unconfessed even to himself] for the wife of a young officer at Fort Dearborn. That tenuous but death strong emotion is the cause of his being a member of the band which were massacred with such thorough bloodthirstiness as to have given history one of its black moments. An Indian squaw, knowing what was to happen, offered to take the young man up river with her—offered him life instead of death. He wanted life. He chose, against his will, death. But death was not for him. From the horrors of the after massacre he was at length rescued.

But the story is really very little about the emotions which might have torn the heart of the young Englishman. It is the story of what "Barry John" lived through as one of the volunteers at the fort and on the trek toward what it was hoped would be safety, but which proved to be a march straight into the bloodied maw of tragedy. "The Fort" is more of a picture of the most dramatic moment in old Chicago history than it is a study of character or emotion.

"The Duel: When Chicago Was a Town" takes place in 1835 and, although it pictures the town which was the phoenix of the Fort Dearborn massacre, it is really the story of Barbara Heywood, who came to Chicago as a bride and during the month's journey from the east lost her heart, all unconsciously, to Pierre Le Brun, French trapper. "The Duel" is tense with the drama of thwarted love, of standards adhered to against emotional onsets, and of the conflicting love which almost tore three lives to shreds.

The duel which gives the novelette its title is one provoked by Pierre Le Brun, who knows himself to be a dead shot, with Robert Heywood, who is well known to be clumsy with firearms, a duel which Le Brun saw as the only way out for the unhappy Barbara, who had confessed her love for him. There is drama from the first—lives, life, as opposed to the mere pictorial record of a period. The period oddly enough comes alive much more vividly in "The Duel," where it is a mere background, than it does in "The Fort," where it is the whole object of the book.

"Debt of Honor" is like "The Duel," a story of lives, and of life, lived in 1858 "When Chicago Was a City." It concerns two sisters, the younger the "beautiful" Miss Mobray, who could by a mere flick of an eyelid capture in life what her sister had thought was her own . . . the class valedictory, a crotchety uncle, and, finally, her sister's fiancé. The night before her wedding the elder sister caught her fiancé encircling her younger sister's waist with ardent arms and saw his eager lips pressed to hers. The elder sister insisted that the next day's wedding take place as planned, but with her younger sister as bride instead of herself.

Life continued to bless the ruthless one, the elder sister had almost despaired of being happy when the younger brother of her former fiancé asked her to marry him. The rest of the novelette is concerned with the way in which she paid to him the debt which she felt she owed him for rescuing her from spinsterhood and the payment which her son made on the debt of honor. Three-quarters of the story takes place in 1858, the last quarter is told in the reminiscences of an old friend of the heroine's son.

"Metropolis" is a sort of reminiscential survey of the years from 1865 to the World's Fair of 1893, a monologue of an old man [a little garrulous], whose memory has an unusually chronological surety in its sequence. He begins remembering with the opening of Crosby's Opera house in 1865, which marked the day when a girl's engagement was broken off because her young man was discovered to have got drunk and had an evening with some chorus girls. It ends with the World's Fair of 1893 when the niece of that girl [now an old maid] was threatened with the same fate because her young man had had an affair with a married woman.

That is the emotional structure of the memories. They are pictorial, however, rather than emotional. They record the passage of events between those generations. There is a vivid, passionate, emotional record of the Chicago fire when a man walked back into the fire rather than besmirch the name of the woman he loved—a grand gesture of the period. The history of Chicago for thirty years is told in "Metropolis," and there are enough unknown or forgotten facts about those days to make of the little book a mine of interesting information even if the old man's story were not in itself a dramatic tale.

Old Chicago names fill the pages of the books, although the main characters are, of course, purely fictional. Mrs. Bradley, herself born and raised in Chicago, has gone meticulously into her native city's past and has recorded it with fidelity and a practiced novelist's skill.

BRIEF REVIEWS

BY M. D.

"The Light in the Jungle," by Edison Marshall [Kinsey], is found in the jungles of Indo-China in the heart of a beautiful missionary. She brings hope and inspiration to a cynical gambler who has gone out there to capture the idol of jade left to his father and avenge his father's death. They meet all sorts of native tribes, face terrible dangers bravely and come out of the jungle with "the light" of their love. It is a good tale, exciting, atmospheric, credible.

EDISON MARSHALL.

John Galsworthy's three novels that preceded "The Forsyte Saga," "The Dark Flower," "Beyond," and "Saint's Progress" are now all published in one volume, "Three Novels of Love" [Scribners]. These novels dealing with love have a beauty, poignancy, and penetration that are as fresh now as the day they were written. "Candelabra" [Scribners], also by John Galsworthy, contains a selection of recent keen and critical essays and addresses on literary art, personalities, and life. They are acute, simple, and well written.

Nina Nikolaevna Selivanova writes a fascinating record of Russia through "Dining and Wining in Old Russia" [Dutton]. All the customary and standard dishes that delighted the lovers of food in Russia before the revolution are described in detail, with clear instructions on how to make them. There are also recipes of dishes eaten on feast days and celebrations, as well as in Lent, those delicacies of food and wine loved by the Russian aristocrat and the peasant.

Island in Collins' 'Lost' Charted on Mariners' Map

If there are readers who question the existence of the island told about in Dale Collins' "Lost" [Bobbs Merrill] they need no longer take the author's word for it. He recently found in the files of the Antarctic Pilot, official nautical guide to antarctic mariners, that this strange island was actually charted. It appears on the map at 5 degrees east and 54 degrees south; south and a few points east of the Cape of Good Hope. It is on this island that a curious assortment of people are castaways in his book of adventure.

Edward F. Dunne Author of History of Illinois

Former Gov. Edward F. Dunne has announced the publication of his five-volume work, "A History of Illinois." He says that if it hadn't been for an eight cent telegram sent from Interlaken to Lucerne in Switzerland while he was on a European tour he would never have been a Circuit court judge, a mayor of Chicago or a governor of Illinois. He was so impressed with the cheapness of the telegram that he founded his campaign on the political doctrine of government ownership of public utilities and thus came to political success.

London Awaits Gossip Notes in Book Form

Lord Castlerosse's Social Items Collected.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—Not every writer of gossip paragraphs for a daily newspaper lives to see his gossip collected bravely into a large book. Not every gossip writer is known so well by his Christian name to most of the celebrated people in London society that he can safely and appropriately use that Christian name in the title of his book. But Lord Castlerosse is such a man.

E. V. LUCAS.

"Valentine's Days" (Lord Castlerosse's Christian name being Valentine) is the book. It is being published here very soon, and it is sure to be a great success.

Lord Castlerosse is a very big man, popular everywhere, who was long ago adopted as a colleague by Lord Beaverbrook, for whose London Daily Express he writes notes of his own social doings and the doings of the élite. The notes have their author's own robust familiarity. To be mentioned in them is the hope of all climbers and social stars. No man in England is so much sought after by those who like to see their names in the paper; and no man tells as racily the story of the panorama of events and engagements. Nor is that all.

Lord Castlerosse is not only a jovial journalist himself, but he is the hero of other men's paragraphs. When Lord Beaverbrook took his retinue to Scotland recently to fight unsuccessfully for the return of a political candidate, the gathering was known locally as "Beaverbrook's circus," and Lord Castlerosse did not object at all to the identification of himself with the circus elephant. As a result, the election was fought with spirit and humor, and although the result was for various reasons not in doubt, it bristled with jokes and liveliness. For many of these jokes and for much of the liveliness Lord Castlerosse was responsible. He is liked even by those who do not admire his taste; and "Valentine's Days" will certainly be among the most amusing and most talked of books of the season in London.

The London firm of Methuen & Co. are offering a prize for the best children's book submitted to them by Sept. 30. The book is to be suitable for children between the ages of eight and thirteen, and must be more than 50,000 words in length and less than 70,000. The judges will include Lady Verney and E. V. Lucas, who promise to give special attention to the quality of the characterization. As a rule competitions produce little but bad work; but this one may be an exception.

Book Surveys Use of Barter and Scrip Throughout Nation

A nation-wide survey of barter and the use of scrip in America by Wayne Weishaar and Wayne Parrish, "Men Without Money" [Putnam], has resulted in some startling conclusions. The authors record man's successful resort to these methods when the money system becomes inadequate. The book is a challenge to the theory that money is needed for mankind's exchange of goods.

DE VALERA WOOS FOES TO PASS IRISH BUDGET

Faces Critical Test in Dail Next Week.

BY HUGH CURRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, April 21.—President Eamon de Valera will be forced to seek the support of his enemy, the Center party, to pass the budget. This year's governmental appropriations present a crucial problem for the dail eireann when it resumes sessions next Wednesday. Despite severe paring by Sean MacEntee, minister of finance, it is estimated the budget will call for $88,000,000. This sum is $12,000,000 more than last year.

The government stands to lose the support of its ally, the Labor party, because of reductions affecting labor. But against those eight votes, De Valera probably can count on Frank MacDermot's eleven Centrists, who are farmers and heavy taxpayers. Such support would only be momentary, however, for the Centrists oppose the president for his failure to reach an agreement in the tariff war with Great Britain. They would grab at the first opportunity to overthrow him.

Raising Revenue Difficult.

Again, MacEntee will have difficulty in raising the revenue after the budget is passed. De Valera has promised the farmers that they need pay only half of their assessments on the $20,000,000 land annuities which have been withheld from Great Britain. But with low prices prevailing and the tariff war destroying their market, it is doubtful whether they will be able to pay even the reduced amount.

The process of seizing the money previously paid annually to Great Britain has been completed. The sums, which have been held in suspense accounts since last June, now have been absorbed into the exchequer under an act of the dail. The tariff war followed the government's refusal to turn over the annuities.

MacEntee, viewing the probable decrease in taxpayers' ability to pay, has cut his budget estimates for the civil services, army, police and teachers. These cuts are expected to produce a saving of $1,000,000.

Fear Wage Cuts.

It is on this point that the Labor members will oppose the government in behalf of the civil servants, police and teachers. The laborites see the reduction in official salaries as an incentive to outside employers to follow the government's example.

De Valera also realizes that William Norton and his group are becoming uneasy on several other points. They are pressing him to create more opportunities for employment. They are urging a public works program to relieve distress and better wages on public works now in progress of construction. The Center party will support the government on these questions, but will immediately turn about to demand a settlement of the dispute with Britain and reopening of the markets.

MORTON SCHOOL TO KEEP RATING; GIVEN WARNING

The North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools decided yesterday to send a warning to the J. Sterling Morton High school of Cicero, rather than drop the school from the accredited list because of the turmoil created by its school board recently. The association is holding a convention at the Stevens hotel.

No mention was made of charges that the Morton school board stuffed pay rolls and hired teachers in disregard of qualifications. Members of the association explained that a school which had been in the association for five years could not be dropped without a year's warning.

The association also decided to keep the Morton Junior college, housed in the same building as the high school, on the accredited list "as a protection to the student body" until June 15. After that date the executive committee of the association will have full power to act.

Prof. George A. Works of the University of Chicago pointed out that in a recent Cicero election Richard W. Hoffman and E. S. Placzek were elected as members of the school board as the result of promises to reform the school. Hoffman subsequently supplanted Frank Svoboda as president of the board.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED

Was Responsible for Trapping Mata Hari.

CANNES, France, April 21.—(AP)—Commandant Georges Ledoux, 58, former head of the French counter espionage service, who was responsible for the arrest and conviction of the famous woman spy, Mata Hari, died today.

ONCE TRIED FOR TREASON.

George Ledoux held many important posts during the world war, the most important of which was as the head of the counter espionage bureau in Paris.

Ledoux, in 1929, was arrested in connection with a long chain of treason in France and was charged with having had dealings with the enemy. He was acquitted, but two others who faced similar charges were given sentences of five years in prison and death.

Ledoux at that time was said to have destroyed or mislaid a document containing proof of treasonable dealings of one or more prominent French politicians. He was thought to have secreted the document to shield many of his supporters, possibly some of his chiefs.

The Mata Hari Case.

Mata Hari, the Dutch dancer and adventuress, was convicted in August, 1917, by a court-martial which found her guilty of espionage. She was shot at dawn on Oct. 15, 1917.

Long known in Europe as a woman of great attractiveness and with a romantic history, Mata Hari was convicted of conveying to the Germans the secret of the construction of the entente tanks.

As a result the enemy rushed work on a special gas to combat operations of the tanks. Mata Hari, otherwise known as Marguerite Gertrude Zelle, was said to have spent some time in the English town where the tanks were being made.

When she reappeared in Paris she was arrested. Her conviction was confirmed by a revision court and on Sept. 28 the Supreme court confirmed the previous finding. Her death was the most highly publicized of numerous cases of the execution of women as spies.

GARY BOTTLER WINS COURT PLEA FOR BEER PERMIT

Judge V. S. Reiter of the Superior court at Hammond, granted an injunction yesterday restraining Lake county, Indiana, and Indiana state authorities from interfering with the handling of beer by Abe Rosen, owner of the United Bottling Works in Gary. Another hearing is scheduled for next Friday and meanwhile Rosen will begin selling beer today.

Rosen charged political favoritism in his petition. He said he had been denied a wholesaler's permit but that eleven others, Democratic political leaders in Lake county, had been favored. This policy, he asserted, would bankrupt legitimate businesses, including his own.

Beer in Indiana is being distributed under a state statute which regulates strictly the handling of beer by wholesalers and importers. This amounts to a potential monopoly, Rosen alleges. According to Rosen's lawyer, beer is now being sold in Indiana for $2.60 a case while Rosen expects to sell it for less than $2 a case.

In other quarters also the present state control is being fought. Leon Granger, president of the Hammond Taxpayers association, charges that the "sale of beer in Indiana is nothing but a legal racket."

MAYOR CERMAK'S FATHER-IN-LAW IS DEAD OF GRIEF

Joachim Horejs, 81 years old, father-in-law of the late Mayor Anton J. Cermak, died late Thursday night in his home at 2734 South Clifton Park avenue from shock and grief over the slaying of the mayor, it was learned yesterday.

Mr. Horejs was deeply affected by the news of the shooting of his famous son-in-law and was kept constantly informed of Mr. Cermak's fight for life. After the mayor died Mr. Horejs lost strength rapidly. Friends said his death resulted from shock and grief over the tragedy.

Services for Mr. Horejs will be held Monday in the Blessed Agnes Roman Catholic church, with Msgr. Innocence Kestl officiating. Burial will be in St. Adalbert's cemetery. Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Bessie O'Brien, and three sons, Albert James, and Joseph.

PIONEERING TASK AWAITS CHURCH, LEADER ASSERTS

After 80 years of activity the Illinois conference of the Augustana Lutheran synod holds that the religious field still offers large opportunities for pioneering. The Rev. Dr. Peter Peterson, president of the conference, emphasized this belief in his annual convention sermon yesterday. The convention is in session at Trinity church, Barry and Seminary avenues. It will close Sunday.

Dr. Peterson said the economic and social trends arising from present acute conditions will tend to enhance the emphasis of the church on creative work characteristic of pioneers. The creative work must be in the direction of a renewed spirit of faith adapted to the new situation, he said.

With the support of the pastors of the conference, Dr. Peterson said the work of the entire synod would continue to include home missionary, educational and institution fields. The synod reported a decrease of more than $130,000 in its income for the year. The institutions of the synod include the Augustana hospital, homes for the aged here and at Grand Rapids, Mich., and Joliet, and orphanages in Joliet and Andover. The budget committee is at work on a method of handling the deficit.

'SOCIETY OF ZERO' FACES BLUE SKY INVESTIGATION

The blue sky division of the state's attorney's office will begin an investigation today into the "Society of Zero, the Original Kid Factory, Ltd., and the American Akoba company" all of 53 West Jackson boulevard. These organizations have more than 100 men and women working in two office suites. They gather members, who are required to pay dues, and sell blue prints of concrete homes which can be bought in sections.

The head of the organization is Herbert D. Posey, who calls himself "chief executive trustee." An investigation by agents of the Illinois department of registration and education ended when the investigators confessed themselves completely puzzled by the purposes, origin, and methods of the groups. A number of complaints to the state's attorney's office caused Assistant State's Attorney Eugene J. O'Connor to ask Posey to appear today to explain his business.

A letter written to the state's attorney's office by Chief Investigator J. E. Edwards of the department of registration stated: "I guess Posey has set himself up as a one man prosperity wave, but it will take a Philadelphia lawyer to figure out just what he is doing—I can't."

TELLS POLICE HE SLEW WOMAN OVER A RIVAL

Archie Selver, 35 years old, confessed yesterday to Chicago avenue police that he killed Mrs. Grace Wheeler, 32 years old, in the apartment at 1118 North Franklin street, where they had lived as man and wife. Selver told police that he beat the woman to death after an argument over her alleged intimacy with another man.

Selver appeared early yesterday at the McPhee undertaking rooms, 935 North Wells street, and said that Mrs. Wheeler had died after drinking heavily Thursday night. The undertaker notified Chicago avenue police after an examination at the apartment revealed bruises on the body. Selver was arrested and confessed under questioning.

Selver, who is idle, said that he had lived with Mrs. Wheeler since last June. He told police that he went to the apartment early Thursday evening and could not get in. He returned later, Selver said, and beat Mrs. Wheeler with his fists after accusing her of entertaining another man.

MEXICO HONORS DEAD IN FIGHTING AT VERA CRUZ

VERA CRUZ, Mexico, April 21.—(AP)—All business was ordered halted for a period of mourning today as Mexicans honored 12 countrymen killed 19 years ago when the United States navy occupied Vera Cruz.

The 12 bodies, after lying in state overnight in the Municipal palace, were to be reinterred with ceremony in the crypts of a new memorial erected at the intersection of main streets. The memorial honors several hundred Mexicans who died in the fighting. Some students passed a resolution declaring American Ambassador Josephus Daniels is persona non grata because he was the American secretary of the navy at the time of the occupation.

Guard Daniels in Capital.

MEXICO CITY, April 21.—(AP)—Extraordinary precautions were taken to guard Ambassador Daniels on the 19th anniversary of the occupation of Vera Cruz. Guards were increased to prevent any student demonstrations.

ROME FOUNDED 2,687 YEARS AGO; CITY CELEBRATES

Mussolini Unveils Statues and Public Works.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, April 21.—Premier Mussolini was the master of ceremonies at Rome's birthday celebration today. The Eternal City is 2,687 years old. According to legend, this date marks the anniversary of that day when a wolf suckled Romulus, who plowed a furrow on Palatine hill to fix the site of the walls of what became the cradle of western civilization.

Rome observed a full holiday. Stores, schools, and public offices were closed. Mussolini kept rushing from one part of the city to another unveiling statues and inaugurating public works and new streets.

Duce Dedicates Statues.

At noon, Il Duce dedicated the statues of five emperors erected on Via del Impero—street of the empire. It is a broad artery leading from Mussolini's offices in Piazza Avenezia to the ancient Colosseum. Mussolini in the afternoon inspected the million dollar George Eastman Dental Institute for Children. The institute, built by funds given by the late George Eastman of Rochester, N. Y., was inaugurated and turned over to the Italian government.

The day was doubly significant. It also is the Fascist Labor day, which has taken the place of the Socialist celebration on May 1, and is the date of the annual graduation exercises of Mussolini's black shirt youth organizations.

The graduation exercises were held in the "street of the empire." Sir Oswald Mosley, founder and chief of the British Fascist movement, reviewed the young Fascisti and received their salute. Mussolini abandoned this part of the day's program because of a downpour of rain. About 125,000 balillas graduated to the avanguardisti; 108,700 avanguardisti were promoted to the ranks of young Fascisti, and 150,000 young Fascisti became full fledged members of the Fascist party.

Award Old Age Pensions.

Old age and industrial-disability pensions were awarded to 20,000 persons as labor's contribution to the day's events.

The founding of Rome was celebrated throughout Italy. Members of patriotic societies and workmen's organizations marched through the streets of towns.

2 AUTOMOBILES HIT WOMAN, 68; BOTH ESCAPE

Mrs. Mary Wendt, 68 years old, of 1842 Wellington avenue, was struck by two hit and run automobiles last night while crossing Ashland avenue at Wellington. She was taken to the Illinois Masonic hospital suffering from fractures of both legs, possible internal injuries and a possible skull fracture.

The cars that struck here were south bound. Witnesses said one of them knocked Mrs. Wendt down and ran over her. Close behind was another automobile. The driver made an attempt to avoid running over the woman, but failed and he too, sped away.

Theodore Tino, 7 years old, 6312 Drexel boulevard, was killed by an automobile in front of his home yesterday. The driver, Henry Ross, 49 years old, 451 Melrose street, was not held.

This death and one other yesterday raised the 1933 Cook county motor toll to 259. The other victim:

Leslie Brasau, 12 years old, 444 West 43d street, colored. Died in the Provident hospital. He was struck by an automobile at 42d street and South Park way on Thursday.

Society Will Enjoy Week-End of Many Important Parties

Professional Members' Show at Arts Club and History Meeting Among Events.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THIS week-end it may be a cup of tea with the professional members of the Arts club, smorgasbord seasoned with sprightly conversation in Lake Forest, a championship polo match on the south side, or a review of the Spanish-American war at the Historical society. Society has a busy two days ahead, for the social calendar is bulging with interesting affairs from a rummage sale to a dramatic portrayal of Leonardo da Vinci.

Mrs. C. Barney Goodspeed will be disappointed if she does not receive at least 400 friends between 4:30 and 7:30 at the Arts club tomorrow afternoon. The tea is in celebration of the opening of the annual exhibition by the club's professional members and this always means one of the largest and most festive parties of the year.

Yesterday the oils, the water colors, and the etchings—122 of them—were being hung in the two galleries and the round sculpture room. There is a splendid portrait of the late F. Edson White done by Carol Aus close by the door and just inside the sculpture room, a lifelike bust of THE TRIBUNE cartoonist, Carey Orr, done by Viola Norman.

Katherine Dudley has chosen to enter her Mme. Servage (each member is limited to two entries) and Mrs. Robert R. McCormick is showing a portrait of her brother-in-law, Dr. Arthur A. Small. In one corner of the large gallery there is a lovely head entitled "Seventeen," the work of Thomas E. Tallmadge. Mr. Tallmadge is one of the few men granted a place in this select display.

The Arts club is always liberal minded about its exhibition parties. The exhibitors have the privilege of bringing two guests and the other members may bring one each. No children are permitted.

Program at Historical Society.

Many who enjoy this tea tomorrow afternoon will have heard Admiral Wat T. Cluverius, the Great Lakes Naval Training station commandant, beforehand in his lecture, "1898 and After," at the Chicago Historical society. Admiral Cluverius is to speak at 3 o'clock.

A new development yesterday makes this party more interesting than ever. Mrs. Robert R. McCormick and Mrs. Arthur A. Small have chosen it as the perfect occasion to present their famous Spanish-American war scrapbook to the Historical society. The book is a veritable gold mine for the historian, for it contains the autographs, letters, photographs, and clippings pertaining to all of the outstanding army and navy men and events of the Spanish-American war.

It is not surprising that Mrs. McCormick and Mrs. Small should have this valuable record, for as the daughters of the late Brig. Gen. Bernard J. D. Irwin they were brought up in an army family and have long been familiar with army affairs. Many of the important officers mentioned in the scrapbook they have known from childhood and have corresponded with for many years.

Among other pieces in the book is a remnant of the Spanish flag that flew over the Palace de Santiago on the day the city surrendered to the Americans. At this same party the Historical society is to receive from Charles S. Dewey a revolver used by the famous rebel chief, Aguinaldo. Since Tuesday marks the anniversary of the United States' declaration of war against Spain in 1898, the Historical society ceremonies are particularly appropriate.

A Third Party, for Tomorrow.

And then there is still a third party tomorrow afternoon. Dudley Crafts Watson is to give the first of two music picture symphonies at 5 o'clock in the Gold room of the Palmer house. With music and color reproductions he is going to tell about modern art from Paris to the Grand cañon. A week later Mr. Watson is to put many restless minds at ease on the subject of World's Fair architecture.

Among those who will be recognized in this audience tomorrow are Mr and Mrs. Tiffany Blake, Mr. and Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Maynard Hutchins, Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Winterbotham Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Barrett Wendell, Mrs. Jacob Baur, Mr. and Mrs. Rufus C. Dawes, and Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer.

After the talk, Shepard Vogelgesan and Walter Frazier are having a dozen of their friends in for supper at 31 East Elm street. Their guests will include the Kellogg Fairbanks with their daughter, Janet; Mrs. Frieda Foltz, Miss Alice Rouiller, Arthur Meeker Jr., the Louis Skidmores, and Howard Raftery. Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel A. Owings will arrive late after a small tea party of their own.

Da Vinci Play at Goodman.

Tonight brings the gala premiere of Maurice Gnesin's "Leonardo da Vinci" at the Goodman theater with Chicago's men and women writers and many more who are interested in creative effort composing the "first night" audience. The performance is by way of introduction to the Midwest Review of Literature, an nonprofit making publication, through which the books of so many of our local writers are introduced.

Mrs. Harold C. Pynchon and Mrs. Helen Walton are planning to make it a complete Leonardo da Vinci evening by presenting their guests with Mona Lisa puzzles at the joint dinner party they are having before the performance. Yesterday they ran across the picture puzzles in rummaging about town and were delighted at their "find."

Mrs. Charles H. Conrad has invited her guests to a dinner in the Italian room (she is keeping it all one nationality) at the Drake hotel at 7 o'clock. Arthur Meeker Jr. and Mrs. Orville W. Thompson are planning Italian dinners beforehand and still other hosts and hostesses will be Mr. and Mrs. Graham Aldis, the Howard Linns, the Herbert Bradleys Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Logan, Mrs. Clarence Hough, and Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Barnes.

There are to be 100 guests at the Swedish dinner Mrs. J. Allen Haines is having this evening at the Deerpath inn in Lake Forest. On a long table in the center of the dining room there is to be "smorgasbord" . . . all varieties . . . spread out in tempting array. This is to be enjoyed buffet style, but the dinner itself will be a "sit down service" affair. Mrs. Haines explained yesterday, with dancing afterward.

The sister and house guest of Mrs William P. Martin, Mrs. Haines, who comes from New York, is known for her excellent recipes and especially her Swedish dishes, so a grand and different evening is anticipated. Among those who received invitations are Mrs. Leverett Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Clow, Mr. and Mrs. Russell P. Kelley, Robert F. Carr, Mrs. Scott S. Durand, Mrs. John C. Pitcher, and Mrs. Uri B. Grannis.

Tea Tomorrow for Mrs. Logan.

Logan and all of the members of the Northern Illinois branch of the League of American Pen Women. Mrs. Logan has just been made chairman of the league's participation in A Century of Progress and it is expected that she will have some interesting plans to report at this time. Receiving with Mrs. Miller will be Mrs. Raymond L. Redheffer, Mrs. Ross J. Beatty, and Mrs. L. J. Downing, who is president of the Northern Illinois branch.

Two dozen prominent Lake Foresters will arise at an early hour this morning to take their places as saleswomen in the headquarters of the Y. W. C. A. in Market square there. The board of the Y. W. C. A. is holding an all day sale. Mrs. Stuart Prosser is the general chairman.

Before the game Col. and Mrs. Charles C. Haffner Jr. are having an informal dinner party at their Lake Forest home with Mr. and Mrs. Keith Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart H. Otis, Mr. and Mrs. Evans Spalding, and the Thomas Underwoods as their guests.

Wednesday, June 24, has been set as the date of Miss Catharine Carton's wedding of Paul P. Swett Jr. of Hartford, Conn. The ceremony will be performed in the Lake Forest Presbyterian church. Miss Carton's engagement to Mr Sweet was announced by her parents, the Alfred T. Cartons, last Thanksgiving, when Mr. Swett, who is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Paul P. Swett of Hartford, was in Lake Forest visiting his fiancée and her family.

Friends of the Francis R. Dickinsons are making special trips over to the Academy of Sciences in Lincoln park this week to see the notable exhibit of bird pictures that Mr. Dickinson has given to the academy. Each one of them represents an exciting ex-

Field's Chorus Gives Another Good Concert

BY EDWARD MOORE.

The Marshall Field & Company Choral society, a musical organization with membership drawn from the company of its title, gave its spring concert at Orchestra hall last night under the direction of Edgar Nelson. During the course of the program it did quite a bit of impressive singing. That of the assisting artist, Giovanni Martinelli, dramatic tenor of the Metropolitan Opera company, was even more so.

The chorus, now in its twenty-seventh season, numbers about 200 members. In past seasons it has gone in for quite a bit of extended cantata singing, and on a number of occasions has attracted attention for the spirit and finish with which it has delivered itself. Last night the preference went for briefer numbers, operatic excerpts and part-songs, which perhaps may seem less striking in the performance but require just as much technical ability and diligent rehearsal.

The march from "Tannhaeuser" was the first number, sung with dignity and sense of rhythm, and an excerpt from "Martha" was another item on the program. Mr. Martinelli was called in to do his own operatic bit by singing the tenor part of the "Rigoletto" quartet while a choral ensemble sang the other parts. Meanwhile there were many songs, Deems Taylor's setting of the Sussex May Day choral and Eric DeLamarter's "The Del'i's Awa" being among the most notable.

Ever a dependable artist and frequently a thrilling one, Mr. Martinelli rose to great heights in "O Paradiso" from "L'Africana," the Flower aria from "Carmen," and a number of selected songs. He is the sort of artist who causes encores by virtue of his printed list of numbers, and this custom prevailed during last night's program. The choral numbers were excellent, but his presence was one of point and emphasis.

D. A. R. Refuses to Vote Rebuke for Its Leader

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 21.—[Special.]—The Daughters of the American Revolution, in the closing session of their 42d annual congress, today voted to go about their own business in their own way.

By their votes the majority of the 3,000 delegates gave the victory to Mrs. Russell William Magna, the new president with the new policy. And they turned a cold shoulder on Mrs. Grace Brosseau and Mrs. Lowell Fletcher Hobart, two past presidents, who think that Mrs. Magna is not sufficiently militaristic.

The specific way in which the Magna majority triumphed over the Brosseau-Hobart minority was a technical one. It hinged on the convention's refusal to rebuke Mrs. Magna for having withdrawn this winter from the women's patriotic conference on national defense, and its refusal to censure her for having declined to participate this week in a massmeeting, sponsored by Representative Hamilton Fish Jr. [Rep., N. Y.] protesting the recognition of soviet Russia.

In other words, the D. A. R. pledged itself to keep up its vigorous plea for national defense, its violent protest against the recognition of soviet Russia. But it declared that it would seek these goals down its own particular road; would walk abreast of no allied patriotic organizations. In the past, the Magna group argues, these group promenades of patriotism have brought the D. A. R. into some of its most dramatic crises; have given it some of its most undesirable publicity.

The battle started early this morning with the introduction of a resolution supporting Mrs. Magna for having withdrawn from the affiliation with other organizations. The Princess Cantacuzene, granddaughter of President Grant and spokesman for a Florida faction that is very mad at Mrs. Magna, jumped up and asked for an explanation of the resolution. It was forthcoming, on both sides.

In the midst of the argument Mrs. Brosseau, who is pro-princess, suggested that the debate be halted until Amelia Earhart, guest speaker, had made her talk. The ladies ruled that the battle should proceed. The resolution was adopted by a comfortable majority and Mrs. Magna won her first round.

Then Miss Earhart got up and said, quite plainly, that "no organization should advocate armament unless they themselves are willing to bear arms also," adding, "I feel this would be as patriotic as any national defense method because by such means war might be ended."

Pointing out that she knew she was not seeing "eye to eye" with her audience, she declared that "industrial development in aviation is just as important to national defense as the building up of army and navy aviation."

"I feel," she said, "that our great number of industrial pilots are just as potent security as we have in a large army and navy."

Then came Past President Mrs. George Maynard Minor asking for a vote of confidence in Mrs. Magma. Everybody stood and there was a lot of hand clapping. Mrs. Brosseau, with a broken arm in a sling, was of course unable to applaud, and Mrs. Hobart clapped her hands a few times.

Mrs. Magna's third victory came when the delegates refused to support the Florida insurgents led by Princess Cantacuzene, who wanted to get on to the floor a resolution requesting Mrs. Magna to "explain" to the congress why the D. A. R. hadn't taken part in Representative Fish's protest massmeeting against soviet Russia.

Later new state regents were shown in; armloads of flowers were presented, and the entire congress rose and sang, "Blessed Be the Tie That Binds."

Ronald Colman, Brent Win Bull Fights in Arena Near Madrid

MADRID, April 21.—(AP)—Ronald Colman and George Brent donned the trappings of matadors today and successively and successfully fought year old bulls at the famous Duke De Tovar bull farm, 15 miles south of Madrid.

The Hollywood actors received instructions as to the use of the bullfighter's cape before entering the ring. They received the applause of several score witnesses who also attended a fiesta as guests of the duke and his brother Alfonso.

"It was more thrilling than hunting big game," said Colman.

See Pissarro Exhibit, Pleads Critic on Art

Show of Paintings Called Notable Event.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

One of the notable exhibitions of the season is that of paintings by Camille Pissarro in the Chester Johnson gallery, Fine Arts building, to continue through the month.

Rightly or wrongly, Pissarro is judged as one of the several forefathers and originators of the modern movement. His individual development in painting touched nearly all the great men of his time. Cezanne, Berthe Morisot, Van Gogh, Gauguin, Seurat, they and others brushed shoulders with him, either as students or contemporary artists, and inevitably his changing techniques affected their work.

Pissarro would engage in a certain type of painting, carry it so far, and then turn to another manner. The painter who was at the moment under his influence would carry the first technique further and perfect it. It is obvious that when Pissarro painted his spring landscape of 1886 Seurat was in accordance with him as a pointilliste. Seurat went on, achieving the great canvas which hangs in the Art institute.

Pissarro shifted his brushes and tried painting from a different angle. Similarly in 1873, the "Landscape, Pontoise," points to the fact of his influence over Cezanne. It is a Cezannish composition. The "Lunch Time," two girls resting on the grass, is in the manner of Berthe Morisot. It was painted in 1884.

Pissarro did not take from these painters; he provoked them to their techniques by suggestion and by a first trial. Not all of the current exhibit, however, shows Pissarro so definitely the teacher. On occasions he is himself, charmingly in his own mood and tempo.

Never did he paint a more exquisite canvas than the little "Mother and Child in the Field," beautiful in color (mark the use of blue) and delightful in arrangement. The top third of the painting is a gem in itself. The "Boieldieu Bridge, Rouen," is the most striking picture in the room, a magnificent painting.

Each painting has its particular appeal. The exhibit is one which should not be missed.

Welcome to Miss Ishbel Is Chatty One

Attends Dog Show with Mrs. Roosevelt.

Washington, D. C., April 21.—[Special.]—Miss Ishbel MacDonald, a bit thinner, much prettier, and younger in appearance despite a few threads of gray in her chestnut hair than on her previous visit more than three years ago, received a warm welcome today on her return to the capital.

Her frank statement on arrival at New York that she was looking forward eagerly to meeting Mrs. Roosevelt, with whom she felt she had many interests in common, was echoed in kind by the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, and Mrs. Dall, their daughter, who were on the portico when the line of cars bearing the official party from the station turned into the White House grounds.

"How do you do, Miss Ishbel? I'm so glad to see you," the President said, extending his hand in cordial greeting to the daughter of the prime minister.

A moment later Mrs. Roosevelt was shaking hands with Miss MacDonald, welcoming her to Washington, and presenting Mrs. Dall, all three engaging immediately in animated conversation while the President turned to welcome Lady Van Sittart, then arriving with Mrs. William Phillips.

Sir Robert Van Sittart, who had driven from the station with Miss MacDonald, joined his wife, and the two stood talking with the President while Mrs. Roosevelt, Mrs. Dall and Miss MacDonald carried on an eager interchange interrupted somewhat by the effort of Major, the police dog, and Meggie, Mrs. Roosevelt's Scotch terrier, both of whom were on hand to greet the White House guests.

Major was held firmly in leash by Mrs. Dall, but Meggie was unrestrained and presently created a small sensation by starting off purposefully down the steps just as the whole party was being lined up by the photographers. Mrs. Roosevelt broke ranks instantly to pursue the deserter and returned with the little black dog in her arms to join the smiling group waiting on the portico.

Following the reception on the portico the President and Mrs. Roosevelt had tea with their guests in the family dining room on the first floor. Afterward, while Mr. MacDonald held a press conference in the President's office that lasted until 7 o'clock, Miss Ishbel finding that her press conference which she had intended to hold at 6 o'clock with the newspaper women had been arranged instead for 11:30 tomorrow morning, took advantage of the fact to rest before dinner.

Tonight while the President and Mr. MacDonald had their first conversation in the oval sitting room which is now the President's upstairs study, Miss MacDonald accompanied Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Dall to the dog show now in progress at the Washington Auditorium. The engagement was made some days previously for Mrs. Roosevelt, and one which Miss MacDonald, also a lover of dogs, was delighted to share.

Miss MacDonald expressed the same confidence in the like-minded attitude of Mrs. Roosevelt and herself toward present day problems.

"We both know," Miss MacDonald said, "that we can't get through all this trouble without working together."

In reply to one of the first questions asked on her arrival Miss MacDonald said that the women of England are "holding up their end" in the crisis which has been trying the souls and courage of the British people, and that all of them are "doing their bit" in many varied ways.

Good Morning!

Exciting and full of incident, this new Barthelmess feature. Gallant of exploit, and brave enough to dare an ending which will possibly not meet with the unqualified approval of Barthelmess fans.

The story weaves around the love and air life of two brothers and the girl both love. Because one will not give her marriage—she weds the other. And lives to wonder whether she has been entirely wise.

Because of an unavoidable accident, Jim, a transport pilot, is dismissed from the line he has served ably and long. Air passengers are jittery, you see, about riding with a man who has had bad luck.

He goes home to recover from injuries sustained when his plane, unable to cope with a blizzard, had come down in the mountains. Discovers his young brother, Neil, is already a whiz of an air man. . . .

One day, while motoring, Jim releases a woman parachute jumper from her 'chute which had caught in a tree. Jill is the lady's name, and she is a circus stunt performer, teaming with her brother.

The latter's untimely death makes a vacancy which, eventually, Jim fills. Jill and Jim travel all over the country with the show. They have adjoining rooms always, but never the ring Jill craves. . . .

Well, Neil so young and healthy, appears, and does—he—fall—for—Jill—at—first—sight! Yes, indeed!

The upshot is that Jim, after a discovery that hits him hard, becomes an aerial soldier of fortune. Neil takes up transport piloting, ultimately locating at Havana.

Thither one night comes Jim while Neil's away and Jill's lonely. Looks as if the old romance would start all over again. . . . But a tropical storm takes a hand in the three sided game and—I will tell you no more of the story.

"Central Airport" moves swiftly. The principals do excellent work and have able players in support. Flaw in the ointment is the extreme kiddishness of Tom Brown. A little red wagon would seem more to his measure than an airplane. That's exaggerating, of course, but he does appear awfully young for a married man and a transport flyer.

See you tomorrow.

Get Into Print! That's Slogan of New Styles

Material Counters Offer Wide Selection.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

An easy way to get into the right kind of print is to buy the stuff and make your own. . . . You can prowl through all the print collections and have a grand time selecting brand new silks that are breath-takingly different; and that means different.

New spring and summer prints are controlled, restrained and discreet as to pattern, but ribaldly riotous as to color.

If your shopping soul has been completely soured over the inevitable floral patterns, sissy leaves and other botanical arrangements, you will be glad to know of the newer ideas. For instance, the stripes. Valentino in all his glory never wore such Bedouin mixtures as you can have for a frock, or, better yet, coat lining or blouse material. Stripes that are fully an inch wide, stripes of vivid blue, hot crimson, deep sultry orange, and flaming widths of jade green march fashionably side by side along the newest silks in vertical, horizontal and diagonal formations.

The smartest cotton suits this coming spring and summer will be made of the coarse towel-like mixtures in white, oyster white, deep ivory, and all very light shades, and the matching long swagger flared coats will be lined with some of these wild striped silks. If you really are brave and want to plunge, fashion your summer wash silk dresses of the same striped silks and wear them under unlined flannels or cool crash topcoats. They are the best looking get-together-ers any fashion hound ever dreamed about.

The wash silks are available in plaids that are gorgeous combinations of colors. . . They, too, will make eye-filling street clothes for good contrast with either dark or light coats. The perennial charm of dots in all sizes seems to be endless, but this spring they are introducing square dots which make a greater difference than you would think.

Black and brown backgrounds with deep shades of blue as a third favorite are liberally splashed with rather outsize dots . . . pin dots and anything less than the circumference of a quarter seem to be squashed for the time being.

And speaking of dots, have you seen the new hankies that boast of about six dots covering their white square background? To date these 'kerchiefs sport the largest dots in captivity; they are at least three and one-half inches in diameter and what these printed 'kerchiefs do for a dark suit or coat or dress is something startling to behold.

Black and white prints are knockouts. Look for the cool black patterns of fern, starkly outlined against white, or the tube patterns, or the dot and dash affairs, or the blurred designs of zigzag lines, tottery looking open circles and dizzy triangles, all new, a bit spectacular, but infinitely revolutionizing as far as changing the general type of printed clothes.

The Changeling Bride

By Martha Ostenso

SYNOPSIS.

The Hendersons—Meryl and Margaret, sisters, Flint, their older brother, and Andrew, the father, have lived for twelve years in poverty in a fishing settlement on the shores of Lake Superior, after losing their fortune in Chicago. Great-Aunt Letitia, formerly dean of a girl's school in Ohio, is the liaison between the Hendersons and a cultured past. Flint and his friend, Ned Bremner, hope to build up a great export business. A forest fire brings Blake Lawrence, injured and lost, to the Henderson cottage. There were two great names in nearby Agate Bay and its environs—Lawrence and Greer. When Blake returns to Agate Bay he takes Meryl with him to be his bride. Meryl learns, after the wedding ceremony, through Lucia, a snobbish cousin of the Lawrences, that Blake married her as an escape from Christine, the wife of Julius Greer, with whom he had been in love. Meryl prepares to return home. Theresa, Blake's sister, persuades her to stay for six months, for Blake's sake, whom she still loves, and not to hurt her people. Theresa promises to teach her social service work. Greer at one time saved the Lawrence fortune and Blake feels honor bound not to interfere with the crooked schemes he knows Greer is engaged in. Meryl believes Blake won't fight Greer because of Christine. Greer causes the death of Ola Palka, an old friend and neighbor of the Hendersons. Theresa and Meryl go to New York to attend a charity conference. Blake's separation from Meryl makes him realize he is in love with her, though he thinks Meryl is now interested in his friend, Cy Granville, whom Meryl has met in New York. When Meryl returns home she quarrels with Blake over his attitude toward Greer.

INSTALLMENT XXXVI.

SNOWBOUND.

"Blake, I want you to know where I stand from now on," Meryl said solemnly. "I'm sick of pretense. You tried to keep the truth from me concerning Ola Palka's death. I got it finally in a letter from home. Julius Greer killed Ola. Julius Greer will go on killing—killing everything that stands in the way of his greed. You may do what you like about it, but I shall not sit calmly by and watch it."

"What, exactly, do you propose to do, my dear?" Blake asked.

"I shall find that out—very soon. I'm going to fight Julius Greer with everything I have—every means, fair or——"

"Stop it!" Blake commanded. "I'll not have you making a show of yourself—here or anywhere else. If you know what's good for you, you'll stay out of this mess and let it settle itself."

"I shall not stay out of it, Blake—and I shall judge for myself what is good for me."

His smile was sardonic. "You've had too much of Cy Granville, my girl," he observed.

She looked at him for a moment in silence, her eyes blazing. "That—is simply contemptible! It is you—you who have had too much of Christine Greer while I've been away—and Christine is stronger than your regard for anything else in the world."

Blake set his jaws and looked down at her. "You little simpleton!" he whispered. "Some day you may know what you're talking about. Yes—

Blake, observing from a distance, found himself singularly light-hearted.

Christine has been here. Alone with me! I meant to tell you about it calmly. But you wouldn't give me a chance. Christine has nothing to do with my decision—in the way you think, at any rate. But there are things—things a man can't do—out of sheer decency. You'll never understand!"

He could say no more. How could he tell her that it would be even harder to fight now, with that mad romance a thing of the past, then it would have been—hell, why try to make her understand it!

"Go ahead and do what you like about it!" he said finally. "I'm too tired to talk about it. I wish you and Cy the best of luck!"

"Since you put it that way," Meryl retorted, "I wish the same to you and Christine!"

Blake turned and stalked out of the room, leaving her standing alone beside the fireplace, clasping her hands in silent fury.

During the remainder of February and throughout a stormy March Meryl went quietly about her plan of attack. She lunched with Cy Granville on his frequent visits to town and discussed with him every detail of the fight she was going to wage. With the advent of summer she would go into the north country and wage a tireless battle against Senator Joliffe, whom Greer was confident of electing.

The friendship between her and Cy had already passed the danger point. It had become now a deepened understanding in which sentiment played no part except their common sentiment for the cause they espoused. Occasionally, Theresa or Uncle Tom joined them and abetted them in their enterprise, but even when they happened to be alone together, Meryl never failed to report the event at home. It was not that she wished to incite jealousy in Blake. The time for that was past. It was rather that she scorned any conduct on her part that might appear ambiguous.

Blake, in the meantime, was so engrossed in his business problems that he shunned social functions almost entirely. There may have been some chicanery in that, Meryl often thought. His preoccupation and weariness provided an excellent excuse for not appearing in his wife's company at the homes of their friends where he would be obliged to be more than pleasantly attentive to her.

The arrangement suited Meryl admirably. In her new enthusiasm for a larger cause she had little energy left for social functions. Wherever the Lawrences went, moreover, the Greers would go—and Meryl wished only to avoid Christine.

In mid-April, however, when spring seemed to be just beyond the horizon, an event occurred which threw them all together with a ruthless unexpectedness.

The Frobishers, who had just moved into their new place in the country, announced a house warming to which all their friends were invited. Blake's business relationships with Ray Frobisher made it impossible for him to be absent. Theresa was confined to the house with a cold, but Uncle Tom Lawrence consented to accompany Blake and Meryl.

The Frobisher place was on one of the smaller lakes, commanding a beautiful view, twenty miles west of the city. The sky, which had been one vast clear petal of innocence at noon, darkened to a sullen gray as Blake and Meryl left the city. Before they reached the Frobishers' the air was already a swinging blanket of snow. Blake had been for turning back, but Uncle Tom had optimistically urged that it was probably only a flurry and would be over in no time.

Uncle Tom proved a very poor weather prophet. It became one of the worst snowstorms of the year, and when Blake, as soon as he decently could—it was only eleven o'clock—tried to make his departure, his car moved about four feet out into the driveway and then subsided for the night. Two or three others who had business in town the next morning cursed the weather roundly and gave up and returned indoors to make merry.

Among the Frobishers' guests, of course, were Christine and Julius Greer. It was the first time since Christmas that Meryl and Blake had been together on any party with Christine. The occasion was a dreary repetition of Christine's dinner in honor of the Lawrences, except that Theresa was not on hand to give Meryl her sturdy moral support.

There was another difference, too. Blake, who ordinarily drank very moderately, seemed tonight to have thrown discretion to the winds. Meryl wondered if it might not be because, among the guests was one, Grant Kitchell, a grain broker from Chicago, who had eyes for no one but Christine. Christine, on her part accepted the homage with her usual bland innocence.

Blake, observing the affair from a discreet distance, found himself singularly light-hearted. He had feared meeting Christine—and the challenge in her hurt eyes. But here was release—release such as he had not known in months. Christine's eyes carried no hurt look, triumph rather. They held the old challenge, but it was for another. He felt incredibly elated. He wanted to go to her and tell her how wonderful she was, how irresistible. He wanted to tell this man from Chicago how lucky he was. But that would scarcely do, all things considered.

Well, he thought, he would go and tell Meryl of the unbelievable thing that had happened—was happening under their very eyes. Where was Meryl? He found her, at last, playing ping-pong with one of the Frobisher boys in the basement gymnasium. He watched the game until he grew restless, then turned and went buoyantly back upstairs.

Differences in Age, Creed No Bar to Marriage

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Would you kindly give your opinion in this matter? The boy is Protestant, the girl Catholic. The girl is 32. The young man, 25. He is hard of hearing, the student type. The girl is well educated, serious and most sympathetic with the man's physical ailment.

"Relatives say this is an unnatural combination. The age difference they stress as one factor for future complication; the religious difference, another. The family objections on both sides, a third.

"On the couple's side is a sympathetic understanding, a compatibility of taste in learning, amusement, everything. In fact, a very deep love is here between the two. They have worked side by side for five years, so that it is not an impulsive, brief courtship wooing."

We think the deep love and the girl's sympathy with the physical affliction strong enough factors to counter balance whatever disadvantages might ordinarily be laid to age, religious difference and family objections.

The religious difference, of course, is something for the two to thrash out thoroughly themselves.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., April 21.—[Special.]—Mrs. Roosevelt this afternoon received the delegates and officers of the national society D. A. R., whose congress closed today. President and Mrs. Roosevelt also received the new ambassador from Germany, Dr. Hans Luther.

Mrs. Roosevelt will be guest at two luncheons tomorrow. She will be the guest and principal speaker at the authors' breakfast of the League of American Pen Women at the Willard at 12 o'clock, and will go from there to the "little house" of the Girl Scouts for a 1 o'clock luncheon which will be entirely prepared, cooked, and served by the Girl Scouts themselves.

The former ambassador from Germany and Frau Prittwitz und Gaffron were entertained at luncheon today by the chief of the protocol division of the state department and Mrs. Warren Delabo Robbins.

MINUTE MYSTERY

CLASS DAY.

"Come on, fellows. Cut out the horse play and let's get to work!" admonished the professor. "I'm going to read you part of a letter I received from a friend of mine this morning. Listen carefully. Ready?

"'For the past several years, as you know, horse racing and pari-mutuel betting has been allowed in our state under a liberal interpretation of the laws. Well, your friend Howard Pollock was recently elected state's attorney and decided his predecessor was wrong. The racing officials having paid no attention to his warnings, he sent an assistant to a nearby track with instructions to buy a pari-mutuel ticket on some horse, thus securing actual evidence for the state that betting in violation of the law was openly being done.

"'The assistant bought a $2 ticket on Lightning for the state. He won and paid $120!'

"The case was then taken into court. At the proper moment the assistant state's attorney produced from his pocket the 60 to 1 ticket he had purchased, with the result that Pollock obtained an injunction closing the track!'

"'The newspapers here emphasized the honesty of the young assistant in turning over to the state the winnings on the race, pointing out that he might have pocketed them and bought another ticket for evidence. Unusual case, don't you think, Joe? Well . . .'

"Pardon the interruption, Professor," called Dawson. "Perhaps in the main the story is true, but your friend is certainly wrong about part of it!"

WHERE WAS FORDNEY'S FRIEND WRONG?

County Club Federation to Unveil Marker Today

The Cook County Federation of Women's Clubs will close its 35th year today with the unveiling of a marker announcing the dedication of three American elm trees planted in memory of George Washington in a tract of land known as McGinnis slough, west of Chicago. This tract was dedicated last October by the Illinois federation as a wild life refuge. Mrs. Burnett D. Warner has been re-elected president of the federation. Mrs. J. Wilson Coffey, Mrs. Herbert V. Weed and Mrs. E. G. Klinger are the three vice presidents respectively. Mrs. Thomas Grice is the recording secretary, Mrs. William C. McBean corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Walter J. Scott treasurer.

Sally Eilers to Take 'Free as a Bird' Tour

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Hollywood, Cal., April 21.—[Special.]—Sally Eilers sails from New York on April 29, for a tour of Europe on which she will be "free as a bird." Nothing definite will be done regarding divorce arrangements between Sally and her husband, Hoot Gibson, before then; in fact, Sally may intend the trip partly for the purpose of thinking things over. But she will leave Hoot behind when she sails, taking no one except her Scotch maid, Annie, abroad with ther.

"When I get on the other side of the ocean" Sally says, "I will go wherever I want when I think of some place to go, and if I change my mind on the way there, I will stop before I get there and go somewhere else." She says the happiest time she has ever had has been in the last few weeks, planning for her first trip abroad, "going with enough money, and without any cares, so that I can really fully enjoy myself."

One member of the Gibson family is tearful about Sally's trip and that's her step-daughter, Lois Gibson, Hoot's daughter by a former marriage. Lois, a pink cheeked girl, who is larger than one would expect for her twelve years, has been with Sally on the set all day every day for the last week while the actress is finishing up her part in the Fox picture "Hold Me Tight," with Jimmy Dunn.

The late Edgar Wallace's last mystery story, "The Death Watch," is shortly to appear on the screen, directed by Irving Pichel at Radio-RKO. Betty Furness is the only one cast so far. The same studio has contracted with Vina Delmar for an original story to serve as a co-featuring vehicle for Joel McCrea and Dorothy Jordan.

perience for the photographer and, according to the academy directors, they are a rare gift. There are 20 frames in all, representing some 60 species of birds.

Every summer Mr. Dickinson sets out from his summer home at Charlevoix, his motion picture camera in hand, to see what he can "catch." And then, too, he never lets a winter get by without a few weeks in the south or, if he is feeling particularly stalwart, ten days or more in the mountains of Colorado. This last winter he had a "camera" vacation in Louisiana.

The academy exhibit has been made by enlargements of these films. Mr. Dickinson is vice president of the Lincoln Park Hall of Science.

Attractive Blouse Has Three Points of Chic Interest

WOMAN'S AND MISS' BLOUSE.

The raglan shoulders, pretty collar, and smooth fitting lower part are all smart details of this pretty blouse. It caries out the nautical idea in a white crêpe printed in blue, while the tie reverses the color scheme.

The pattern, No. 2850, comes in sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measure. Size 16 requires 1⅝ yards of 39 inch material, with 1¼ yards of 3 inch wide ribbon for the tie.

Here's Exercise That Begins and Finishes the Six-a-Day Group

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Today we wind up our Six-a-Day, 4-5 minute morning setting up set with a breathing exercise. In the preceding five exercises you have been instructed to inhale and exhale as you went through the exercise.

To clear and fill the lungs completely and to give the system a chance at a complete morning tonic or "cocktail," if you'd rather, you should concentrate fully on the business of exhaling and inhaling fully. When you exhale blow the air out fairly forcefully. Don't be too delicate about it. The idea is to get the lungs fully cleared, to make room for a good breath of fresh, clean ozone.

If each exercise in the Six-a-Day set is followed carefully, it will:

a. Restore elasticity to the muscles.
b. Exercise the muscles of the entire body.
c. Stretch and flex the muscles needing necessary development for the acquirement of good posture.
d. Reduce any and every part of the body in need of reduction.
e. Tone up the body and increase circulation, hence promote health.
f. Fill the lungs with fresh air.
g. It will, if practiced daily, make you feel and look like a new man or woman.

Tomorrow, Sunday, I shall review this etire Six-a-Day set. Get tomorrow's paper and you will have the complete morning workout illustrated and handy for pinning up on your dresser.

The series of West Point exercises presented in this column for the last six weeks and concluded today is now available in illustrated booklet form. The booklet may be obtained by sending five cents in coin or stamps to Antoinette Donnelly, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, or by calling at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn street.

(a) Stand at the position of attention, weight borne mostly on the balls of the feet. (b) Raise the arms forward, upward, overhead to their fullest extent, rising on the toes and at the same time inhaling deeply. Hold briefly, stretching the entire body from the toes to the finger tips. (c) Lower the arms to the sides forcibly, returning to the position of attention. Exhale forcibly as the arms are lowered, but keep the entire body stretched—viz.: chest up, abdominal muscles stretched, weight mostly on the balls of the feet, head up, chin level. Practice this especially for the breathing.

Sign John Charles Thomas for Metropolitan Season

New York, April 21.—(AP)—The Sun says the Metropolitan opera has signed a contract with John Charles Thomas, American concert and opera baritone, for next season. Thomas, who gained operatic recognition after success on the musical comedy stage, has sung with the Chicago and Philadelphia operas. Thomas, son of a Baltimore minister, worked his way through school at Conway hall in Carlyle, Pa., studied medicine in Baltimore, and then turned to music.

Open Sight Saving Room Given by Woman's Aid

The first fully equipped model sight saving room ever to be installed in a Chicago public school has been opened in the Volta school by the Chicago Woman's Aid. The room was furnished by the aid in celebration of the 50th anniversary of its founding. The room takes care of 12 children who otherwise would be unable to study because of their handicap. Mrs. Benjamin Samuels is chairman of the committee that planned the room.

Parents Show Many Opinions on Discipline

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

If variety is the spice of life surely, O very surely, my life should be highly seasoned by my correspondence. An anonymous letter—I can't quote it exactly now because I destroyed it, as I do all anonymous letters—said something like this:

"You don't believe in spanking. I had been having great trouble with my 12 year old boy. A neighbor advised my trying spanking. I took him over my knee and spanked him hard. I've had no trouble with him since."

It was not my original intention to comment, so I won't—but I can't help wondering what this boy's mother will do if she has trouble with him when he's 16.

In great contrast, illustrating the variety I mentioned, is the next letter [not anonymous] by a young mother who has the courage of her convictions:

"My son is an intelligent young man and many times he advances arguments that are so convincing, I am forced in all fairness to change my 'no' to 'yes.' I personally think too many parents are unduly proud of the fact that when they say 'no' it's no—and that's that.

"When my son asks permission to do this or that and when I say no he invariably asks why. I have never answered him 'Because I said so.' I really try to explain why. If, however, he is not satisfied with my explanation—and if he can convince me that it would be perfectly all right for him to do the thing he wishes to do, I'll tell him so and give him permission to do it. But if after he gives me his opinion I still feel he should not be allowed to do a certain thing I simply tell him I'm sorry, but for this or that reason I cannot grant his request."

School for Police Will Use Exercises Published by Tribune

The new booklet of West Point exercises, arranged by Antoinette Donnelly, TRIBUNE beauty expert, and published by THE TRIBUNE, was adopted yesterday by the Chicago police department for use in the police training school. The exercises were arranged through the courtesy of the United States Military academy with the coöperation of Maj. Harold M. Rayner, officer in charge of physical training.

The exercises, which are illustrated in the booklet, are designed to improve posture, develop strength, and to eliminate usless fat. The exercises are to be part of the daily training of the 264 rookie policemen now enrolled in the police school. The exercises, drill, revolver practice, and instructions in the duties of a policeman, make up the daily program.

Difference in Canned, Fresh Foods Is Slight

Method Given to Make Sour Cream Sweet.

Economical tips for week-end food shoppers—a Saturday morning radio feature—will be presented today by Mary Meade over station W-G-N. Tune in at 9:45 for Miss Meade's market chat.

BY MARY MEADE.

What about the vitamin and mineral content in canned foods as compared with that in fresh cooked foods?

What foods should one eat to increase the iodine intake?

How do you "un-sour" cream?

More starters for another day of kitchen queries!

First, for question number one sent in by Mrs. C. E. H. On the whole, Mrs. H., there is relatively little difference between the amount of minerals and vitamins in canned foods and in foods rightly cooked. But what difference there is lies in the favor of the canned foods. Tests show that the food value in the two is practically equal. There will be a certain loss in the minerals of fresh foods through cooking, whether it is done in or outside of a can. But less seems to escape in the canning process than when the foods are cooked in an open kettle at home.

There is even a better case for the vitamins. A and B, of course, are affected very little by any cooking temperatures. But vitamin C is a weak brother which we always have said was easily destroyed by heat. Recent experiments now show that it is cooking in air rather than the high cooking temperature that runs away with the important vitamin C. Most home cooking is done in this open kettle fashion. And it's here that the canner has an edge on us. He is able to so treat the foods that he gets rid of a great part of the air in the food tissues. Then he sterilizes the foods by heat in their own cans, doing away with this "cooking in air."

Next from Mrs. C. E. H. about adding iodine to the diet. My first advice is—be careful. Iodine is found naturally in sea foods and in some plant foods grown in soil near salt water. Without a doctor's advice these foods only should be depended on to supply the iodine the body needs. Salt water fish eaten at least once a week is a safe prescription. The reason for all this precaution is that just as serious an upset may be caused by too much iodine as by too little.

Now a question from Miss H. D.: "I understand there is a way of making sour cream sweet. Could you explain it?"

Yes, there is a way, though it is possible to apply it only when the cream has just turned. Better make a cake if you have really soured cream. But here is the trick. Simply add a pinch of baking soda to the "off taste" and stir it in well.

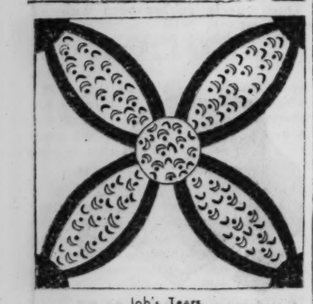
Quilt Originated in New England Before Revolution



Job's Tears.

BY NANCY CABOT.

The migration of patterns from one locality to another, new fashions, and current events all influence the naming of quilt designs and the changing of those names from time to time. In the case of "Job's Tears" it appears to have been historical events that brought about the many changes in title.

In New England, where the pattern originated as early as 1760, it was known as "Job's Tears." Then the great political disturbance in 1819 over the admission of Missouri to the Union and the subsequent problem of slavery suggested the names "Slave Chain," and so it was known. Again, in 1840, the name was changed to "Texas Tears." And finally, in 1880 the same design was rechristened "Endless Chain." The pieced blocks are always sewed together without intervening strips, and thus form an endless chain over the entire quilt.

For a pattern of this quilt design, send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn street.

LOUGHRAN WINS DECISION OVER GASTANAGA

NORTH CENTRAL ASSOCIATION DROPS 4 COLLEGES

U. OF DETROIT ESCAPES BAN; AUGUSTANA OUT

'Athletic Conditions' Cited in 3 Cases.

Four western schools were dropped from the list of accredited institutions in the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools last night when the executive committee adopted recommendations by the association's commission on institutions of higher learning.

The fifth school named in the commission's recommendation, the University of Detroit, was retained on the accredited list pending "reinspection of its athletic conditions." The specific charges against Detroit, which had been rated high scholastically in the commission's report, was laxity in collecting student loans, particularly in the case of athletes.

Augustana Is Ousted.

The schools removed from the accredited list were Augustana College and Theological seminary of Rock Island, Ill.; Hamline university of St. Paul, Minn.; New Mexico State Teachers' college, Silver City, N. M.; and the Municipal university of Wichita, Kas.

The charges against the five schools, as read to the board of review by Secretary George A. Works at the Stevens hotel, where the association is holding its annual meeting, were as follows:

University of Detroit—"Athletic conditions."

Augustana college—"Inadequate facilities for science teaching, except geology, and, as a contributing factor, conditions in the library and registrar's office."

Hamline university—"Lack of effective educational organization as an outgrowth of rather unfortunate conditions of the last several years, and athletic conditions."

New Mexico State Teachers' college—"General educational conditions."

Municipal University of Wichita, Kas.—"Athletic conditions."

Representatives of three of the accused schools—Detroit, Augustana, and Hamline—appeared before the executive committee. New Mexico State Teachers' college and Municipal university of Wichita were not represented at the convention.

Rev. A. H. Poetker, president of the University of Detroit, a Catholic institution, blamed economic conditions for Detroit's plight and asked time to make readjustments.

Want Higher Standards.

"The difficulty," he said, "has been partly due to the inability of the athletes to repay loans because they have not had time for part time work and because present conditions have eliminated a great many of the part time jobs. I have been in office only nine months. If the association really wishes to be helpful it will continue the University of Detroit on the list, subject to reinspection, at least."

The executive committee granted Father Poetker's request, thereby turning down the recommendation of the commission on institutions of higher learning for the first time in eight years. The committee, however, found no mitigating circumstances in the cases of the other schools. Drooping of these schools is equivalent to expelling them from the association. The institutions have the right to apply for reinstatement after the lapse of a year.

Hamline Delegates Silent.

Representatives of Hamline college refused to comment on their case. Dr. Arthur Wald, who appealed for Augustana, declared inability to collect $1,500,000 pledged for new buildings by alumni and friends of the college was responsible for inadequate teaching facilities. One building has been erected from a $700,000 endowment, he said, but the remainder of the pledges have not been collectable because of general economic conditions.

Prior to the executive committee meeting the committee on nominations named H. M. Wriston, president of Lawrence college at Appleton, Wis., as president; B. L. Stradley, university

Browns Beat White Sox, 4-0; Fonseca Hurt, Out 2 Weeks

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Members of the St. Louis chapter of the White Sox Alumni association went into convention yesterday at Comiskey park and adjourned only after compiling a stinging rebuke for their former mates. The rebuke was a 4 to 0 whipping that not only concluded the Chicagoans' winning streak at three games but also removed Manager-First Baseman Lew Fonseca from the active ranks for two weeks. The boss ripped a tendon in his right foot.

LEW FONSECA.

Irving [Bump] Hadley, who tarried in a south side uniform last spring while on his way from Washington to the Browns, was the ringleader in the plot that grieved about 10,000 women guests and 2,500 who paid. Hadley did his bit by convincing the Sox that there are days on which they can be stopped. His proof was furnished in the form of a two hit exhibition, and it was accomplished without the help of any startling fielding by his mates. The Sox didn't hit anything out of the ordinary, except the two that went safe.

Gregory Victim Again.

Paul Gregory, the Sox's budding right hander who will be remembered as the unlucky lad opposed to Schoolboy Rowe when the latter made his debut in the big leagues with a shutout last week at Detroit, also was involved in yesterday's affair. For seven innings Gregory conceded nothing to Hadley in the way of effectiveness, but that was as far as the Mississippian could carry the fight. In the eighth he folded up under a series of hits and was yanked just in time to assure Chad Kimsey a share of some of the bruising. All of the Browns' runs grew from this assault. Prior to that they hadn't moved a runner beyond second base.

The end of Gregory as a possible winner came when Ferrell opened the eighth with a single. Hadley's intended sacrifice bunt popped foul half way to first base and Fonseca grabbed it in a diving catch. His right foot turned under him and a moment later his retirement was necessary. After the game he was taken to Mercy hospital, where an X-ray negative revealed the nature of the injury. The first week of his unwelcome vacation will be spent in bed. Until his return Red Kress or Mule Haas will play first base.

The Firing in Eighth Continues.

The next bit of bad news was a pass to Scharein. West followed with a single to center, scoring Ferrell, and when Haas fumbled Scharein dashed to third and West to second. The alumni then tok charge. Carl Reynolds singled past second to score his to mates. Gregory went away, and as soon as Kimsey appeared Bruce Campbell, another ex-Sox, doubled to left center, scoring Reynolds with the final run.

A single that Haas punched through short with one out in the first inning might have created an idea that Hadley was going to be soft, but the idea was wrong. The stocky right hander promptly concluded the inning with a double play which started on Fonseca's tap to short. Then the Sox were treated to two more or less embarrassing innings. They couldn't get a man to base in the second or third. Some of this treatment was in the form of strikeouts for Kress and Grube.

Gregory Strong at Start.

During the same three periods the Browns were similarly distressed by Gregory's magic. They put only one

HALLAHAN HURLS, CARDS HIT, AND CUBS LOSE, 4-0

Bush Is Hammered from Mound in Fourth.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., April 21.—Wild Bill Hallahan, who doesn't seem so wild this year, gave the Chicago Cubs another severe spanking today, this time by a score of 4 to 0. When Bill and his associate St. Louis Cardinals licked the Cubs on April 13, the capable lefty allowed them one run for a 3 to 1 result. Today his generosity consisted of letting one runner get as far as third base.

In 18 innings against Hallahan the Cubs have made one run and a grand total of 11 hits, including five today. In the two games the former wild man has walked only five.

Bush Leaves Early.

It was Guy Bush's misfortune to get hooked up with Hallahan on both of the aforementioned tragic occasions. On April 13 Guy pitched a good game. Today he was not himself and went away in the fourth, bruised by a total of nine hits. But it didn't make much difference, for any good pitching, obviously, would have been wasted. It was apparent at all times that Hallahan, in the form he enjoyed today, could have shut out the Cubs at least until along after midnight.

Among the circumstances that made Hallahan a better pitcher today than he was the first time he whipped the Cubs this year, was the manner in which he took care of Babe Herman. In Bill's Chicago game Babe made half of the Cubs' hits, in the form of three doubles in a row. Today Babe hit only one fair ball, and it forced Woody English at second base in the first inning.

Leadoff Men Active.

Bill Herman and English, No. 1 and No. 2 men in the Cub batting order, each made two of the five hits off Hallahan, but couldn't brag much about it, in view of the accomplishments of Sparky Adams and George Watkins, No. 1 and No. 2 men for the Cards. Sparky made a double and three singles in four times at bat, the first three off Bush, and George made four singles in four times at bat, two off Bush and two off Beryl Richmond in the latter's first appearance as a National league pitcher.

In the matter of negative news about hitters it might be of interest right here to mention that Riggs Stephenson and Charlie Grimm haven't made a base hit since they came to town, which is most distressing, of course.

Tinning Shows Improvement.

If it is compulsory for a loyal Chicagoan bursting with civic pride to find some solace in today's game, it can be furnished in reference to the work of Bud Tinning. Bud pitched the last two innings and readily disposed of the six men who faced him, including the striking out of Ernie Orsatti and Jimmy Wilson. It was the first time the fat boy has borne any resemblance to a pitcher of major league talent this spring. If Bud really is getting into shape it means a great revision of the more or less panicky pitching situation.

The Cardinals had the run that was enough to win before the first putout had been registered against them. Adams opened with a double and scored on Watkins' single. Frisch flied to Stephenson, then Collins sent a short one to Babe Herman, who doubled Watkins off first.

Cards Get Some More.

In the third Adams and Watkins wasted a pair of hits, but in the fourth Bush was driven to cover after two were out. Medwick singled and went to second on a passed ball. Orsatti sacrificed and Medwick scored on Martin's fly to Babe Herman. Wilson doubled and scored on Hallahan's single to right. Adams singled, Hallahan stopping at second. Richmond came in and Watkins singled to right, Babe Herman made a nice throw to Hartnett and Hallahan was out at the plate.

The Cards' fourth and last run was unearned. Collins singled with one out. Medwick singled to right and the ball got through Babe Herman and rolled to the wall, Collins scoring and Medwick reaching third. Orsatti and Martin were infield outs.

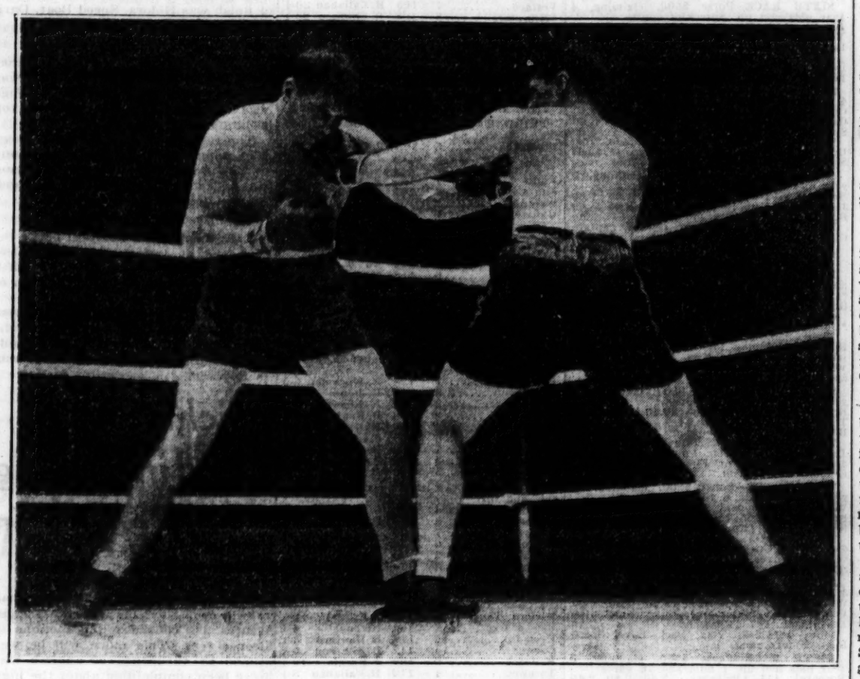
LOUGHRAN PROVES HE'S STILL A FIGHTER



Tommy Loughran (right), demonstrates how to use a left jab in the fourth round of his bout with Izzy Gastanaga at the Chicago Stadium last night. Tommy jabbed away through most of the ten rounds and Izzy took most of the blows on the jaw, just as he is doing here. Loughran won the decision.

You Judge Man by Company He Keeps—Race Tracks, Too

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 21.—It is a misfortune of the sport of horse racing to be very intimately mixed up with the business of gambling. By this I do not mean race track betting, which, of course, is an indispensable department of the racing business, but gambling house gambling. There is only one state in the Union which permits gambling house gambling by law. That state is Nevada, where there is no horse racing to speak of.

Elsewhere gambling follows the races and tends to give the sport a dirty reputation, as it is a corrupt business. The races have legal sanction, but the gambling houses operate only through the connivance of the public authorities and this means that the authorities have to be bribed. Once an official is bribed, the hoodlums have him in their control unless he happens to be an unusually strong character such as the late Bob Baker of Palm Beach county, Florida, who was the king and the law in his little realm and conferred a gambling house monopoly on Ed Bradley. He chased all interlopers over his county line.

Operate Outside the Law.

Gambling houses operate outside the law, but, of course, with the permission of the authorities, during the racing season at Saratoga and across the river from Louisville, in Indiana. In other years they were allowed to do business in Miami and Miami Beach, but this year a reform sheriff named Dan Hardie, who seems to be a bit of a church fellow, refused to take any of their money and prevented them from going into action at any time.

Great pressure was brought to bear, as the phrase goes, on Sheriff Hardie, but he stood pat throughout the season and the truth finally dawned on the boys that they were wasting their time and their rent, so they packed up their equipment and went away. Some of them set their traps beyond the boundaries of Dade county, which is Mr. Hardie's jurisdiction, but the distance from the center of the speculative population was too great and their season was not a success.

Collect Conscience Fund.

In other years it was customary for the gamblers in Chicago, Saratoga, New York, Philadelphia, and Atlantic City to get together a conscience fund, which was sent down to Miami in advance of the season. Sometimes the official conscience was a little tougher than the boys anticipated, and it was necessary to pass the hat again.

Sheriff Hardie had before him the unhappy example of another public official in that region, who was a naive yokel and did not realize how deeply he was involving himself when he started to take graft from the gamblers. Before he appreciated what he had done, he found himself beholden to some of the most notorious major league brigands that ever troubled the police of Chicago, New York, and New Jersey. They owned him and they were in a position to run him. At one stage of the game they almost took possession of the community, and the upshot of it was that he found it advisable to kill himself.

Amusing Complaints Heard.

It was very amusing to hear the indignant complaints of the professional gamblers against Mr. Hardie last winter. It seemed that the sheriff, by his refusal to give any sanction to the operations of a lot of predatory outsiders who had contributed nothing whatever to the building of the community and had no interest in the Miamis except as a hunting ground, was driving business out of town. The moneyed visitors, demanding a chance to risk their funds against the wheel, the bank, or the dice, would pack up and leave the neighborhood and the hotel keepers, restaurateurs, haberdashers and whatnot would suffer great loss of business on account of the obstinacy of a narrow minded public official.

This cry was maintained throughout the winter, but the sheriff never relented, and by some odd circumstance the hotel keepers, restaurateurs, haberdashers, and whatnot enjoyed an amazingly fine season. This suggested that gambling houses were not essential to the prosperity of a pleasure coast after all, provided, of course, that there was no unreasonable interference with the supply of exciting beverages. Florida never has suffered from any drought, however, and Sheriff Hardie tactfully forbore to interfere with an essential industry.

Horse Tracks Prosper.

The horse tracks prospered, also, both of them showing profits in a time of panic, and there is no doubt that they were the better off for the banishment of the gambling rooms, because money which otherwise would have been lost away at the tables survived to be played through their mutuel machines.

The constant circulation of large sums of cash money at horse tracks inevitably attracts an embarrassing element of thieves, swindlers, and cheaters, and this is undoubtedly the worst natural handicap with which racing has to contend. Having arbi-

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE: About 1870, Burns, a river junker living on the south side of Kinzie street west of Franklin, had a notable dispute with the North Western railroad. The company had only a single track west of Franklin to Clinton, so bought all the property between Franklin and Kingsbury except that of Burns, who demanded $30,000 which the railroad refused to pay.

Then the company laid a double track within 3 inches of the rear of Burns' lot. He had his property surveyed and found passenger coaches extended six inches from the track, so he would get out a ladder and wash windows on the rear end of his lot. Morning trains could pass on only one track without knocking him off the ladder, which was inviting a damage suit. Finally he was paid $30,000 for his property to get rid of him.

Burns died, but his widow soon became another thorn. She went over on the west side and bought a lot, 40x80, just south of the single track bridge. When the double track bridge was built it was too long and interfered with the swing of the Kinzie street bridge, so it was necessary to put the center pier further south to clear. Mrs. Burns' property was needed. She asked $30,000.

The company took the case to court for condemnation, but Judge Goggin told the railroad attorney the widow was attempting a good business deal and he did not want to be bothered with the case, so the company settled again. C. M. C.

Just when beer became legal a young man we know was due for his vacation. He had no place in particular he wished to go. So a committee of fellow employés suggested he become "official taster" for the office group on the various brands of amber now offered. He gave his entire time to those duties for the vacation period, practically soaking in the various products. Then he ranked the various brands numerically for the guidance of his co-workers. TOMMY'S LEFT JAB GAINS HIM ALL TEN ROUNDS

Otto Von Porat Whips Hans Birkie.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Tommy Loughran, professor of pugilism, demonstrated all the tricks and lessons of his trade last night at the Stadium to a bewildered Spaniard, Izzy Gastanaga. At the end of ten rounds, none of which Gastanaga won, the decision was awarded to Loughran.

Official attendance was 5,535 and the receipts were $10,253.24.

Gastanaga, the slugger who has knocked out 33 opponents, soon learned he had no business in the same ring with Prof. Loughran. In the early stages of the fight Gastanaga swung belligerently, rushing at Loughran furiously. As time went on, however, and Gastanaga discovered that no matter how hard he tried Tommy just had moved on, or had stepped inside the punch, Izzy had less zest for his work.

Prof. Loughran was most insistent in demonstrating the value of a straight left jab. Gastanaga probably was hit more than 200 times with an assortment of short jabs, mixed in frequently with head snapping hooks. Izzy offered no defense save an occasional bobbing and weaving, and this method served Tommy as well as if Gastanaga had remained stationary.

In the second round Gastanaga twice landed glancing right hand blows to Loughran's head, but this flurry subsided immediately. Again in the ninth round Gastanaga came out with determination, which netted two right hand placements. Once more, however, Tommy took command and his opponent was a tired and bewildered fighter when he returned to his corner.

Loughran, strange as it may seem, also landed the most effective punch of the night. In a neutral corner in the fifth round he suddenly led with his right hand and cracked Gastanaga resoundingly beside the jaw. The Spaniard's knees buckled and his gloves touched the floor momentarily.

Von Porat Whips Birkie.

As is his custom, Loughran ended each round in his own corner. At the conclusion of the tenth round he fought Gastanaga across the ring in the final seconds to bring Izzy to his handlers as the bell rang.

Otto Von Porat, one time Chicago heavyweight favorite, outpointed Hans Birkie in the other ten round bout. Von Porat, never noted for agility, had difficulty keeping out of the way of Birkie's overhand pitching. The first punch of the fight, a short right to the jaw, caught Von Porat sauntering from his corner half asleep. Otto didn't go to sleep on the canvas at once only because Hans' aim was poor. Von Porat waggled to his feet at the count of three and weathered the round.

From then on Otto went along methodically, closing his eyes when he punched and going into conference before he took aim at Birkie's unprotected head.

Fox Whips Scozza.

Tiger Jack Fox, Terre Haute Negro, with a weight advantage of 10½ pounds, won a close decision over Lou Scozza of Buffalo, N. Y., in eight rounds. Fox weighed 182 while Scozza came in at 171½ pounds. The Tiger fought along the same lines of attack as Gastanaga and Birkie. With no regard for what might happen to himself, he rushed and hooked with both hands. In the second round Scozza went down for a count of three.

Frankie O'Brien, New Bedford, Conn., middleweight, was awarded an eight round decision over Marty Sampson of New York. The bout was slow and neither was effective.

Nick Scialaba, 1931 Golden Gloves champion, an intercity and international winner, won his ninth consecutive professional fight by defeating Joe Palazzola, Detroit, Mich., featherweight, in the six round opener. Although Nick went down in the first round for a one count from a left hook to the jaw, he fought back to gain the supremacy.

BY FRENCH LANE.

The racegoers who expect to win a few wagers during the early days of the Sportsman's park season which opens on May 1 should begin to gather some information on the way the 2 year olds are working over the half mile track.

There are more than 200 juveniles quartered at Sportsman's park and Hawthorne awaiting the opening bugle. This is in comparison to 46 two year olds which were available for the half mile track meeting of a year ago.

Most of them are worked daily over the Sportsman's park track, the owners being anxious to acquaint them with the sharp turns. Few of these youngsters have started and they are reported to be the best looking lot of 2 year olds to be sent here for early spring racing in a number of years.

They'll Race Every Day.

The young thoroughbreds are so numerous and so many of them have reached racing condition that at least one and often two races for them will be included on each program during the 18 day season.

The colt to show the most speed so far is General Pulaski, which will race for the Lone Star stable, of which John Theall is the trainer. He is an amazingly fast breaker and the half mile track turns appear to have been made to order for him.

The most royally bred band of 2 year olds that will race at Sportsman's park are those which Bob McGarvey is training for Stuyvesant Peabody. They represent some of the best known sires in America and will be right at home on the half mile track, for they were taught most of their racing lessons and have been brought up to racing condition on the half mile training track at the Peabody farm near Chicago.

Technocracy Looks Good.

There are nine 2 year olds in the Peabody string and one that has been named Technocracy, a son of Upset, is reported to have turned in the best trials. The other young horses in the Peabody band have been named Dusty Lane, Hair Pin, Hip Boots, Route Four, Farmer Bob, Slip Knot, Mach's Pal, and Gay Follies.

Charles W. Bidwill's horses also will make their first spring campaign at Sportsman's Park this year. He will have eight here for racing. Trainer E. L. Snyder will bring them from the Churchill Downs track in Kentucky early next week.

One of the few Kentucky Derby candidates training at Hawthorne is Cardinal Jack, a son of Kentucky Cardinal-Ellen O. He never has started but is reported to have shown so much promise that his owner, Jack Newman of Chicago, has about decided to send him to Kentucky for the $50,000 race.

Four Colleges Dropped by North Central

examiner at Ohio State, as first vice president, and Lieut. Col. A. M. Hitch of Kemper Military academy, Boonville, Mo., as second vice president. The convention will affirm these selections today.

Higher educational standards for coaches of major sports in colleges and universities and a limitation of salary schedules to conform to those of other university departments were salient features of the report of the special committee on athletics.

This report was made by B. L. Stradley, university examiner of Ohio State university, following a three year survey of North Central colleges and universities.

Ask Degrees for Coaches.

The committee, which originally was headed by Dr. H. M. Gage, president of Coe college, who now is chairman of the board of review, recommended to the North Central that all coaches of major sports should have a master of arts degree in physical education.

It is proposed that a reasonable length of time be given for these requirements to be met. After such time has elapsed universities and colleges failing to meet this requirement would forfeit their accredited standings.

Other recommendations of the committee were:

Universities and colleges should establish a centralized employment agency for student jobs which should treat athletes and non-athletes the same in securing employment.

Loans and scholarships should be administered by a central agency to prevent overlapping or discrimination.

WISE ANNE WINS AT HAVRE AFTER 6 LOSING STARTS

Havre de Grace, Md., April 21.—[Special.]—The Wise Counsellor filly, Wise Anne, which races for Mrs. W. C. Weant, scored today in her first local effort following six unsuccessful starts at Hialeah Park in Florida. Ridden carefully and well by the veteran Jockey Jimmy Smith, Wise Anne won by two lengths at $13.20 for $2.00.

Closing courageously, but outstayed by the winner, was the C. V. Whitney stake winner Volette, making her first start of the year. She came from far back to take the place by half a length from W. R. Coe's Enactment, even money favorite. After that the order of finish was Hidora, Speed Boat, Dark Love and Visa.

Carries Top Weight.

Wise Anne scored over a track that was drying out but which still was slow. Her time for the six furlongs was 1:14 2-5 and she carried top weight of 115 pounds.

The result was no surprise to those who remembered Wise Anne's second to The Darb in the Richard Johnson stakes last fall, run through the mud. In that test Enactment was third.

Boscobel Wins Easily.

J. E. Smallman's Boscobel broke the sequence of losing odds on choices when she got home first in the fifth event by the overwhelming margin of seven lengths.

The daughter of Sir Greysteel was a 9 to 10 shot and held away from the start to finish. The test was at a mile and seventy yards, Boscobel finishing in 1:46.

Michigan to Lead in Fishing Fee Reduction

BY BOB BECKER.

The cost of fishing licenses may take a drop this summer. State legislatures are considering reductions in license fees. This move will be welcomed by thousands of anglers who have been complaining about the high cost of fishing licenses in some states. Conservation officials, however, who are finding trouble in getting money for operations are not keen about reducing the cost of licenses.

It is safe to predict that Michigan will put a license reduction into effect this spring. Changes in fees, both resident and nonresident, are now pending in the legislature. Here is a prediction on the new costs based on information received from Lansing: It appears that the nonresident fishing license will be sold at $2. Resident licenses for fishermen over 18 years of age probably will cost fifty cents. This is a substantial reduction. Last year the Michigan nonresident fishing license was $4.00.

Trout Country Needs Sun.

Reports on trout fishing conditions in the north country are none too cheerful for anglers who are eagerly awaiting the arrival of May 1, the opening day of the 1933 season. Cold weather retarding melting snow and ice in the woods, swamps still frozen and other adverse conditions point to a wet May 1. The trout fishing country needs warm sunshine to get trout streams in shape. Delays in the arrival of this kind of April weather may make May 1 unseasonable for good fishing.

Early spring fishermen are finding the northern Illinois lake country almost flooded by heavy rains. Lakes are above normal levels and the water stands on thousands of acres of marshland, much to the delight of mudhens, and a variety of migrating ducks. In spite of high water the bluegill and crappie fishermen are managing to get some nice strings of fish with fly rods.

Meet on Pistakee Outlet.

One of the most active "bluegill and crappie clubs" holds its weekly meetings on an outlet of Pistakee. Here the land is open enough to permit one to toss a fly without difficulty. The fly fishermen are finding the usual spring run of fish with the best sport coming late in the afternoon. Beginners at this game will be welcomed by the veteran fly casters who can be seen in action every week at this fishing spot close to the gravel road west of the village of Long Lake.

Hold Preliminaries in Catholic Swim Meet

Preliminary events in the Chicago Catholic High School league swimming meet will be held tonight at Loyola university. The finals are scheduled for tomorrow night. St. George, which won the title last year, will defend it against seven other squads. St. George is coached by Wallie Colbath, Olympic swimming star. Other teams in the meet are Loyola, St. Philip, Mount Carmel, Leo, Fenwick, De Paul, and Weber.

Golfing Women Will Have No Time to Cook This Summer

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The spring luncheon of the Chicago Women's District Golf association at the Lake Shore Athletic club Monday, will be a forerunner to a season which will tax the energy and hospitality of the association to the limit, for its officers and members this year will be hostesses to the busiest program in the history of any similar group.

The luncheon Monday will be of prime importance to members, for aside from completing plans for A Century of Progress exposition, the association will vote on a reduction of the annual dues. As recommended by the executive committee, the yearly fee hereafter will be $3 instead of $5; although entrants in the district championship will be assessed an additional fee of $2. In the past the annual dues included the entry fee to the district tournament, but many of the members did not compete in the event.

Annual Meet at Tourney.

Mrs. John A. Wheeler of Evanston is president of the association; Mrs. Lucius B. Phelps of Oak Park, vice president; Mrs. W. H. McCausland of Beverly, treasurer, and Miss Marjorie Russell of La Grange, secretary. Mrs. Wheeler also was recently appointed national chairman of the women's committee of the United States Golf association.

The C. W. D. G. A. will hold its annual championship at Skokie the week of July 17-21. The first important event will be an open tourney on June 20 at Edgewood Valley, in which members of the Canadian team coming here for the international women's matches will be guests. Other tournaments for which dates and places are set are a foursome event at Flossmoor on July 27 and an open meet at Northmoor on Aug. 23.

Team Matches On.

The team matches will be conducted as usual, the district series on a handicap basis, starting the first part of June and being held weekly. The intradistrict will be played July 7, July 28, and Sept. 8, courses to be announced later.

There are probably no two courses in the Chicago district receiving more attention than the No. 1 and No. 3 layouts at Medinah, for they will be subjected to the first onslaught of the tournament season on May 15, when the Chicago district qualifying trials for the national open are played. They will be the scene of two other major events from June 19 to 24, when the Illinois state amateur and professional championships are decided. All three courses at Medinah wintered well, and Greenskeeper Matt Bezek, formerly at Beverly, and a crew of men are going over them daily.

Ed Newkirk of Navajo Fields, secretary of the Illinois Professional Golfers' association, announces that an important meeting relative to sales taxes and tournament arrangements will be held at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon in Room 707 of the First National Bank building.

Various Chicago church organizations in the past have conducted competition successfully in baseball, basketball, and track. A number of north shore churches are now organizing the North Shore Church Golf association for team play among the various members. The association is seeking to enroll eight teams, so that they may start match play in June and continue until the last week in August. A special medal play event will be held in September, with a trophy to be held for one year going to the winners. Each team will consist of six men, four regulars, and two reserves. Four will compete in the weekly match play events, with six being allowed to play in the medal tournament, the low four scores to count.

Golfers who wish to test out Chicago daily fee courses over the weekend will find plenty of the same ready for them, regardless of where they live. A list of the fee courses now open for play follows:

The Lincoln Park Golf club will hold its sixth annual midwest public links championship the week beginning July 17. The club is inviting all visitors to A Century of Progress to compete in the tournament.

It's two Coopers instead of one at Glen Oak now, for Harry returned from the winter campaign not only with a successful record which ranked high high among the money winners but also with his father, Syd. The man who first developed Harry's game has been stationed at the Phoenix-Biltmore club in Arizona, but henceforth will assist his son at Glen Oak.

Mention of Harry Cooper brings up the cheering fact that the Chicago district will be well prepared for such World's Fair tournaments as the national open, western open, and state professional with three of the greatest shots in golf in Cooper, Horton Smith of Oak Park, and Tommy Armour of Medinah.

CLEVELAND TRIO, ARTILLERY PLAY FOR POLO TITLE

Battle Features Double Bill Tonight.

Two intersectional games are on the schedule tonight in the National indoor polo tournament at the 124th Field Artillery armory, 52d street and Cottage Grove avenue. The opening match, starting at 8:30 p. m., will be the class D final in which the Cleveland Riding club will oppose the 124th Field Artillery Cardinals, conquerors of the Brooklyn Riding and Driving club in Thursday night's semi-final round.

Winston Guest and his world champion Optimists from New York will then take the field in the high goal open class semi-final against Maj. Dick Hunter's South Shore Remount association trio of Chicago.

Guest's Team Intact.

Guest, indoor polo's No. 1 ranking star, handicapped at 10 goals, will have his team intact for tonight's bid for another leg on the John R. Townsend trophy, which the New Yorkers captured last year in the open class.

With Guest, Michael Phipps and Iglehart, the Optimists will present the only 24 goal trio in the indoor game. Phipps, like Iglehart, is a 7 goal player.

Both the Cleveland and the 112th Field Artillery trios are handicapped at 5 goals. A. Z. Baker rates 1, Bill Fergus 2 and Maj. O. I. Gates 2 for the Buckeyes, while for the New Jersey team Capt. A. P. Moore is handicapped at 3 goals and Lieut. J. T. Wilson at 2.

Maj. Hunter of the Remounts will be supported by Barney Balding, a colorful player, whose lot it will be to come into frequent conflict with Guest, as both will appear at the No. 2 position.

Cardinals Are Ready.

Lieut. Chris Schuh of the Cardinals and his mates, Lieuts. Romeo Mura and Lou Levine, are on edge for their Cleveland opponents. With the championship trophy as the reward for victory tonight, they are expected to turn in a brilliant game.

The opener tomorrow night will be a special intercity challenge match between the Brooklyn trio, semi-finalists in class D, and the 122d Field Artillery of Chicago.

Tomorrow night's feature attraction will bring together the 112th Field Artillery officers of Trenton, N. J., and the Cleveland Riding club C team in the semi-finals of that division. The winner will meet the 124th Field Artillery trio of Chicago, which drew a bye in the pairings, in the finals.

The 124th Field Artillery Cardinals, rating 4 goals, the class D limit, will spot their Cleveland opponents, a 2 goal trio, two goals. Of the Ohio players Bill O'Neil and Hank Evinger carry one goal handicaps.

RUTH WHACKS 2D HOMER; YANKEES BEAT RED SOX, 7-5

New York Piles Up 18 Hits Against Boston.

Boston, Mass., April 21.—(AP)—The New York Yankees went on their first batting spree of 1933 today and hammered the Red Sox into submission, 7 to 5, before a crowd of 18,000 in the Boston American league opening.

Babe Ruth's second homer of the season, a drive over the left field score board off Johnny Welch's delivery in the fourth inning, was a high spot of the 18 hit assault. Charley Ruffing, winning his second game of the campaign, yielded eight hits and fanned seven. Score:

Philadelphia, Pa., April 21.—(AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics today bunched their hits to beat Washington for the second time in a row. The score was 3 to 1. Merritt (Sugar) Cain, Athletics' pitcher, yielded only eight hits.

Once more the bat of Jimmy Foxx spoke loudly, driving in the Macks' second run and setting the stage for Lou Finney, who doubled immediately after him in the third inning. The Senators' single run was Buddy Myer's homer in the fifth inning.

Although the Senators outhit the A's, 8 to 7, Cain bore down in pinches and held them away from the plate. Alvin Crowder was on the mound for Washington and pitched good enough ball to win most games, but the Philadelphia squad's timely hitting carried the A's to victory. Score:

LENORE KIGHT TAKES 220 YARD FREE STYLE TITLE

Buffalo, N. Y., April 21.—(AP)—Miss Lenore Kight of Homestead, Pa., tonight won the national 220 yard free style swimming championship by defeating Miss Eleanor Bridges of Whitinsville, Mass., and Miss Sue Robertson of New York in the finals of the National Women's Senior A. A. U. title race at that distance. Her time was 2 minutes 35 2-5 seconds.

Miss Kight also lowered the world's 200 yard mark in the same race as three judges timed her at that distance in 2 minutes 20.5 seconds, one-half second lower than the record set in 1930 by Helene Madison.

The No. 1 team of the Women's Swimming Association of New York retained the title in the medley relay by defeating the Carnegie Library club team and the second team entered by the association. The time was 3 minutes, 45 2-5 seconds. The Toronto Dolphinets team was fourth.

The 100 yard free style record was lowered by Walter Spence of Orange, national and intercollegiate champion at the distance. He won the fifth heat in 53 4-5 seconds; a full second and one-fifth under the standard held by Ernie Drosdick, also of Orange.

BADGERS BEAT KALAMAZOO, 3-1, FOR FIRST TIME

Kalamazoo, Mich., April 21.—[Special.]—Wisconsin's baseball team beat Western State Teachers college, 3 to 1, today for the first Wisconsin victory in history over the Kalamazoo nine. It was Western's first defeat of the new season. Brandt yielded three hits in the first inning and went wild in the second, walking three men. He was succeed by Marquard, who yielded four hits the rest of the game. Facetti pitched fine baseball, allowing Western State only five hits. Two of these were grouped in the eighth, along with an error for Western State's run. Score:

PIRATES SCORE FIVE IN EIGHTH TO BEAT REDS, 5-1

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 21.—(AP)—The Pirates opened their 1933 home season today by defeating the Cincinnati Reds, 5 to 1, before a disappointing crowd of 13,000—one of the smallest first day gatherings in 30 years. The 10 year old daughter of Honus [Hans] Wagner, greatest shortstop of all time and now a Pirate coach, tossed out the first ball.

The game was a pitching duel between Si Johnson of the Reds and Bill Swift, Pirate recruit. A home run by Jim Bottomley, which was one of the two hits off Swift, appeared to be a large enough margin for the Reds to win until the Pirates solved Johnson's offerings in the eighth with five runs.

Jensen, pinchhitting for Swift, started the rally with a single. L. Waner singled, Lindstrom sacrificed, and P. Waner was passed, loading the bases. Traynor, who is playing his 13th year for the Pirates, then doubled, scoring two, and Suhr completed the rout of Johnson by hitting a triple. Piet's single off Benton scored Traynor with the fifth run.

New York, April 21.—(AP)—Although they made only four hits, the Braves handed the Giants their first defeat today when Hal Schumacher's wildness gave Boston a 3 to 1 decision.

Schumacher issued two passes in the fourth inning, which with a pair of wild pitches and singles by Baxter Jordan and Frank Hogan, produced all the Boston runs. Travis Jackson made his first appearance at shortstop for the Giants since last June, playing the last two innings. Score:

MILLER TAKES LEAD OF 116 PINS OVER WATSON

Buffalo, N. Y., April 21.—[Special.]—Joe Miller of Buffalo tonight swept to a 116 pin lead over Stewart Watson of Chicago in the opening block of their 80 game match for the individual match game championship of America. Miller averaged 195 for his first ten games.

Miller scored 1,950 to Watson's 1,834, winning nine of the ten games by a margin of two, three, four pins, or better. Only in the ninth game when Watson scored 223 to reduce Miller's lead by 56 pins did the Buffalo man appear off form. In this game Watson grouped four strikes midway through the session to wind up with the 223 score, high for the night.

A summary of the games showed 32 strikes for each man. Miller had seven doubles, a triple, and two groups of four in a row, while the Chicagoan registered only five doubles, two triples, and one cluster of four. Watson had 17 open frames, including one error, while his opponent encountered ten open frames, including two errors.

N. U. NET TEAM BEATS ELMHURST; IOWA FOE TODAY

Northwestern's tennis team defeated Elmhurst college, 5 to 1, on the university courts in Evanston yesterday. The Purple opens its conference season against Iowa today. The matches start at 3 o'clock. Earl Tetting, Wildcat captain, lost his singles match to Capt. Umbeck of Elmhurst, 6-2, 1-6, 8-6. Results of other matches:

SINGLES—Sink [Northwestern] defeated Gerfen [Elmhurst], 4-6, 6-1, 6-3; Laux [Northwestern] defeated Haag [Elmhurst], 6-2, 7-5; Coombs [Northwestern] defeated Sanders [Elmhurst], 6-3, 5-7, 9-7.

DOUBLES—Tetting and Sinks [Northwestern] defeated Umbeck and Gerfen [Elmhurst], 6-2, 6-0; Coombs and Laux [Northwestern] defeated Haag and Sanders [Elmhurst], 6-1, 5-7, 6-2.

Gaston to Pitch Opener of Series with Cleveland

Milton Gaston will be picked as pitching greeter when the Cleveland Indians arrive at Comiskey park this afternoon for their first visit of the season. Hudlin probably will operate for the visitors. If the Sox had won yesterday Manager Fonseca intended to take a chance on Vic Frasier today. The manager is anxious to learn just how much progress the Texan has made in his comeback.

The women guests were surprised, on arrival at the gate, to learn that a dime tax wasn't necessary. Since last season the government has ruled that no tax is to be collected when definite sections of seats are set aside for the weekly guests. The women were confined to the right field wing and pavilion.

Fonseca made the trade that sent Hadley to the Browns last spring, so the latter may have borne down just a bit harder than usual when the manager was at bat. Anyway, he fanned the boss twice. In his only other appearance Fonseca grounded into a double play.

The Sox officials will make an attempt today to have Billy Sullivan join the team immediately for first base duty. He will be graduated from Notre Dame next month, so he probably will not agree to any further delay in capturing his degree.

One explanation for the many low score games pitched this spring is the condition of the various fields. Practically every one of them has been well soaked with rain. The result of this is a spongy turf which slows down the infield grounders and gives the fielders time to get in front of them.

Rabbit Ball Slowing Down to a Walk?

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., April 21.—The theory that the 1933 National league ball has been derabbitized is gaining converts. Even some of the pitchers privately are admitting the ball doesn't seem as lively as heretofore, Guy Bush and Beryl Richmond after today's Cub-Cardinal game, being exceptions.

Long range sluggers, of course, were the first to claim that the manufactureres have conspired to reduce the calibre of their swats, but their testimony is not always reliable in such matters.

Aside from what the players think, the shutouts and low score, light hitting games indicate a change in the ball. Early this week, for instance, there were two 2-hit shutouts in the two National league games played. The Cardinals, a fairly strong aggregation of hitters, were shut out in two of their first three games and escaped another goosegg in their fourth start because a near putout bounced for a triple and developed into St. Louisans' lone run.

Everything being normal the hitters generally are ahead of the pitchers at this season of the year. With the lively ball this ought to be especially true this pring, in view of the great excess of unfavorable weather.

Charley Root is the tentative pitching selection for tomorrow's game, the windup of the series here. Charlie was in the bull pen as soon as it became apparent in the first inning that Bush didn't have his stuff. He warmed up until Richmond was sent in in the fourth. If Root feels any effects of the bullpen work come tomorrow Lon Warneke may get the call.

Babe Herman was tied for second last year for assists by outfielders in the National league with 18. Eight more days like today and he'll be tied with that mark. Babe had thirteen errors last year, but didn't get started on his 1933 error record until today, but the start was a good one—it allowed the Cardinals to score their fourth run and Medwick to reach third on a single.

No matter how well Frank Demaree plays the rest of the year his fielding percentage will not be as high as it was last season. Frank accepted 33 chances after joining the Cubs and committed nary an error. He booted one in the second inning today.

The Cubs will leave for Cincinnati tomorrow night to pay the Reds a three day visit. The Chicagoans have played ten games with the Pirates this year and four with the Cardinals, but they scarcely know who's playing on the Reds.

WHITE SOX LOSE TO BROWNS, 4-0; FONSECA HURT

man on base and this was mainly a matter of luck. After Levey's roller to Fonseca had opened the third, Ferrell hoisted a high fly to right. Between the high wind, the sun and the screeching of the gentler sex, Kress couldn't decide how to handle the problem. He finally let the ball fall behind him for a cheap double. Gregory disposed of the next two batters without trouble and also knocked off three more in succession in the fourth.

Campbell threw opportunity in front of the Sox in the fourth but Hadley was too good to even be bothered by other people's generosity. Hayes lined a single to right for the second and last Sox hit and Campbell fumbled just long enough to permit Hayes to take second. Haas popped to Melillo and Fonseca fanned. Hadley threw a series of low outside pitches to Simmons, hoping the slugger would bite on one of them, but Al held out for a walk and got it. This put Appling on the spot, but all he was able to deliver was a gentle tap back at Hadley. The Sox didn't see first base after this.

The Browns were just a bit belligerent in the fifth and sixth. In the former inning Levey singled to center for the second hit off Gregory and also stole second. Two were out at the time and Dykes threw out Melillo. In the sixth Hadley opened with a single to right, Scharein flied to Kress and West walked. Reynolds hit one squarely and it sailed on a line toward a wide open spot in right center, but Kress showed up just in time to make the catch. Then Campbell hoisted one into short center and Appling insisted on taking it although Simmons was nearby. The ball almost escaped from Luke's hands.

600 from 44 Colleges Seek Kansas Relays Titles Today

Lawrence, Kas., April 21.—[Special.]—Inclement weather will greet university, college and junior college track and field athletes tomorrow in the 11th annual University of Kansas relay carnival. A cold wave chilled the stadium today and advance forecasts call for no change in temperature.

GLENN CUNNINGHAM.

While there is no evidence of rain and the track will be in excellent running condition, it is doubtful if records will be broken. The one record which seems likely to go into the discard is the 1,500 meters run, an open affair sponsored by the Missouri Valley A. A. U., which has an entry list of outstanding athletes from 19 institutions.

Crack Field Entered.

Glenn Cunningham of the University of Kansas, Glenn Dawson of the Tulsa Athletic club, Harold Manning of Wichita, Kas., and Dean Woolsey, University of Illinois star, who won the Big Ten conference indoor mile championship last winter at 4 minutes 15 4-10 seconds, are the favorites in this event.

Cunningham set the mark last April, running the event in 4 minutes 2 5-10 seconds. It was a slow race, however, contested on a muddy track. Records in the remaining events depend entirely on the weather.

Six hundred athletes from 11 universities, 26 colleges and 7 junior colleges are entered in the meet. The program calls for seven university relays, four college relays, one relay for junior colleges and seven individual events.

Charles Leads Decathlon.

The program opened today with the 29th annual Kansas interscholastic meet and the Missouri Valley A. A. U. decathlon championship. Eight athletes were entered for the decathlon, but the field was reduced to seven when Carl Parker of Lake Forest college, Lake Forest, Ill., withdrew.

Five decathlon events were contested today, the 100 meters run, broad jump, shot put, high jump and 400 meters run. Wilson [Buster] Charles, former Haskell institute star, and fourth place winner of the Olympic decathlon, was far out in front at the end of the day's work. The final events will be held tomorrow morning. They include the 110 meters high hurdles, discus throw, pole vault, javelin throw, and 1,500 meters run.

110 METER DASH—Wilson Charles, unattached, 11.3 seconds; George W. Grammer, Junction City, Kas., unattached, 11.4; Donald Eagleman, Haskell institute, 11.9; Charles Childress, Central Missouri State Teachers' college, Warrensburg, 12.0; William Frazey, Iowa Wesleyan college, Mount Pleasant, 12.3; Russell Pearson, Central Missouri State Teachers' college, Warrensburg, 12.5; Eric Classen, Newton, Kas., unattached, 12.8.

BROAD JUMP—Charles, 22 feet 4¾ inches; Pearson, 22 feet 1⅝ inches; Childress, 21 feet 5¾ inches; Grammer, 20 feet 9⅝ inches; Engleman, 20 feet 2 inches; Frazey, 18 feet 5⅝ inches; Classen, 17 feet 4 inches.

SHOT PUT—Charles, 41 feet 6½ inches; Childress, 40 feet 9½ inches; Pearson, 36 feet 11¾ inches; Engleman, 36 feet 5 inches; Frazey, 34 feet 4 inches; Grammer, 34 feet 4⅜ inches; Classen, 33 feet 4⅞ inches.

HIGH JUMP—Charles, 5 feet 11¼ inches; Childress, 5 feet 10⅝ inches; Pearson, 5 feet 7½ inches; Frazey, 5 feet 5⅝ inches; Grammer, 5 feet 4⅜ inches; Eagleman, 4 feet 10¾ inches; Classen, 4 feet 6 inches.

100 METER RUN—Grammer, 52.5 seconds; Charles, 54.1; Eagleman, 55.0; Childress, 55.4; Frazey, 57.8; Pearson, 58.4; Classen, 61.6.

Tracks Judged by Company They Tolerate

trary authority, the proprietors could be much more severe than they are about excluding individuals whom they know to be crooks. It does not take a well informed race track manager long to learn who is who in the business, and it is impossible to disguise for long the true ownership of a horse or stable, no matter whose colors may be used to cover the horses.

Should Bar Crooks.

Such operators as Widener, the Jockey club, Arlington Park, and Churchill Downs ought to bar all known crooks out of their grounds, and certainly they ought never to accept entries from nor even rent stalls to horses or stables of horses which they have reason to suspect are secretly owned by mob interests.

No reputable race track has anything to gain from the presence of gambling houses in its vicinity. On the contrary the public mind is likely to associate the one with the other to the detriment of the horse track which, in some cases, represents a sound business with solid investments in grounds and buildings and with many persons dependent upon it for a living. Gambling houses are very mobile. The entire equipment may be moved in one van in an hour's time and, being illegal, they pay no taxes and always degrade the life of the place in which they operate.

CANZONERI AND ROSS SIGN FOR TITLE BATTLE

Stadium Plans Bout for Wrigley Field June 22.

Tony Canzoneri of New York last night signed to defend his lightweight boxing championship against Barney Ross, former Golden Gloves champion, in June under the direction of the Chicago Stadium Operating company. The date and site were tentatively set for June 22 at Wrigley field.

The signing of Canzoneri and Ross ended a day of bidding for the bout between the Stadium Operating company and Jim Mullen, a rival Chicago promoter, who had planned to present the match at Soldiers' field. Mullen stepped out of the picture during a lengthy conference last night, apparently because he could not offer more than 40 per cent of receipts to the champion.

The Stadium did not reveal terms of the contract for the fight, which will be one of the sports features arranged in connection with A Century of Progress. However, it is understood that Canzoneri has been guaranteed $35,000.

Present at last night's conference were Art Winch and Sam Pian, managers of Ross; Sam Goldman, Canzoneri's manager, and representatives of the Stadium Operating company.

FIELD BUILDING WILL BE ERECTED AS FIRST PLANNED

Start Clearing Site for Tower on May 1.

BY AL CHASE.

George Richardson, a trustee of the Marshall Field estate, yesterday settled a number of rumors regarding the Field building by announcing that it had been decided to go ahead with the last unit of Chicago's largest office building as originally scheduled. For some time it is understood, there was some doubt whether the tower section should be erected at this time.

According to Robert Carpenter, manager of the Field building, the third unit will comprise about two-thirds of the entire structure. When completed the Field building will have one million square feet of rentable floor space. The first and second units, already completed, have about 340,000 square feet of office area.

Will Replace Old Timer.

The third unit will replace the present twelve story Standard Trust building, at the northwest corner of Clark and Adams, which is to be wrecked beginning May 1. This was built in 1899-1900 and was known originally as the Merchants Loan and Trust Company building. It got its name from the bank which occupied the second floor, an institution of which Marshall Field was a big stockholder. Through several mergers, the old bank has become a part of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company.

The Field building will have a tower section 535 feet high, comprising forty-two rentable floors. Graham, Anderson, Probst & White are architects. The George A. Fuller company has the general contract. The Newman Wrecking company will demolish the old Standard Trust building. Completion of the third unit is set for May 1, 1934.

The twenty-one story cooperative 1400 Lake Shore Drive building, formerly known as the Touraine hotel, was sold for $760,000 at a master's sale held yesterday in the Judicial salesroom of the Chicago Real Estate board by Master in Chancery Ninian H. Welch. The property was bid in by four members of the Bondholders' Protective committee, Attorney N. W. MacChesney, Joel Bowdry, David S. Davis, and Charles E. McGuire, who will be on the board of directors of a new corporation to be formed.

According to Mr. MacChesney the owner tenants will get back their equities, under the proposed plan, upon payment of assessments, etc. The bondholders, he stated, will get the total income from the building until their bonds are paid off. There are $3,724,000 bonds outstanding. This was a George M. Forman & Co., bond issue.

C. & E. I. RAILWAY HAS '32 DEFICIT OF $3,767,645

The continued decline in business resulted in a deficit of $3,767,645 for 1932 operations for the Chicago & Eastern Illinois railway, according to the annual report of President Charles T. O'Neal. The road, which recently filed a voluntary bankruptcy petition, sustained a deficit of $3,357,539 for 1931.

Total railway operating income for 1932 totaled $12,587,744, compared with $15,447,766 in 1931, a decline of 19.8 per cent. Operating expenses totaled $10,646,392 for 1932, compared with $13,704,652 in 1931, a decline of 22.3 per cent. Current assets as of Dec. 31, 1932, totaled $2,536,087, compared with $2,311,282 at the end of 1931. Total assets were given as $87,597,343 at the end of 1932. Current liabilities at the end of 1932 totaled $10,240,141, compared with $6,121,534 at the end of 1931.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Hysterical buying of all grain futures showed a marked tendency to decrease yesterday and more attention was paid to the general run of the news than for some days. Reports of heavy rains in parts of the west and southwest which have been complaining of drought, coupled with heavy profit taking by longs, disclosed a somewhat weakened technical position. Easiness in stocks, the sharp recession in sterling exchange and a drastic decline in silver all tended to curtail the aggressive buying which has been such a market influence of late.

While wheat rallied at one time to a fraction above the close of the previous day, it was followed by a break on further heavy profit taking and some stop loss orders were uncovered on the way down. September wheat, which touched 73 cents on Thursday, dropped to 67⅝ cents yesterday and showed 2⅛ cents under the close of the previous day. However, support was in evidence and a rally followed. Net losses for the day were 1⅜ to 1½ cents, with May finishing at 65⅝ to 65¾ cents, July at 66⅝ to 66¾-66⅞ cents and September at 68 to 68⅛ cents.

Local Longs Sell Wheat.

Inflation talk and developments at Washington continue the dominating factor in the grain markets, according to views expressed by the trade. However, it has been a long time since longs have had such a quick profit on purchases, and this has resulted in general selling. Trade gossip indicated that a majority of the leading local professionals had sold out their lines of wheat and other grains on the bulges, and were said to be waiting for what was regarded as a natural reaction in order to repurchase to better advantage.

Houses with eastern connections became good buyers of corn after prices had dropped around 1 cent from Thursday's finish, and a rally of 1½ cents followed. However, the market eased again toward the last and closed ⅛ to ½ cent lower. May closed at 34⅞ to 35 cents; July, 37¼ to 37⅝ cents, and September, 38⅝ to 39 cents. Shipping demand was less active, with sales of 140,000 bushels, while the country sold 105,000 bushels to arrive.

Oats Seeding Delayed.

Oats seeding in Illinois was about 30 per cent completed by April 15, as indicated by the midmonth state and government reports, compared with a normal of around 80 per cent by that date. A smaller acreage than expected earlier in the season is consequently looked for. Commission houses were good buyers of futures and the close was unchanged to ⅛ cent higher, with May at 23½ to 23⅝ cents and July at 23⅝ cents.

Profit taking in rye and barley found support less aggressive and the former grain closed 1⅝ to 2⅞ cents lower. May was 46 cents and July, 47⅛ cents at the last. Barley led the decline and closed 1¾ to 3⅝ cents lower, with July leading. The latter finished at 39 cents and May at 38¼ cents. An increase in barley acreage is expected in the central west and northwest, according to private and official reports.

New York, April 21.—(AP)—The Cotton Textile institute announced tonight that approximately $2,125,000 will be spent in advertising cotton merchandise before and during national cotton week, May 15 to 20.

George A. Sloan, president of the institute, said most of this amount would be expended for newspaper space. He said a survey indicated fully 82,000,000 lines of copy, as complete pages or in half and quarter page sections, would be used by retail merchants in centering the advertising spotlight on cotton and cotton products.

Buying Wave Booms Trade, Reviews Say

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 21.—The trade reviews of the week report marked improvement in many lines with the character of buying indicating that the forward movement is likely to be sustained.

Buyers apparently have become convinced that they can no longer refrain from purchasing, due to the bulge in commodity prices generally, and the outlook is promising.

Regain Lost Ground.

Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., says in part: "Already spurred by a series of constructive measures, the occurrences crowded into a few brief weeks have enabled the gains in some divisions to be sufficiently large to achieve the recovery of all the ground lost in the confusion which existed during the greater part of March, and entirely new outlets for some industrial products have buoyed activity on many fronts.

"The hesitation so noticeable a week ago, because of the impending legislation in regard to currency inflation, programs of public works, agricultural relief, minimum wages, and tariff revisions were less of a disturbing factor as more attention was concentrated on constantly widening trends in business activity.

Public Buying Gains.

"In direct reversal of the usual post-Easter trend, the volume of sales has receded only moderately from the levels of the last two weeks, indicating the changed attitude of the public, which is evincing a stronger preference for things rather than money, as the belief becomes stronger in the stability of the present forward movement.

"All trade indices support the contention that the current revival is capable of lasting, provided there be no fresh shock to confidence and at least some evidence of early practical results be forthcoming from the President's trade talks with the principal foreign countries."

E. A. CUDAHY SEES LARGER PROFITS IN MEAT PACKING

E. A. Cudahy Sr., chairman of the board of the Cudahy Packing company, stated yesterday that as a result of improved prices for packed meats and economies the company will earn a larger profit for the six months ending May 1 than for the like period in 1932.

"Our present showing is considerably better than it has been in some months," Mr. Cudahy said, "and I look forward to a profitable year, free from the unfavorable conditions which shot prices to pieces during the last two or three months of the 1932 fiscal year.

"Our prices for packed meats have strengthened. The resistance, of course, to a considerable advance comes from consumers whose buying power is limited. A fuller development of purchasing power, on which a sustained price rise depends, must await a greater flow of money into the hands of the public. While this increase in purchasing power will be delayed, I feel it is bound to come before the end of the year."

SIX DOWNSTATE BANKS GET O. K. TO OPEN TODAY

State Auditor Barrett last night authorized six more state banks to reopen this morning. They are:

SPARTA—Sparta State bank.
WALPOLE—Walpole State bank.
MEREDOSIA—Farmers and Traders State Bank of Meredosia.
WELLINGTON—The Wellington State bank.
BUDA—Lindner and Boyden bank.
SHANNON—First State Bank of Shannon.

Sugar Advances to Best Price Since Summer, 1931

New York, April 21.—(AP)—Leading sugar companies today advanced the price of refined one-fifth of a cent a pound to 4½ cents, the highest level since the summer of 1931. The increase followed an advance of one-twentieth cent in raw spots to the basis of 3.25 cents a pound.

Kentucky Utilities Votes Regular Preferred Dividend

Directors of the Kentucky Utilities company yesterday declared the regular quarterly dividend of 87½ cents a share on the 7 per cent cumulative junior preferred stock, payable May 20 to stock of record May 1. The company is a subsidiary of the Middle West Utilities company.

MARKET BOOM BRINGS FLOOD OF BUSINESS TO WIRE COMPANIES

As a result of the boom in the security and commodity markets the telegraph companies have been able to give full time employment to many workers who have been on a part time basis for many months. Business of the telegraph companies showed material increases during the bank holiday and at the time of the California earthquake but the increase caused by the inflation markets has been much greater.

Herbert Brown, superintendent of the Western Union in Chicago, said yesterday many part time employés have been put back on full time. The increase in business has provided employment equivalent to the work of 70 operators, he said.

CABLE BUSINESS HEAVY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 21.—For the second time within seven weeks an edict of President Roosevelt has sent a landslide of business into the offices of the communications companies. The boom in stock trading and the outburst of activity in the commodity markets has given these companies the busiest three days in many months.

The greatest rate of business increase has been in the transmission of messages by cable. Europe has been active in trading in wheat, cotton, and in fact all commodities, while messages on the subject of foreign exchange alone have given the International Telephone & Telegraph corporation, which operates the Postal Telegraph and Mackay Radio systems, the most profitable days in years.

At offices of Western Union Telegraph company it was reported today that cable business has increased approximately 50 per cent. In addition to this the Western Union has been busy installing stock tickers for the first time in months.

SILVER RECEDES 1¼ CTS. TO 34¼; COPPER HIGHER

New York, April 21.—(AP)—The speculative gyrations in silver resulted in a substantial setback today, but the prices of metals generally worked irregularly higher.

Bar silver, up 6⅝ cents in the previous two days, reacted 1¼ cents to 34¼ cents an ounce. Futures, which had jumped about 6 cents in the same period, dropped back 2 to 3 cents.

In the last three days trading in silver has been half again as great as the annual production of silver in this country, based on the 1931 figures. Contracts for approximately 45,000,000 ounces have changed hands in those days. This tremendous volume is equivalent to more than 20 per cent of the entire production of the world in that year.

Copper today was advanced another ¼ of a cent to 6¼ cents a pound, making a gain of close to a cent in two days. Lead and zinc were firm, holding to their advances of yesterday, and steel scrap continued to gain, with another advance of 50 cents a ton announced at Pittsburgh.

Canadian Pacific to Cut Summer Fares to Alaska

The Canadian Pacific announced yesterday that round trip rates to Alaska from Vancouver and Seattle will be reduced this summer. The price will include meals and berth on a nine day voyage.

'Gift' Gold Pleas Find U. S. Is Deaf

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

April is the most sentimental month of the year, if you wish to accept at face value the testimony the gold tellers at the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago. Requests for gold from persons pleading that they wish to make presents have increased materially this month. In the last three days the requests have been more numerous.

Invariably the gold seekers declare their unselfish desire to make gifts to friends or relatives. Some have birthdays in the family. Others have friends getting married. Others state that gold is needed for religious purposes. Birthdays lead in popularity. A few frankly admit that they wish to hedge against currency inflation.

All Requests Refused.

To the gold tellers one excuse is as good or as bad as another. All requests are refused. Patient explanations that the United States currency is no longer convertible into gold on demand are made to each person desiring gold. The teller may sympathize and agree that sentiment is a beautiful thing, but he is steadfast in his refusal to give out gold.

Most persons receive the information with feigned surprise. Others accept the verdict with smiling resignation. A few grumble.

There has been some increase in the surrender of hoarded gold since President Roosevelt announced that the penalties proscribed in the emergency banking law would be invoked against persons who retained their hoards after May 1. In the week ended Wednesday, however, there was a decline of 7 millions in the gold holdings of the Chicago reserve bank but a gain of 50 millions for the reserve system as a whole.

Hoardings Still Large.

There is still 900 millions of gold and gold certificates in hoarding in the country. The influx of gold to the reserve bank which followed the first warning of Secretary Woodin during the banking holiday has run its course and the metal is now returning more slowly. Immediate government action against hoarders who hold out after the May 1 deadline is expected in well informed quarters. The threat of the President to invoke the penalties for hoarding will be carried out to the letter, it is stated.

Approximately 600 millions has been voluntarily surrendered by hoarders, of which more than 100 millions was received through the Chicago reserve bank.

CANADA GOES OFF GOLD STANDARD BY NEW DECREE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TORONTO, Ont., April 21.—Canada has suspended the redemption of dominion notes in gold, and thus is officially off the gold standard. The action was taken a few days ago by the ministry of finance under authority of bill 54 which recently passed parliament.

The act was amended by bill 54 so that "the governor-in-council may from time to time, and for such period or periods as he may deem desirable, suspend the operation of this sub-section." The operation of the sub-section has now been suspended until further orders and no bank need pay out gold for any dominion bank note.

The inflationists in the house of commons are jubilant over the situation. That Canada must suspend the gold redemption of dominion notes and thus remove all vestige of doubt as to being off the gold standard was the opinion of all the inflationists and many other members.

National Tea Co. Earns 51 Cts. a Share in Quarter

The National Tea company reports net earnings, after federal taxes but before dividends, of $339,832.88 for the twelve week period ending March 25. This is equivalent, after deduction of $18,964.93 preferred dividends, to 51 cents per share on the common stock. In the like period of 1932 earnings were 20 cents per share.

Three Big Canadian Banks Reduce Dividend Payments

Reductions in dividends were announced yesterday by three big Canadian banks. The Royal Bank of Canada cut its yearly rate from $10 to $8. The Bank of Montreal and the Canadian Bank of Commerce also adopted $8 rates as compared with $10 formerly.

RAILS AND GOLD STOCKS RISE AS OTHERS REACT

Profit Taking Halts Inflation Boom.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 21.—The inflation boom on the stock exchange today slowed from the furious pace of the last two days, and prices were irregular but generally lower.

With the dollar leveling off on the foreign exchange and reassurance of safety brake control for the new currency expansion program coming out of Washington, traders were moved to some "sober second thoughts" on the immediate monetary outlook and operations veered once more to the selling side of the market.

Prices slumped $1 to $4 a share—largely on precautionary profit taking—and trading slowed down precepti-bly. Total sales amounted to only about 5,300,000 shares, as compared with yesterday's two year record of 7,130,000.

Rail and Gold Issues Rise.

Railroad and gold mining descriptions alone were able to hold out against the backwash. The rails had the benefit of overnight news of an impending pay cut for employés of the country's carrier systems, and net gains of 1 to 2 points were scored by the group as a whole. Some of the buying in this quarter was also ascribed to "strong arm work" by pools seeking to throw up a smoke screen to cover their selling operations in other departments of the market.

In the early dealings such favorites as New York Central, Northern Pacific, Delaware and Hudson, Atchison were up anywhere from 2 to 4 points. Most of them continued to show stout resistance to selling until well along in the afternoon, when the gradual impetus of the realizing movement finally forced them to fall back to less advanced positions.

Dealings in the department were on a heavy scale, blocks of from 5,000 to 10,000 shares coming out at fairly frequent intervals.

Homestake Over 200.

The strength of the gold mining shares hooked up as usual with discussions of the dollar devaluation proposals. Homestake Mining the leader of the group crossed 200 for the first time and closed at 199⅝ up $4.25 a share on the day. Alaska Juneau was active and strong throughtout the session and bettered its board rating by more than a point.

Operations in aircraft stocks took on big shot proportions in the earlier dealings with United Aircraft and Aviation Corporation out in front. The first named issue was one of the two or three most active stocks on the list. It closed up a point or so after being much higher.

Utility issues lost about all the gains they scored in yesterday's late afternoon flurry, Consolidated Gas tumbling $5.50 a share. American Telephone gave up $3 of its newly won gains.

Brokers Are Puzzled.

Signs of stability appearing in the bond market and weakness in the commodity markets helped to take the edge off the wave of "inflation" enthusiasm on the share exchange. Traders generally appeared considerably befuddled over the latest indications in the international economic situation and the disposition was to hedge against eventualities. Brokerage house comment indicated that much store was being set on the developments in the Washington conference during the next few days.

On the face of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S "average" table the industrial share section of the market lost $3.71 or nearly half of the gain it has made in the two preceding sessions. The "average" loss on fifty representative issues culled from the entire list was $1.50. The railroad group advanced $.72 on the day's dealings.

N. Y. COMMODITY EXCHANGE SEATS GO UP IN PRICE

New York, April 21.—(AP)—Strength of commodity markets this week was reflected today in higher prices for memberships on several exchanges here.

Two New York Cotton exchange seats changed hands, one at $14,000, up $1,250 from the previous transaction, and another at $15,000.

On the Coffee and Sugar exchange, a membership was transferred at $5,500, an increase of $500, while a seat on the Cocoa exchange sold for $1,900, a $200 rise.

A New York Stock exchange membership, on the other hand, sold at $130,000, which was a decline of $15,000 from the transaction announced yesterday.

"Reports from Pittsburgh today forecast an advance of $3 per ton on hot and cold rolled strip some time next week," says the Daily Metal Trade. Steel sellers report a sharp pickup in business and operations have expanded to 25 per cent of capacity, "with prospects for a still higher rate being attained before the close of the wee." Heavy melting steel scrap has been advanced 50 cents a ton at Pittsburgh to a range of $10.25 to $10.75.

North Western Makes Plan to Refund Bonds Operative

The plan of the Chicago and Northwestern railway to refund a debenture bond issue of some $6,556,000, maturing May 1, next, was declared operative yesterday by officials of the company. Under the plan the maturity will be met through the payment to bondholders of 50 per cent in cash borrowed from the Reconstruction Finance corporation and 50 per cent in general mortgage bonds.

Dollar Rises as Nations Shy at Gold

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 21.—The dollar rallied strongly in the foreign exchange market on indications from abroad that the gold standard countries of Europe might soon take steps to meet the depreciation of United States currency by themselves declaring embargoes upon gold.

Sterling, after selling as high as $3.90, fell to $3.77, later rallying to close at $3.81, off 4 cents on the day. The franc fell 11 points net, or 2.6 per cent, to 4.19 cents. At this price French exchange was still 6.9 per cent above par, indicating a valuation for the dollar of 93.5 cents in terms of francs. On Wednesday and Thursday, francs had risen as high as 4.50 cents, or 15 per cent above par, which meant that in terms of the franc American money was valued at only $6.9 cents.

Fear Chaos in Exchange.

The suspension of the gold standard in France, Holland, Belgium, and Switzerland, which is viewed by most bankers here as almost inevitable now that the United States has gone off gold, opens up a vista of unlimited chaos to the foreign exchange market.

It was pointed out by bankers that if these countries attempt to stand out alone as the only nations to redeem their currencies in gold they will run the risk of having all their reserves drained from them. As it is, Great Britain has been making heavy inroads upon France's gold since the banking holiday here by the same process which resulted in large losses of gold to this country earlier in the year.

How British Control Works.

In its efforts to hold sterling down, the British exchange equalization fund, earlier this year, purchased large amounts of dollars, converted the dollars into gold, and sold the gold to the Bank of England in return for more paper sterling with which to buy more gold dollars. Since the embargo on gold exports here the British control has been pegging sterling to the franc by buying francs and converting them into gold at the Bank of France.

Now the possibility is envisaged that to the British drain might be added a drain to the United States if this country were to establish an exchange control similar to the British and were to attempt to keep down the naturally buoyant dollar.

The German mark, a feature of Thursday's sharp rise against the dollar, slumped a cent to 25 cents, but at that level continued more than 4 per cent above par. Italian lire were off 10 points to 5.60 cents. The Canadian dollar also weakened, moving to a discount of 12¼ per cent against a discount of 11⅞ per cent on Thursday.

FIELD'S MANAGER

HARRISON P. SHEDD.

H. P. Shedd Named Field's Gen. Manager

Harrison P. Shedd yesterday was appointed general manager of the wholesale division of Marshall Field & Co., John McKinlay, president, announced last night. The new wholesale head is a nephew of the late John G. Shedd, who was president of Marshall Field & Co. from 1906 to 1923. Announcement was also made of the appointment of Grant S. Mears as assistant manager of the wholesale division.

GRANT S. MEARS.

Sales, general operations, and administration will be under the charge of the new appointees, Mr. McKinlay said. W. G. Burt becomes merchandise manager, in which capacity he will be advisory supervisor of merchandise purchases.

Spent Life in Merchandising.

Shedd's entire business career has been in the merchandising business. He entered the employ of Marshall Field in 1896 as a salesman in the wholesale neckwear department. Prior to that time he was connected with the department store of J. A. Stone, Grinnell, Ia., which was said to be the first department store in that section of the country.

He served with the wholesale division in New York and spent a year in India studying burlap and jute conditions. Since 1912 he has been in charge of all manufacturing activities of the company.

Mears Started in 1921.

Mears has been with the company since 1921. He was educated in the Chicago public schools and at the University of Chicago, from which he graduated in 1920. He is 33 years old. He became head of the wholesale advertising department in 1924 and personnel manager in 1928. Since January, 1931, he has been in charge of a group of small stores owned by the company.

INFLATION BILL STUDIED FOR KEY TO ITS EFFECT

Bankers Find It Will Do Six Things.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Stock and commodity markets quieted down yesterday while traders, bankers, and the public examined the administration's "inflation" bill to find out just what it contained and how it would affect prices.

Bankers came to the conclusion that the measure does six important things.

1. Holds over the federal reserve banks the threat of fiat money, a threat so strong that the reserve banks, if the bill becomes a law, will have to do virtually as the secretary of the treasury orders them to do.

2. Provides the machinery whereby the secretary of the treasury may "peg" the prices and interest rates on government bonds, although at what level it is impossible to determine from the bill itself.

3. Permits a credit or currency expansion of anywhere from one dollar to six billion dollars.

4. Provides the means whereby the credit or currency expansion may be translated into business and employment by tying in either with a vast program of public works construction or perhaps with a revival in private business activity through subsidization of industries by the government as proposed by Fred I. Kent and Charles A. Miller, president of the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

5. Does away with the free silver threat. Does authorize the acceptance of one hundred million dollars of silver from debtor nations on war debt payments. This, however, is of no benefit to domestic silver producers.

6. Although not yet enacted into law, the measure tends to reduce confidence in money itself and to cause a consequent flight from money to stocks, commodities, and other property that might rise in price as the value of money declines.

Reserve Must Buy Bonds.

Chicago bankers yesterday expressed the opinion that the Federal Reserve bank of Chicago and the other eleven banks would buy the required three billion dollars of government bonds, if the bill becomes a law.

The reserve banks, they pointed out, would have no choice in the matter, for if they refused the government could print three billions of greenbacks which they would have to honor.

In fact, a number of individuals who had carefully pursued the inflation bill, declared that the government could issue the three billions of greenbacks whether or not the federal reserve banks bought three billions of government bonds.

There is now in circulation in the United States a little more than six billions of currency. To this amount, under the proposed inflation measure, the treasury could add three billions by selling government bonds to the federal reserve banks. In addition, it could add another three billions by printing "greenbacks."

May Inflate 100 Per Cent.

Thus, under the bill, the government would be given the authority to add anywhere from nothing to 100 per cent to the amount of money now in circulation. Twelve billions of currency in circulation would be possible.

On top of this the secretary of the treasury at the direction of the President would have the authority to reduce the gold content of the dollar as much as 50 per cent.

Whether such reduction of the gold content of the dollar alone would

Chicago and North Western Railway Company

To the Holders of Chicago and North Western Railway Company 5% Sinking Fund Debentures Due May 1, 1933:

Holders of more than 93% of this Company's 5 Per Cent Sinking Fund Debentures due May 1, 1933, have accepted the offer of the Railway Company to pay 50% of the principal amount of the Debentures, with accrued interest, in cash, and to deliver, in payment of the remaining 50%, a like amount of its General Mortgage 5% Gold Bonds due November 1, 1987, or interim Certificates, entitling the holder to exchange the same in amounts aggregating $1,000, or multiples thereof, for said Bonds. Some holders of Debentures who have not formally accepted the plan have indicated their willingness to exchange their Debentures when the plan is declared operative.

The Railway Company believes that under the circumstances the remaining Debentures will be exchanged when the plan is put into effect, and has, therefore, with the approval of Reconstruction Finance Corporation, declared the plan operative.

Because the money to be advanced by Reconstruction Finance Corporation is available only for the payment of 50% in cash to assenting debenture holders, the Railway Company is not in a position to offer any other terms to Debenture holders who do not assent to the plan.

On or after April 28, 1933, and as soon thereafter as Reconstruction Finance Corporation shall have advanced the necessary funds, the Railway Company will make payment in cash of an additional 40% (or, if 10% has not theretofore been advanced, of 50%) of the principal amount of the surrendered Debentures, together with the full interest thereon from November 1, 1932, to May 1, 1933, and will deliver its General Mortgage 5 Per Cent Gold Bonds (or its Interim Certificates) in a principal amount equal to the remaining 50% of the principal amount of the surrendered Debentures.

Fully Registered Debentures or Debentures registered as to principal should be assigned in blank (or be accompanied by a detached bond power duly executed) and the signature to the assignment should be guaranteed by a bank known to the Company or by a New York Stock Exchange firm.

INFLATION BILL STUDIED FOR KEY TO ITS EFFECT

Bankers Find It Will Do Six Important Things.

cause a doubling of prices was the subject of many arguments yesterday. Those who held that it would have no such drastic effect pointed to the fact that when Great Britain abandoned the gold standard it cut out the gold content of the pound entirely and prices in Great Britain have changed but little since that time.

The employment of the reserve banks to expand the amount of currency in circulation is not a complicated operation.

How It Works Out.

Take a specific illustration.

The Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago has the power to issue two types of money—federal reserve notes and federal reserve bank notes. Both these kinds of notes look very much alike. The only difference is in the security back of them. A $1,000 federal reserve note must be secured by at least $400 in gold deposited in the vault of the reserve bank. The balance up to $600 may be either commercial paper or government bonds. The federal reserve bank note requires no gold backing. It may be backed by government bonds or other securities.

If the proposed inflation bill, as it now stands, becomes a law and the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago should be asked to add $100,000,000 to the amount of currency in circulation it could, if so directed, buy $100,000,000 of government bonds and pay for them with $100,000,000 of federal reserve bank notes printed for the purpose.

The additional $100,000,000 would then be in circulation, but it would be in the hands of the government. To be put to use the money would then either have to be spent by the government in some way, lent by the government through the Reconstruction Finance corporation, or given away.

Plan Used Last Year.

The idea of expanding currency by selling to the reserve banks government bonds against which they issue money is not new. The Hoover administration did it throughout 1932 and as a result the federal reserve banks now have a billion dollars more of government bonds than they had at the beginning of 1932.

The difficulty encountered by the reserve authorities has not been the actual issuance of additional money, but rather the putting of it to work. The total amount of money in circulation at the end of March was nearly a billion dollars greater than in circulation a year before.

There has been no currency inflation to date since the beginning of the bank moratorium. In fact, there is today about one-half billion dollars less actual money in circulation than there was seven weeks ago.

Two billions or so of the new "asset currency"—federal reserve bank notes—have been printed, but most of it is lying in the vaults of the federal reserve banks.

Boom of Anticipation.

The boom of the last few days in stocks and commodities has been entirely in anticipation of what the administration might do in the way of inflation.

Should the federal reserve banks agree to buy government bonds they would do so voluntarily—presumably—for they are private institutions, owned by the member banks that subscribe for their stock.

In practice, however, the reserve banks take orders from the federal reserve board, a politically appointed supervisory body in Washington. The federal reserve board, in turn, takes orders from the secretary of the treasury, and is expected to do so increasingly during the next few years.

The twelve federal reserve banks are located in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Richmond, Atlanta, Chicago, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Kansas City, Dallas, and San Francisco.

HOGS AND LAMBS STEADY; CATTLE PRICES WEAKEN

Small Advance at Opening Checked by Buyers.

Cattle prices weaknede ye sterday, while the advances in lambs and hogs were halted after a shade higher opening. Sellers attempted to force hogs into another rise, but packers balked at this and trading soon quieted down to a generally steady price basis. Immediately after the bulge had flattened out buying orders began to come in, with a noticeable pickup in local demand.

The general average price for the day at $3.75 was steady, but the peak at $3.90 showed 5 cents loss, compared with the high mark made at the close of Thursday. Both of these prices are in line with a week ago today. Unevenness during the day ranged from 5 cents lower than the high close of Thursday, to as much as 15 cents higher than opening quotations that day. An encouraging sign is the more aggressive attitude of the larger interests who willingly bought at prices fully steady with Thursday's average advance, despite the liberal number of hogs unloaded on the market this week.

Slaughter of Hog Prices.

The local slaughter this week has been the largest since the week ending Feb. 25 and 14 per cent above the average of the last six weeks. However, while the movement from the country is reavier than in recent weeks, receipts are running much smaller than they were prior to the national bank holiday. The week's run is 24 per cent under the average for the first six weeks of 1933.

Weaker wholesale markets for dressed beef overshadowed strengthening influences yesterday and trading dragged into slightly lower price levels, some species closing only a few cents above the lowest spot of the year. Members of the trade are convinced that live stock markets cannot be forced substantially higher without an improvement in the unemployment situation. Packers were reporting beef carcasses selling lower than at the close of last week. During the last two weeks there has been a good deal of activity and advances of ½ to 2 cents per pound in hide markets, however.

None of yesterday's cattle offerings were of outstanding quality. Two shipments of 1,275 to 1,298 pound averages topped at $6.00, while the rank and file sold mainly at $4.25 to $4.75. Quality of cattle is running poorer and while average costs are very little above the low point of several weeks ago, there is quite a difference in the quality.

Strong Undertone.

Gains in lambs were checked yesterday, but the undertone in the trade was stronger than it has been for several days. Despite the heaviest receipts since late in February, supplies moved out readily at Thursday's quotations. The top sales moved up 15 cents to $5.65, but this gain was attributed to the better quality of the supply.

Packers bought at $5.50 and under, paying $5.00 to $5.25 for 100 to 111 pound wooled stock and $5.25 for light shorn. Shippers bought lambs without fleece up to $5.35. California springers went at $5.75 to $6.15.
